CITY BULLETIN.

THE DEATH OF HORACE BINNEY, JR.—A meeting of the members of the Bar was held in the Supreme Court room, this morning, to take action in reference to the death of Horace Binney, Jr. Hon. James Thompson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was called to the chair, and Messrs. Wm. M. Tilghman and Cadwalader Biddle were chosen Secretaries. Chief Justice Thompson, on assuming the chair, announced the object of the meeting in a brief address, in which he spoke in the highest terms of the life and character of the deceased.

Hon. Wm. Strong said that he was often called upon to part with those to whom he had become attached—members of the profession—but he did not remember when he had been more sensibly affected than he had been by the removal by death of Mr. Binney. He and Mr. Binney had been acquaintances and friends from early hoyhood. More than forty years ago they had met as classmates at Yale College. Deceased went there with a son of the late Charles Chauncey, and with the exception of the speaker and two others, was the youngest in a class of one hundred members. From the time of his advent there he was distinguished time of his advent there he was distinguished for exemplary conduct, indomitable energy and great acquirements. In the whole four years of his studies at Yale success attended him, and when he graduated he received the valedictory, which is the highest honor attained in that institution, and in a class of such tained in that institution, and in a class of such a size could not have been accomplished without indomitable will, coupled with the most exemplary conduct. When he left college he commenced the study of law. He came to the bar 2 finished scholar—he could not say a finished lawyer, for he knew none such, the nearest approach to one being the venerable father of the decased. He was not seen so much in the courts as some other members of the profession, as his health compelled him to retire from active duties in the courts. He devoted himself to the duties of his office, and as a counsellor he duties in the courts. He devoted himself to the duties of his office, and as a counsellor he was safe, prudent, wise and upright, and as a trustee all felt that they could safely repose confidence in him. Though not actively engaged in the courts, he appears in the books in several arguments which would do credit to any of the eminent members of the Bar. Among the members of the Bar none were more distinguished. He was a friend of the highest order of education. He was one of the Trustees of of education. He was one of the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania, and a friend of education in all parts of the country. He was a true patriot, and firm though gentle in his manner. He was always decorous in enforcing his feelings, which were strong, and firmly adhered to. He was a true Christian, and his Christianity entered into all his conduct and influenced his course during his life.

Judge Strong concluded his feeling address by offering the following:
"The members of the Bar of Philadelphia, desiring to express in a manner becoming his eminent character and virtues their estions of their late professional brother and fellow-citizen, Horace Binney, Jr., and their profound regret for the loss which they and the community have suffered from his death;

"That in Mr. Binney's sterling ability, extensive acquirements and exact integrity in all the relations of life, his brethren had an example which they could not follow too closely, and that in our opinion the revered name he bore, and his own emulation of the highest standards of professional tone and de-coruin, aided materially in opposing the dan-gerous influences of the day, and preserving uncorrupted our ancient and honorable rules "That in his wise efforts for the public good, always fearless, but always patient and conciliatory; in that rare dignity which from respect to him led to respect for the cause he served; in his contempt for pretension and parade as distinguished from faithful exertion and solid achievement, he futuished a model for the lawyer who desires to do his full duties as a citizen.

"That from his devoted interest to the communion to which he belonged, and his self-denying fulfilment of all religious duties, he attained an influence and usefulness in the Church singularly great for one whose secular duties were so extensive and engrossing.

That to his beautiful and consistent private life we cannot better give our testimony than by forbearing to intrude upon it here, leaving its memories to those to whom they must be too tender and sacred to be touched by public resolutions even of respect and

"That as an evidence of our desire to do him every honor, we will attend his funeral as a body, and wear the usual badge of mourning and that a Committee of five be appointed, who, with the Chairman and Secretaries, shall communicate these resolutions to his honored father and the members of his own immediate family, with proper expressions of our sympa-thy and condolence."

