"Eighteen males and thirteen females have died during the year. Of these deaths, eight resulted from acute mania; four from organic disease of the brain; three from the exhaustion of chronic mania and a refusal of food; five from old age; one from suicide; three from consumption; two from apoplexy; one from epilepsy; one from pyaemia; one from pneumonia; one from strangulated in-testine; and one from dry gangrene. "Of the patients who died, sixteen were ad-mitted for mania; six for melancholia; and dementia those who died, nine were in the house less than one month; six between two and three months; four between three and six months; two between six months and one year; three between one and two years; one between two and three years; one between three and four years; one between five and six years; one seven years; one nine years; one hearly twenty years; and one twentythree years and nine months.

"In scarcely any one year, since the opening of the institution, has it had under care ing of the institution, has it had under care cases of higher interest, or in which the results of hospital treatment have been more satisfactory than in that just closed. The number of patients of liberal cultivation, and with all the characteristics likely to render them the specially cherished favorites in the home circle, has not been small, and one of the most pleasant transcript of their residence here has been sant features of their residence here has been the fact that they have realized, in a high degree, the benefits they have received, and have left; with an enlightened appreciation of the advantages which every well-regulated institution offers for the care and treatment of those suffering from mental disorder.

"Another matter of special interest is the increased number who have come to the institution at their own request. Every year has brought to us more or less of this class. The number of such, in any institution where confirmed cases only are received, must always be small, for the reasoning powers have then generally become too much perverted to permit the patient to realize the importance of such a course, or else, making him quite un-conscious of the existence of mental disorder, would lead him to regard all attempts to give him the benefits of treatment as oppres-sive and uncalled for. Many of these cases of sive and uncalled for. Many of these cases of voluntary entrance were just in, or approaching the first stage of insanity; but, realizing the danger to which they were exposed, and convinced, from their own studies and observations, of the extreme importance of judicious treatment at the earliest pariod of this disease, they availed themselves, unhesitatingly, of what they believed all experience had shown was most likely to benefit them, just as they would have resorted to travel, or sought a change of climate, or what they supposed might be the best practical knowledge in any change of climate, or what they supposed might be the best practical knowledge in any other form of disease. In addition to the many other pleasant features connected with the treatment of these cases, is to be men-tioned the favorable influence which they so frequently exercise over other patients. Disfrequently exercise over other patients. Discovering that these ladies and gentlemen who, to casual observers might appear sound in mind, if not in body, have yet voluntarily sought the advantages which the institution affords, and are often continuing there, for a confirmation of their improved health, even after their friends have believed that a change could safely be made, other patients have been led to take views of their own cases which had not before occurred to a change could safely be made, other patients have been led to take views of their own cases which had not before occurred to them. Influences like these have often seemed to be connected with the first steps towards convalescence. An intelligent, sympathizing patient, thus situated, may often exercise a most important influence on all others in a ward, and many such leave with the gratitude not only of their afflicted associates, but of those to whom is intrusted the management of the Hospital, for all the good which they have effect of sometimes quite unconsolously. A real interest in the troubles and sorrows of others is often one of the best means of getting rid of our own, and no year passes in which we do not find illustrations of this benefit of properly classified association among out properly classified association among our patients.

"Another year's experience goes to confirm—what no tolerably careful inquirer could doubt—the very great importance of early treatment in insanity, the danger of removing patients from hospitals prematurely,—to which cause alone no small proportion of the secondary admissions are to be attributed,—and the very satisfactory results which, often come to reward those who have the courage and patience to persevere in all reasonable efforts to secure the restoration of what seem to be the most unfavorable cases. So when comto secure the restoration of what seem to be the most unfavorable cases. So when com-plete recovery does not take place, there is often an improvement which is the difference between a reasonable degree of enjoyment of life and absolute wretchedness; and even if this result is not attained, it is yet no small reward for persistent and well-directed efforts, to feel that they have prevented that still lower mental condition to which those who are neglected rarely fail to come."

In regard to the history of the Institution In regard to the history of the Institution the report says:
"Every one amongst us, at this day, ought certainly to know that the Pennsylvania Hospital, established in Philadelphia in the year 1751, by the efforts of private individuals, was the first provision for the care and treatment of the insane in America. All should be proud to know that in the great work it has since accomplished and which it is now doing—with the exception of some aid towards the erection of the original building at doing—with the exception of some aid towards the erection of the original building at Eighth and Pine streets, in the city of Philadelphia,—it has never received any aid to any one of its departments from city, county or State, but has always relied for its means of usefulness upon the liberality and benevolence of private citizens. No one should be ignorant that beginning in a private house in Marrant that beginning in a private house in Mar-ket street, then with a few humble apartments in the southeast corner of the basement story. of the building at Eighth and Pine streets, the accommodations for the insane were gradthe accommodations for the insane were gradually extended, as the wants of the community required it, first to the west wing of the present hospital in the city in 1796, then in 1841 to what is now the department for females of the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, on a farm of more than one hundred acres, two miles west of the River Schuylkill, and that they were brought to their present state of efficiency by the opening of the department for males, west of the building last referred to, in the year 1859; the first of these being provided entirely from the sale of certain vacant lots belonging to the first of these being provided entirely from the sale of certain vacant lots belonging to the hospital, in Philadelphia, and the last, erected and furnished at a cost of $355,907 57, the whole of which was contributed, on a simple appeal for that object, by benevolent citizens of different parts of the country, but especially of Philadelphia.

