—Robert Browning, in his capital poem on Fra Lippo Lippi, mentions the fact that Masaccio was pepil to the Frate. A French notice of Browning's poems, in the Recue des Deux Mondes, accuses the writer of error in this, and asserts that Flippo Lippi was actually indebted for instruction to Masaccio and his celebrated in the Pull Melt Gazette, justifies his first representation, which he says has been challenged before. He refers to the latest editors of Vasari, who bear him out in it.
