THE MISSION HOUSE. The Jury were received by the Rev. J. D. Long, the missionary, who conducted them through the building and explained the workings of the institution, its educational and sanitary regulations, &c. There are 70 scholars in the infant school and 90 in that in which scholars in the intant school and so it that the higher branches are taught. There are two Sunday Schools under the direct supervision of the Mission. On Sunday mornings the poor, miserable, degraded men and women who apply at the Mission House for some-thing to eat, are, if they behave themselves, provided with coffee and bread. The Grand Jury were officially informed that the Mission is supported by voluntary contributions of citizens. Money, coal and shoes ar postly wanted at the present time.

THE TOUR. After the reception of the Jury at this place, the tour of inspection was commenced under the escort of two excellent police officers, Sergeant John Duffy and John McCullough, the last named being especially delegated by his Honor Mayor Fox to attend to the Mission and its vicinity. These officers have hard work to perform. Their duties are disagreeable, much more so than thou of any other two police officers. So far they have had the nerve to enforce the law, and each of them, on exteral occasions, has narrowly escaped assassination.

A MIXED POPULATION.

The first place visited by the Grand Jurors was at 613 Each Seventh street. Here was a molloy assemblage of black spirits and white, blue spirits and gray." The jurors were astonished upon beholding a hetero-The jarors were astonished upon beholding a neterical process mass of black and white people, indiscriminately associated together in all manner of positions, and all beastly drunk. two doors below. Here pretty much the same degraded rwo doors below. Reto pretty indea the same degrades bicture was presented, from which morality would turn saide, and at which humanity would shudder. Two o three minutes' contemplation of the scene of degradathe satisfied the jurors, and then they proceeded to Farmers' place, at the corner of Seventh and Shippen streets. As the jurors entered this establishment a young man, known by the soubriquet of "Kid," ordered somewhat impetuous manner, rather excited the somewhat impetuous manner, rather excited the indignation of some of the visitors. The youthful "Kid" sent was at once given to understand that he might be "sent below" without much trouble. He simmered down and became as docile as a lamb. This place, like the others, is a popular resort of vicious creatures, and sometimes they are rather roughly used. Frequently angry altercations occur here, and the belligerents, with disfigured faces, blackened eyes and mashed noses, are pitched into the street. A few days since a man in this place had one of his ears cut nearly off, and in this condition he was sent recling and bleeding into the public street.

At another place on Seventh street, below Shippen, the picture of pandemonium was somewhat changed. Here, picture of pandemonium was somewhat changed. Arts, on the floor, lay a mass of legs, arms, bodies, heads, all mixed up so much together, that it was rather difficult to tell "t'other from which." This jumbled up and prostrated pyramid of humanity had fallen under the effects of "rifle-cut whisky," capable of killing at a hun

The house next door below was also visited, but there were only two or three persons present, the crowd of bummers" having already been turned into the street by the proprietor, who "likes to keep a decent place." This is a great resort for the degraded whites who enter tain a repugnance towards the other race.

The jurors by this time were becoming somewha familiar with the sad spectacles, but there were others in store for them of which they little dreamed. They visited an oyster-house, located on Eighth street, below Emeline street. This popular resort of colored thieves and shandoned women is kept open at all hours of the night. White people do not go there as a general thing. This place to some of the jurors looked like one of the gateways to perdition. On Emeline street is a grocery and tavern, kept by a white man, whose customers are colored the most degraded kind. He, however, closes his establishment at an early hour, and his visitors must his establishment at the night. In that locality this is seek other places for the night. In that locality this is soonidered a respectable resort for "colored citizens." Another place, at Emeline and Eighth streets, is ope all night. Blacks and whites intermingle here, but they are of that class who have one or two more rounds in the ladder of infamy before reaching the degraded level of those previously introduced in this brief and unpretend BEVENTH AND BEDFORD STREETS. The jurors once more regained the open air, and proceeded to Seventh and Bedford streets, where they entered a "popular resort for colored gentlemen." Here, amid the fumes of bad tobacco smoke, and a stiffing atmosphere, were assembled around dirty ta "colored gentlemen," engaged in playing "seventup" or "old sledge," with packs of cards so greasy that it was rather difficult to distinguish a heart from a diamond, or a club from a spade. These "gentlemen" were gambling for money, without restraint.

A CLERICAL LANDLORD.

The next place visited was a shell of a house,630 Bedford street, having 14 rooms, including those in the celford street, maying I wanted an underground visit, where they found six occupants, who had little or nothing to say.