"It is easy to learn, and all should know that all these spacious huildings especially of Philadelphia. "It is easy to learn, and all should know, that all these spacious buildings and extensive grounds thus provided for the benefit of the afflicted, and everything added, as far as was compatible with the means of the institution, that was believed likely to increase its efficiency, are freely offered as a means of restoration to those afflicted with mental disorder of comfort afflicted with mental disorder, of comfort and security to those who cannot be restored, and of protection to the community; but no one is solicited to enter their doors, and no one connected with the hospital has any more interest in having any patient do so than must belong to every humane person anxious to alleviate the afflictions of his fellow-men.

"A very little inquiry will teach all that in a hospital arranged like this, with separate buildings for the two sexes, there is an amount of classification far beyond what was formerly possible, and that of each sex no less than sixteen distinct classes are provided for, while the arrangements for supervision and attendance are of a greatly advanced order, and the means of exercise, occupation and amusement proportionately increased.

and the means of exercise, occupation and amusement proportionately increased.

"It is desirable, too, that all should know that those who have provided so many of these accommodations from their private means, comprise a list in which are the names of many of Philadelphia's most honored and trusted citizens, that its recognize selected by or many or Emiaterphias most nonored and trusted citizens, that its managers, selected by these contributors, are not less well known, and give freely of their time, and not rarely of their money, to add to the efficiency of the institution institution.

It would be an insult to the common sense of a community like ours to suppose any one could seriously believe that such men, or the resident officers appointed by or the resident officers appointed by them—whose compensation is in no way dependent on or regulated by the number or class of their patients,—could have any selfish personal interest to promote, by their efforts to extend the sphere of usefulness of the institution, or by officing as they do freely, whatever ad-

the sphere of usefulness of the institution, or by offering, as they do freely, whatever ad-vantages it possesses to all the suffering, with-out regard to residence, sect, or calling. "Many, too, seem not to know that all this hospital receives is expended for the benefit of its patients, that its receipts rarely equal its expenditures, and that while the wealthy are expected to pay reasonably for their accomexpected to pay reasonably for their accommodations—out much less than the same advantages would cost elsewhere than in a hospital—a larger number are always under treatment for whom no charge whatever is made, besides several who pay much less than the whatever is made, besides several who pay much less than the actual cost of their support; as much as $18,614 65 having been expended on free aptients during the year just closed, and no less than $285,699 33 in the twenty-nine years that the insane have been on the west side of the Schuylkill: while during the same period a Schuylkill; while during the same period a far greater amount has been expended on the recipients of the charity of the hospital for the sick and accidents, at Eighth and Pine streets.

"All these are facts; about which there can be no dispute, and of which no one among us should at this day be ignorant. It may fairly be claimed that they are eminently creditable to our forefathers as well as to the citizens generally, and certainly detract nothing from the fair fame of Philadelphia for a wise and enlightened benevolence. JEFFERSON MEDICAL COLLEGE.-The excellent reputation of this time-honored insti-tution is well known all over the world. These Bonds, at present price of gold, yield over 9 per cent, interest, and as an investment they are fully as secure as U.S. 5-20's, which now only pay 6% per cent.

in currency. They are only issued upon each section of the Road as as fast as the same is completed and in successful operation. Over two and a half millions of dollars have been expended on the Road. Eighty-three miles are about completed and equipped, and already show large earnings; and the remainder of the line is rapidly progressing toward completion. The State of Iowa, through which this road runs, is one of the richest agricultural sections in America. Its large population, extending with surprising rapidity. and its immense yield of grain, pork, wool and other agricultural products, create a prevelng demand for the construction of this road, which affords the best possible guarantee for the bondholders, especially as the line runs through the wealthlest and most thickly populated section of the State. The road also runs through the rich and growing State of Minnesota. Reference to the map of the United States will show that it traverses the most enterprising and growing portson of the West, and forms one of the great trunk lines in direct communication with New York, Chicago and St. Louis, being to the latter city nincty miles nearer from Northern Iowa and all portions of the State of Blinnesota than by any other road now built or projected, and also the nearest route from

The road is opened for local traffic as rapidly as constructed, and thus RECEIVES EARNINGS ON ITS COMPLETED SECTIONS GREATLY IN EXCESS OF THE AMOUNT NEEDED TO PAY THE IN-TEREST UPON ITS BONDS BEFORE THE ROAD IS FINISHED. The buyer of these Bonds as therefore guaranteed, by a great business already in existence on the route of the road, as well as by now current earnings, and has not to risk any of the contingencies which always attend the opening of roads in a new and Alimited quantity only of these Bonds are now offered at 95.

After a thorough investigation of the above enterprise, we recommend these Bonds as a first-class investment, affording absolute safety, and paying an unusually liberal rate of interest. All marketable securities at their full price, free of commission and express charges, received in payment. Pamphlets and maps furnished on application.
