Additional Particulars. From the Boston Transcript, of last night we clip the following additional particula f the robbery of the Boylston Ban Last evening the Boylston Bank in this city robbery, by which a large amount of bond were taken from the vault of the bank, est As near as can at present be ascertained the The 20th of October last, a man giving the name of William A. Judson, hired a room in the building, No. 4251 Washington street, osusibly for the purpose of putting up bitters building in which the vault of the institution is situated. It is evident from an inspection of these premises, that this individual, and perhaps confederates, have been at work leisurely here ever since the apartment was taken, cut-ting through the walls. A bookcase was hung up over the place where the work was going on, and to make detection still more improbable, a swinging piece of wall had been made to close up the hole which they were making. Two brick walls of eighteen inches each were required to be pierced; and this part of the work was evidently accomplished some time last week. The long time intervening between the closing of the bank on Saturday afterneon and the opening on Monday morn-ing gave them an opportunity to leisurely cut through the half-inch plate iron lining of the safe, which was accomplished by boring ho in a circle, making an opening sufficient to admit a small sized person. The valuables of the bank were in an inner steel-plate safe, whi an attempt was made to force.

The small trunks containing deposits which were placed in this vault for safe keeping at the risk of the depositors were all taken. The amount taken cannot be definitely estimated, but there is not much probability that it will fall short of $500,000. The walt is a small

Serious Railroad Accident

From Tennessee [Special by the Pacific and Atlantis Telegraph.]

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 23.—A shocking butchery occurred on the Clarksyille pike, about twelve miles from this city, yesterday morning. A man named Joe Barton, who rents a small farm, deliberately cut the throats of his wife and three children, killing them instantly. The murderer has been addicted to drinking, and the impression is that he was in a drunken fit when he committed the terrible tragedy. He made his escape, and at last accounts had not been arrested.

Andrew Johnson, who has been at home in Greenville for about a week, is expected here to-morrow or the day after.

The bill authorizing the construction of the Clincinnati Southern Railroad through! the State of Tennessee was called up in the House to-day by Mr. James, on its second reading.

Mr. Fleming, of Knoxville, thought a bill granting such extraordinary franchises and o'clock; O'Hara was with him; nobody else was with him then; I joined them; Smith and O'Hara went up on the bridge; I did not go with them; a little while after Conway went. up on the bridge; I staid at Twenty-third and Chestnut about half an hour, and I met Conway and Smith coming days the beidge and I went agrees to see