iv and condolence." General Horatio Hubbell, who followed, said the news of the death of Mr. Binney was a great shock to him, and it seemed to him a great shock to min, and it seemed to him more like a dream than a reality. It was perhaps remarkable that Mr. Binney should be taken away, while his venerable father remained with us at the advanced age of 91. His acquaintance with the deceased extended over a period of 40 years, and in all his intercourse with him he was struck by the amiability of his character. He was a thorough the learn and brought to literature a well discipled. scholar, and brought to literature a well disci-plined mind. At first Mr. Binney was dis plined mind. At first Mr. Binney was disposed to enter the pulpit, but submitted to the will of his father, who desired him to follow the profession of the law. He was not litted for the struggles and contentions of the bar. As a counsellor he was confessedly able, but from his temperment and amiability of his character, he was not litted to struggle in the forum. Mr. Binney was a modest and retiring man, but when occasion required, displayed all the manliness that has distinguished his venerable father. that has distinguished his venerable father. He was also a patriot. He was among the first to step forward and use the power God had given him in the interest of his country, and sought to save it from impending danger. Hon. Isaac Hazlehurst said that it was a great privilege to him, and certainly his good fortune, to have been on intimate personal relations with the estimable gentleman whose death the members of this Bar now sincerely deplore. His very early life had been connected most intimately with Mr. Binney, and up to the last hour of his existence their re-lations of friendship had never been changed, so he could speak of him as he was. In all the relations of private life he was frank, affectionate, and free from estentation or presumption. In his manners he was simple and unaffected, while his character was marked with maniness, integrity and honor. That character is

It is a loss like this which weakens our Bar, for it is the removal of a bright example. Mr. H. said his friend did not seek or enjoy the active forensic duties, of the profession—but in the performance of the duties of the Council chamber he assumed great responsibility and labor, which, pressing upon a constitution not very vigorous, probably hastened his death. As the head of the family he was conspicuous for his uprightness and purity, and more than one circle weeps this day over a death which seems to our limited vision so premature. But his friend's character was not limited or controlled by mere professional requirements. In the performance of duty it took a wider and a nobler range. Born a Pennsylvanian, he lived and died an American. His whole life, beautiful in its faultless proportions, was rounded by a patriotism as absolute as it was uncompromising.

patriotism as absolute as it was uncompromising.

Joseph A. Clay, who next addressed the meeting, called attention to the trait in Mr. Binney's character which ought to be remembered. As a Christian he carried out the maxim:—"Blessed are the peace-makers." After the struggle was over and men's passion had ceased to excite attention, Mr. Binney came to the speaker and requested him to use his influence to restore a friendship with a certain gentleman, broken by the controversy incident to the war. There was a second incident of the same kind, Mr. Binney making the overtures which resulted in renewed intimacy between those who differed during the war.

Peter McCall said it was not every one who knew Mr. Binney. His life was a retired one, but his characteristics might be summed up in: Firmness and gentleness. He had the firmness of a man and the gentleness of a woman. His time was spent in doing good—in acts of charity, and his right hand did not know what the left hand did. In his profession he possessed all the elements which would have enabled him to take a commanding postion even in the forensic contentions of the Bar, if his disposition had led him in this direction. In the counsels of the church to which he belonged, his advice and assistance were always sought and valued. The death of such a man is an irreparable loss to the com-Peter McCall said it was not every one who such a man is an irreparable loss to the comsuch a man is an irreparable loss to the community.

Mr. Tilghman said that all his life Mr. Binney was a Priest of God. In this Court he was a Priest of God, for he pursued the profession of the law not as a means of gaining a livelihood, but in order to do good to his fellow-citizens. In his profession he was retiring, but the silent forces of the profession, like the silent forces in nature, are the greatest. They are always being exerted.

The resolutions were then adopted, and the chair announced the following as the committee: Messrs. Strong, Hazlehurst, Gibbons, Tilghman and Hubbell.

The meeting then adjourned.

The funeral of Mr. Binney took place very quietly this morning, at eleven o'clock, from his late residence, South Sixth street. It was the wish of the deceased that no unnecessary dis-wish of the deceased that no unnecessary display should be made, and the funeral procession, therefore, consisted simply of a few carriages, containing the immediate relatives of the family, among whom was the venerable, and distinguished tather of Mr. Binney.

The interment took place at the Church of St. James the Less, near the Falls of Schuylkill. The solemn Burial Service of the Protestant Episcopal Church was read by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Odenheimer, assisted by the Rev. T. S. Davies, D. D., Rector of St. Peter's Church. Rev. Messrs. Bronson, Bush and Church, Rev. Messrs. Bronson, Bush and

The congregation included many of the old personal friends of Mr. Binney, the Board of Directors of the Union League, and a Committee of the older members of that body.