The building is owned by the Baverend Mr. Eddy, a olored Methodist minister. His agent is a Mr. Long-fellow, a colored dentist, who rents out the rooms at the rate of $6 per month to a mixed race of people of all ages. The building is not worth over two hundred dollars, yet the income is about a thousand dollars per annum, derived from the vicious people, who have de-scended low in the scale of human degradation; and yet in this miserable admixture of the human races may oc casionally be found poor colored women who try to make an honest living. In regard to number the colored pre-

VICTUALS AND DRINK. We now take the reader to the next place visited by the jurors, that of Barbara Arnold, a good-natured German woman, who keeps a tavern and eating-saloon on Bedford street, below Seventh. She furnishes meals to mixed crowds of white and black people, and closes at seasonable hours. Barbara is an expert equestrienne She owns a $1,000 horse, and on fine afternoons indulges in a ride. She considers the wooden pavement better than the old cobble stones for safety and speed of horses This woman dresses with great taste, and has excited no little comment on Broad street on pleasant Sunday THE LIGHT PANTASTIC.

The jurors also visited a notorious dance house or. St. Mary street, above Seventh, where all sorts of specimens of the colored population were engaged induncing. They seemed to be highly honored by the prosence of such distinguished visitors. One of the dancers danced "de Juba" in return for the visit. This was rather an unexpected entertainment. There were about thirty persons present. The "ball room," illuminated with gas, is located in the first story back; the front being occupied as a grocery and tavern. The establishment is under the charge of a white man. .

THE GIANTE'S.

Among other places visited was that of the "Colored Giantess," known as "Big Gabe." She entered very familiarly into conversation with the jurors, but assumed to be very strict in receiving any visitors. One of the Grand Jurors happened to be locked ut, and con of the Grand Jurors happened to be focked in, and considerable coaxing had to be done before she consented to open the door to admit him. This woman is a fair specimen of the dark-skinned race, and prides herself on the fact that she is " some pumpkins."

A DEN OF THIEVES. One of the worst places visited was on Bedford street, above Seventh. This is a place of resort for young thieves, the proprietor being a perfect "Fagan." The inmates are young in years, of both sexes, and several shades of color, from pure white to very dark, and are adepts in pilfering whatever they can conveniently lay their hands upon.

The jurors visited a number of other places of similar character to those already noticed, and by the time they finished their tour of inspection they saw sights they never ever dreamed of, and perhaps came to the conclusion that a House of Correction is greatly needed, and that a fearful responsibility rests upon the souls of those who have it in their power to erect one and are still holding the subject back.

THE BROAD STREET IMPROVEMENT .- The Supreme Court of this State has unanimously determined to re hear the argument in the case of Hammit vs. The City of Philadelphia. It will be remembered that in this case the Court decided the act of the 23d of March, 1866. authorizing the improvement of Broad street, to be un-constitutional, on the ground that property-holders could not be taxed for a second pavement, having already been taxed for the cobble stones to which decision Mr. Justice Read dissented. The case will be reheard in January next, and its ultimate decision will persons chiefly benefited are to be charged with the new pavements which the people are now demanding.

Gough, Henry Ward Beecher and Horace Greeley. With such a strong team as this—and it would be hard to get together a more attractive trio-we are not surprised to hear that the sale of tickets, which began this morning, and which closes to-morrow, is progressing with a rapidity which suggests the necessity of an early application on the part of those who wish to secure good seats.

REMEMBER IT .- To-morrow morning begins the great sale at Oak Hall. The utmost publicity has been given to the matter by means of our newspapers and other advertising mediums, and the entire public are now in possession of all the facts in the case. It is now in their own hands, and it is for them to say whether or not they will clothe themselves in the comparatively inexpensive way they now have an opportunity of doing. Wanamaker & Brown have done their part, and people will now do theirs. We predict a great rush at Sixth and Market to morrow, from morning till night. Go and see whether our prophecy is fulfilled or not.

THE STAR COURSE OF LECTURES.—To-morrow evening, at the Academy of Music, Hon. Charles Sumner will deliver a lecture upon "Caste." This dis-course has been delivered in nearly all of the great cities of the North, and in many of the larger towns. In every case it has attracted immense audiences and reeived the hearty commendation of the press. to be Mr. Sumner's greatest effort. The next lecture of the course will be that of Rev. The following resolution was offered by Rev. Dr. Bomberger:

Resolved, That inasmuch as the President of this Synod has appointed the mover of resolutions of reference to special sommitte chairman of such committees, it would be agreeable to the Synod if he should continue to observe this rule.

The President ruled the request out of order, when an appeal was taken from his decision, but he was sustained by a vote of 95 to 88.

Rev. Messrs. Probst, of the Lutheran Church, and Rev. In: Wylie of the Presbyterian Church, were announced. The certificate of the delegate of the Reformed Church of America, Rev. J. McClellan Holmes, was presented.

