TELEGRAPHIC NEWS. The injustice of the New York Associate Press, and its extortions upon the press of other cities, have been common subjects of complaint among the newspapers of Philadelphia, dependent on it for news, for a number of years. Looking over the files of the Inruirer, the Press, the Age, and the Evening Telegraph, we find numerous editorial articles. complaining of the quality of the news. Perhaps, if we had time to overhaul the files of the Ledger and the North American, we could and similar complaints. The Sunday papers have repeatedly ridiculed and condemned the system by which the New York monopoly vended its trash to the papers of other cities. As for the EVENING BULLETIN, it spoke more openly in condemnation of the system; but it employed other agencies to procure news, looking confidently to the time when a new system could be devised, whereby the afternoon papers of Philadelphia could be relieved of their dependence on the morning papers of Philadelphia, which were already dependent on the associa-