SATURDAY TRIP TO ATLANTIC CITY.—On Saturday the new winter arrangement, that of running a morning train to Atlantic City on every Seventh-day, went into effect. Mr. Robert Frazer, the President; Mr. Horace Whiteman, Treasurer; Mr. G. W. N. Custis, the General Superintendent, and a number of prominent gentlemen, composed the party, who paid an agreeable visit to the "City by the Sea." Among the most distinguished of them were the Hon. John F. Starr, Joseph W. Cooper, John W. Morgan, David C. Spooner, Samuel C. Smith, Isaac H. Wood and Joel H. Clements: The last named gentleman will have charge of the Sea View Excursion House during the coming summer. The train reached the ring the coming summer. The train reached the shore in three hours, having stopped at all the stations. The Expursion House was the first place visited. It was duly inspected and found to be in order. Scenes by the seaside in mid winter have their attractions as well as in the summer time, and will amply repay a visit. The weather there on Saturday was decidedly cold, the wind blowing strong from the northeast. The surf was very rough and wild in the extreme. The shore at Massachu-setts avenue has been washed away more than ever, so that Mr. Burkhart has had to remove Lis hotel, the "Oriental," to a safer position Improvements are progressing at this popular resort. A handsome hall for concerts, lectures and other entertainments has been erected over the Market House, a few rods distant from the railroad depot. It will accommodate four hundred visitors. Mr. Spooner is having built a large and well proportioned cottage in full view of the ocean. There are other cottages being erected in dif-proved within the past two months. It is remarkably straight and level.

A number of the public houses are open for the reception of visitors "all the year round." The Chester County House has its "latchstring" always out, and the visitors on Saturday, availing themselves of the fact, took dinner there in a body. Every appetite had been keenly sharpened by the bracing sea breeze, but there was a satisfactory supply on the festive board to please every taste. At 3.50 the train started on the return trip; and, after a pleasant ride; fifteen miles of which was through a Jersey snow-storm, the party were landed at Cooper's Point in due time, all highly satisfied with having passed the day

The Saturday trips will continue until the pring and summer arrangements are made.

THE ATHENAUM.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Philadelphia Athethe stockholders of the Enladelphia Athenium was held at their hall this morning. Wm. W. Longstreth in the chair. A. E. Lewis was appointed Secretary. The annual report of the board of directors, setting forth condition of the association, was read by Wm. G. Thomas, and, on motion, was accepted. The library contains 16,000 volumes. During last year 1,200 were taken out by the stockkolders.

POLICEMAN ASSAULTED.—Policeman Sampson, of the First district, while taking a drunken man to the station-house, last night, was attacked by several men at Seventeenth and South streets, and was badly beaten. Samuel Bryan, one of the alleged assailants, was arrested, and was held in $1,000 ball by Ald. Dallas.

STABBING .- During a row at William and Thompson street, last night, a man named McKinney was stabbed in the jaw and was dangerously injured. James Mechan was arrested upon the charge of having committed the assault. He had a hearing before Alder-man Neill and was committed to await the re-sult of the injuries of McKinney.

Rombery of A RAILROAD OFFICE. The station-bouse of the North Pennsylvania Railroad, at Quakertown, was broken into on Saturday night about 12 o'clock by burglars. The fire-proof was broken open and robbed of its contents, amounting only to $8 in pennies. The money had fortunately been removed in NARROW ESCAPE.—A child named Catharine Ballentyne, daughter of James Ballentyne, residing at No. 1021 Wood street, fell into the cesspool in the rear of the house about eight o'clock this morning. A neighbor named William Hunter, succeeded in rescuing the little girl from her perilous position.

CITY NOTICES.

FROM A WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN.-PHILA-FROM A WELL-KNOWN CTTIZEN.—PHILADELPHA, Jan. 26, 1870.—I have been a great sufferer for many years with diabetes and kidney difficulty. Some of the time I was compelled to pass water every fifteen minutes during the day, and more than twonty times during the night. I had lost much in flesh, and was greatly debilitated. In this condition, without any hope of cure, as I had taken the remedies of a dozen physi cians in this city, I applied to Brs. Galloway & Bolles, of the Electropathetic Institution, 1230 Walnut street, and after examining me they assured me they could cure me. I am happy to say that in three weeks they cured me perfectly, and I am now a well man.
