So wide-spread is the misery has produced among the working and man-facturing classes, that a feeling has sprung up the scrutiny of messages by government onaid is growing fast, that is causing as much siness to the imperial government as any the many other troubles that embarrass it. The treaty with Eugland may be rescinded, if Stice is given by the 4th of next April, and here is a vehement clamor for the giving of The imperial government has so far been

But this does not satisfy the suffering classes, and they object to the Ministers having anything to do with it. They doarisen between this Government and France in mand an independent commission, to be formed by the Legislative Body, because such granted to Erlanger and Reuter privileges' a one as has been offered would only prejudge the onestion at issue, give greater weight to a from her shores, and these men have presumed foregone conclusion, and support the existing state of things and the treaty with England by an official report in their favor. The great they should yield their exclusive rights in France. It is entirely impossible that we leader of the protectionists is M. Pouyer-Quertier, and he, M. Kolb-Bernard and others should submit to this injustice. Common rehave been writing and addressing large public spect for the rights of our own citizens forbids meetings in Paris, Ronen, Lille, Amiens, such a thing. Either the French company Roubaix, Mulhouse and other centres of manumust abandon its monopoly or take its cable facturing industry. The proposed government away. Mr. Fish's letter is intended to induce commission has been condemned by the Chaman acceptance of the former alternative, and we believe it will be successful if the Frenchmen are made to understand plainly that they bers of Commerce of Doual, Elbouf and Bolbec, by the Industrial and Commercial Association of Normandy, and by other similar must either give up part of their privilege or have their enterprise ruined. Not less monstrous is the authority claimed by Napoleon's

The government finds itself, in fact, in a most embarrassing position. This embarrassment has been increased, says a late letter from Paris, by a new movement on the part of M. Thiers, M. Buffet, the Marquis d'Aude-Barre, and other members of the liberal and constitutional opposition, and which is likely to enlist on the side of protection the prestige of the new political feeling of the country, and to discredit free trade with the stigma of its imperialist origin. The above parties intend. it is said, to interpellate the government. first upon the "necessity of denouncing the Treaty of Commerce with England before the 4th of Commerce with England before with England before the 4th of Commerce with England before the 4th of Commerce with England before with England b February next;" secondly, to move a resolu- cessors will ever be devised in this country; tion that "the existing tariff be retained ad inand if such should be the case, it is hardly sented without delay, which shall raise anew and re-settle all the questions in dispute."

The possibility of such an event alone could furnish, the slightest excuse for the espionage The circumstance that the protectionists are a man as Thiers, in the Legislative Body, inereases the alarm of the Free Traders and the disquietude of the government. The Journal Officiel, evidently giving expression to this disquietude, makes a most humble appeal in favor of the official commission of inquiry against the numberless "misapprehensions" of which it has been made the object. The government organ insists that there is no intention of forestalling or interfering with the rights of the legislature on the question. "No one," it says, with a change of language, not a little remarkable at the present juncture of circumstances "no one can pretend to forestall the wishes and the resolutions of the Chamber." And again, further on, it is declared that "the Chamber must, under all circumstances, be the final court of appeal." The resignation of the Ministers/ just announced by the cable telegrams, has been He has also requested M.
