

The Obsequies of George Fenwick. The remains of George Fenwick, who died on the 26th inst., were taken to the English war ship Monarch to be placed on board...

The coffin was then placed upon the funeral car, which was draped with black broad cloth, and drawn by six black horses, covered by a canopy surmounted by an American eagle...

The obsequies of the monarch were brief. At the appointed hour the coffin was taken from the chapel, and the band playing the "March" was heard in the distance...

The obsequies of the monarch were held at the residence of the deceased. The coffin was placed upon the catafalque by twelve stalwart men, and the service was conducted with solemnity...
