SUNDAY, March 13.—The activity in the various departments of Wall street precipitated by the sharp decline in the gold market, when the price originally began its descent from the vicinity of 120, a few weeks since was not arrested during last week, although the inducentions at the close were favorable to a steadier, if not a firmer, ruling in the premium for the immediate future, I the lowest point funched so far is 101; which was folflected in this upward turn is due to the interpretation of the further progress of the Funding bill, which is regarded as likely to meet with fatal opposition in the lower branch of Congress, where it will encounter the antipathy of both the national bank interest and the Western inflationists. The fact should be boune in mind, however, that the speculative fraternity of Wall street are now harmonious on the hull side of gold, and hence allowance must be made for their representations of the situation as affecting gold. Undue prominence is given by them to the probable effect of the deleat of the Funding bill. It should not be forgotten that the decline in gold commences before effect of the deleat of the Funding. bill. It should not be forgotten that the decline in gold commenced before the Funding bill. It should not be forgotten that the decline in gold commenced before the Funding bill had made any essential progress in the Senate, and is the effect of natural causes outside of the Congressional action had upon the measure. The tono of the foreign exchanges indicates that the preclous metal is not in demand for shipment abroad. On the contrary, the prospect is fair that before summer we shall importable. What therefore is to prevent a repetition of the experience of the market when gold was thought cheapat 120 and still cheaper at 115? A "bull" movement just now is purely speculative. It is based upon no foundation likely to sustain it in the commercial world. The operators who have gone in to put the price, up again will likely find themselves again weighed with as nubuoyant load, just as they did at 120 and at 115. It will not be easy to bring the public in on the "bull" side, and the success of the reaction from 1824 to 115, was due to the fact that the outsiders who had sold gold
