THE DEER AT FAIRMOUNT.—A big dog got into the deer enclosure at Fairmount Park early yesterday morning, and badly injured one of the young deer. One of the old animals escaped yesterday, and after an exciting chase was captured near the Columbia bridge.

A GREAT ANNOYANCE.—There should be some arrangement made by the passenger railroad companies to prevent the habit of bringing to Philadelphia on every market day live chickens cooped up in small boxes.

There is hardly room enough in them for the chickens to move so as to be comfortable. Last winter the weather became intensely cold just before Christmas; hundreds of cooped-up chickens were subjected to the effects of the open air, and many of them died before being removed to places of shelter.

Now that the cold weather will soon set in, it is thoughtless of the dealers permitting their live chickens to remain cooped in small boxes on the sidewalks of our streets.
