son of King Philip II., purporting to be written by Fray Juan de Avila, the Prince's confessor, and an eye-witness of the proceedings he describes. A summary of this document is given by Mr. Cartwright in the "Memorial Sketch" Bergenroth, which he has just published, soul," The confessor says the Credo, and the ing James Elienger, he was stabled by the deand of which we shall have further occasion to speak. In reproducing the substance of this vivid and startling narrative, it is needful to say that Bergenroth died before he had fully satisfied himself as to its genuineness. The story is as follows: "Don Carlos was a voung Prince very much inclined to specify the substance of the executioner put his knite to ms throat, and a stream of blood rushes down on the saw-dust. The Prince charged, before Ald. Kerr, yesterday afternoon, with assault and battery on James McGallagher and Michael Delaney. These gentlemen were passing along Buttonwood street. When is needful to say that Bergenroth died sefore he had fully satisfied himself as to its genuineness. The story is as follows: "Don Carlos was a young Prince very much inclined to do what pleased him without any respect for conterns. He was, however, on good terms with his father, King Philip, until the King married his third wife, Isabel of France. Isabel was of the same age as Don Carlos, and uncommonly handsome. Don Carlos fell in love with her, and made her a declaration in formal, which the Queen was weak enough to answer, begging him to desist from his suit, because the executioner grows pale, and a sheep, being bound by the most sacred ties to his father, could never be his. This letter miscaried, and came, the priest says he does not carles dear that this is witchery. Escovedo is sent to the King, and soon returns, with two requebusiers. The fing, he says, has ordered who, finding it by far too warm, strongly repri-who, fi know in what way, into the hands of Philip, who, finding it by far too warm, strongly reprimanded his wife and his son, and forbade them, under severe penalties, to see each other or to write to one another.