Mr. Holmes stated that he had the hionor of presenting to the body the salutations of the Church he represented. He would dofer further remarks, however, for the present.

ing to the body the street and the remarks, however, for the present.

The Rev. Dr. Ferris, 2 commissioner from the Board of Foreign Missions, was welcomed to a seat in the bridy, and on motion, this afternoon at 3 o'clock was appointed the time of hearing an address from that gentleman.

The Spund then proceeded to hear the reports of the Stauding Committees.

The Chairman of the Finance Committee read his report, which was adopted, showing the amount received, including a balance on hand at last report, was $1,054 59.

The expenditures were $722 50. Balance in the Treasurer's hands, $332 69. The sums needed to meet the Current expenses of the Synod will be $1,300.

The Committee recommended the following assessments: $ynod of the United States, $775; Synod of Ohio, $320; Northwestern Bynod, $175. The pecial fund, known as the German Hynn Book Fund, amounts, exclusive of the principal, to $216 67.

The report of the special Liturgical Committee was received, and on motion of Rev. Dr. Novin, the report as laid on the table until the standing Liturgical Committee reports.

cived, and on motion of Rev. Dr. Nevin, the report was laid on the table until the standing Liturgical Committee reports.

The Special Committee to whom was referred the proposition to omit the word "German" from the title of the church reported that the word had been omitted by a two-third vote of the classes, and reported that from the document referred to the Committee it appeared that the number of classes at the time when this amend, ment to the constitution was referred to them was 31. It further appeared that at the first annual meeting of the classes held after the submission of the amendment only seven veted against the amendment; St. Joseph's, St. John's, Sheboygan, Milwaukee, Erle, Indiana, Philadelphia. It does not appear that any classis was unable to come to a decision on the question, and consequently all the classes not voting must be committed in favor of the Amendment, in accordance with the terms of the Constitution, and it has consequently been carried.

The following classes voted for the amendment: East Penneylvania. Lebanon, Lancaster East, Clarion, St. Pauls, West Maryland, Indiana, Lancaster West, Tuscarawas, Tifin, Heidelburg, East Susquehanna, West New York, Mercersburg, Goshenhoppen, Illinois, Iows, and West Issayuehanna. The following classes voted in the negative; St. Josephs, St. John's, Blechogsan, Milwaukee, Erle, Indiana, Pilladelphia. New York, Minnesota and North Carolina. The Committee, therefore, seconded the following resolution: That the omission of the word German from the cilicial title of the Church has been constitutionally adopted by the classes.

The report was received and adopted.

Rev. J. O. Mullin asked that the title of the Church benevolicially proclaimed by the Classes.

THE COURTS.

The Seibert Homicide.

Over An Terminer-Judges Peirce and Paxson.—The case of Philip Flanign, charged with the murder of Col. James G. Seibert, was commenced yesterday afternoon, and the Commonwealth's testimony occupied the attention of the Court until six o'clock. On behalf of the Commonwealth, it was alleged that on the night of September 12th (Sunday), the deceased spent the afternoon and evening at the house job Mr. B. Horn. The two left the house together and reached the tavern at Thirteenth and Wood at quarter past eight o'clock. Atter taking a distribute of the case of the colors when the colors were supported to the case of The two left the house together and reached the tavern at Thirteenth and Wood at quarter past eight o clock. After taking a drink they came upon the pavement, where they were attacked, Col. Seibert being knocked down and so injured about the head that he was rendered insensible and died two days afterwards. Mr. Horn identified Philip Flanigan as one of the two men who made the attack, while the proprietor of the tavern testified that he recognized the voice of the prisoner outside declaiming that he could whip any man who weighed 123 pounds, and directly afterwards heard a heavy fall. Two boys who were in the neighborhood testified that they saw Flanigan cross the street to Col. Seibert and Mr. Horn, and while one of the boys could not tell who struck the blow, the other testified that he saw Flanigan draw a black-jack and strike the deceased, This closed the case for the Commonwealth.

This morning Mr. P. T. Ransford eponed the case for the defence. It was alleged that Mr. Horn was too much under the influence of liquor to be able to identify any one; that he as well as the two boys were mistaken in regard to Flanigan, as that individual did not reach the corner until after Col. Seibert had been struck and knocked down: that Flanigan was very drunk on the night in question, and when he reached the cerner after the occurrence did make use of the words given by the Commonwealth; that the men who made the attack ran away, and the next morning. Mr. Horn described the Sasilants as tail and dressed in light clothes.

The case is still before the Court. CITY NOTICES. CHRISTMAS AND HOLIDAY GIFTS of the finest and most boautiful and latest style of Gents' and Youths' Hais and Caps, at Oakford's, under the Continental Hotel.
