What more could Señor Montemar do, who has worked this point with a perseverence and an ability worthy of a better cause? Such are in sub-stance the contents of the despatch of Señor Montemar, and it is an amplification of the The Cologne Gazette relates a horrid story as enacted at Schrimm, in the government of Posen. A country girl, living not far from that place, had received her inheritance of hat place, had received her inheritance of 00 thalers from the authorities there. On her return home she spent the night in a village; having no residence there she took refuge at the house of the village, justice, to whom in virtue of his position, she gave her whole confidence, and informed him of the object of the State moneys, one-half of the moneys to be deposited in Philadelphia, one-quarter in Harrisburg and one-quarter in Pittsburgh. The banks or exchange brokers with whom the funds shall be deposited shall be those who will pay the highest rate of interest and give sufficient security.

When all lay in a deep sleep the covetous host got up, went into the garden, and dug a hole there. He then took a sharp knife, went up to the bed where the two were asleep, and with a steady hand cut the throat of the person lying furthest from the wall, took up his victim and buried her in the garden. When he came back he found the bed empty. He had murdered his own wife instead of the stranger. The wife lay close to the wall during the evening, but had afterward moved to the outer side of the bed. The girl had got out of bed after the murder, and hastened away with her money. porations which have accumulated their earnings, whether in the form of improvements, buildings or otherwise, to issue capital stock That the State Treasurer be reque The Siècle, under the heading of "What is Promised in 1870," publishes the subjoined observations: "The present year will have to
