MEMORANDA.
Ship Chieftain, Godfrey, from New York 23d June for San Francisco, was spoken 16th Sept, lat 56 16 S, Ion 73 Yesterday we announced the arrival of an resterday we abnounced the arrival of an embassy from Japan to the Hawaiian Islands, which comprised several illustrious personages. One of the distinguished members is no less than a prince of the blood royal. His name is Sadówara. His brother, Simotzu Matonosin, accompanied him. These two, attended by a couple of high officers, will detach themselves from the diplomatic part of the tembassy, and proceed to New York, where they will enter some institution of learning as pupils, and graduate in the English language. The officers who will remain with them are Firayoma, Taro and Mazigooche Soge. The diplomatists are who will remain with them are Firayoma, Taro and Mazigooche Soge. The diplomatists are named Wooyen Kantoinokami and Mirra Tzuncyechi. Yesterday, the entire embassy, with an interpreter, visited Mr. Vaughan's gallery, on Third street, and had their photographs taken in a group. When the negative of the picture was exhibited to them, they seemed highly pleased. The Prince's brother, discovering a small smut spot near the end of his nose, called attention to it. Mr. Vaughan assured him that it would be obliterated when the picture was printed, with which explanation he seemed to be satisfied. The attending officers carried swords, and were in Japanese costume. The Prince and his brother were dressed a la Americano, and were without swords. The entire party exhibit the manners
