Wednesday, January 5, 1870. THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

vernor Geary's message, presented to the egislature to-day, is a very full and interesting resums of the affairs of the State. The receipts of the Treasury during t fiscal year amounted to $6,254,036 65, and the expenses to $4,858,774 16, leaving a balance in the Treasury, November 30th, of $1,400,ministration has been $4,889.888 82, an anthe Sinking Fund Commissioners. He also arges the increase of the salary of the State the demoralization incident to the present method of electing and paying that officer. The remarks of the Governor on this point deserve the gravest attention. On the subject of Common Schools, the message is full and interesting. There are 815,753 pupils instructed by the State, at a cost of $3,500,704 26 for tuition, and for expenditures of all kinds $0,986,148 92. There are still 75,000 children attending no school, who are properly referred to as "the prolific source from which the inmates of our prisons and penitentiaries are supplied." There are also 85,000 in private schools. reditable, clap-trap title to a chapter is "The The soldiers' orphan schools occupy a prom attack on Lady Byron's Grave. All these nent position in the Governor's message. 4,509 headings illustrate the character of the book. children in all have been admitted, and 878 discharged, leaving 3.631 now in the schools. 701 applications are yet on file. The condition of the schools is reported as being remarkably good. The Governor asks for $533,500 for the support of this Department, and pays a welldeserved compliment to the efficiency of the officers and teachers engaged in the charge of these wards of the State. The military affairs of the State are presented, the message referring, with commendable pride, to the increased martial activity diseral McCreary. The message recommends the establishmen of some State provision for disabled soldiers. This patriotic suggestion, frequently urged refer to it hereafter. The creation of an Insurance Department is to, and the Legislature is urged to establish a secure, and such as will tend to advance the ROCKHILL & WILSON, late the construction, ventilation and working comfort of the oparatives. The Board of Public Charities having be just established, is only briefly alluded to. A geological and mineralogical survey of The State is recommended, and also the add tion to the duties of the State Librarian, of the collection of statistical information relating to the various resources of the State. The second report of the Commissioner of Prison Discipline is presented, containing large amount of important information, and showing many deficiencies yet existing in our prison management. The Governor alludes to the increase of duties of the judiciary, and recommends the appointment of an additional judge for the nisi prius court at Philadelphia. A brief and suitable reference is made to the decease of ex-Governors Ritner and Porter. Upon the interesting topic of pardons, the Governor refers to the growing disposition to make indiscriminate demands for the pardon of almost every convicted criminal. During the year 1,550 applications have been made, and, greatly to Governor Geary's credit, only sixty-two, or four percent., have been granted A detailed report of these cases is appended to the message, giving the names of the petitioners and the grounds of pardon. We shall refer to this report hereafter.

The message concludes with a glance a national affairs, taking strong grounds in sympathy with the Cuban insurrection; with an expansion of the national currency, and a "con stant and natural approach to specie payment. The document is full of valuable suggestions couched in dignified language, and is entitled to most careful perusal by the people of Penn sylvania and the most respectful attention of the Legislature.

Lord Byron was a shockingly bad man; nobody denies it. But all that has been printed by Mrs. Stowe and others does not absolutely prove that he committed the particular and monstrous sin of which she accuses him. And even if it were proved, why make a parade of the proof? Why advertize the vice? Why set millions of young people to investigate the character, study the history, and the works of the abominable sinner. and read the works of the abominable sinner?

One chapter is headed "The Attack on Lady Byron." Another is entitled "Résumé of the Conspiracy," and in the opening sentence Mrs. Stowe speaks of "the conspiracy of Lord Byron against his wife," forgetting that it takes more than one to make a conspiracy. So careful a writer and good a scholar would not have made this blunder, and many others, of grammar and style that occur in the book, if she had been wholly in her right mind, and not carried away by a passionate desire to vindicate herself as well as her dead friend.
