CITY BULLETIN.

—Friendship Division, No. 10, Sons of Temperance, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary last evening, at Academy of Music. The attendance was very large. Excellent selections of music were performed by the Liberty Cornet Band. Governor Geary presided, on motion of Gen. Louis Wagner, and addressed the meeting. He said that the present occasion, this was the silver wedding of the Friendship Division to the temperance cause. He looked upon this grand army of temperance and rejoiced to meet them. The coming together of so vast an assemblage was sufficient to make all rejoice. He had no hesitation in saying that total abstinence was conducive to Christianity and the purest charity and philanthropy. It increased not, crime nor led to wrong, but to happiness. Out of 15,000,000 temperate drinking men in the United States, over 400,000 are drunkards. Of 3,000 applications for pardons made to the Pardon Committee would disclose that 95 per cent. of the crimes, the consequences of which they sought to be relieved from, were committed under the influence of liquor. A report was read, showing the operations of the Division since its last organization, twenty-five years ago. During that time 1,500 members were initiated, the present membership being 246. The receipts have amounted to $22,070 10; expended as benefits to its members, $6,065.

The Hon. Schuyler Colfax, Vice President of the United States, was then introduced, and received with prolonged applause. Mr. Colfax said it was a singular coincidence that this was the silver anniversary of the Division with the cause of Temperance. In all those twenty-five years, he had found the pledge a safeguard, and talisman that nothing could induce him to forego. Intemperance was a slavery worse than the slavetrade in this country—that was a physical slavery, but this a slavery not only of the body, but of the soul. Those words of terrible import, that warning, "No drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of Heaven," he wished could be inscribed before the eyes of every man, woman and child, to bring light. He then sketched the terrible effects of intemperance, and the changing of man's nature by it, and asserted that the insatiable desire for intemperance is as destructive of human life as war, pestilence and famine. Intemperance has dragged down to a condition worse than being crippled, worse than being broken down in form or constitution, as many were seen returning from the battle-field, those who were high and honored in the community. He impressed upon them the need of individual responsibility, and said the remedy for intemperance is in individual and associated action, as the cause of religion is promoted. A letter was read from Hon. Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, regretting his inability to be present personally, but announcing that he would be present in heart and spirit.

Major-General O. O. Howard was then presented. He said that he did not, in coming to Philadelphia, think that the spirit of temperance would have so warm a reception. He had sat at the tables of Philadelphia, and was the recipient of a warm hospitality, but thought it extraordinary that he should step into a room of this kind, and find it so well filled on an occasion like this. He then continued: The Father has given us rest for all that is within us, and we cannot, therefore, afford to sacrifice anything to appetite or taste. "The primary principle of love to God demands that we should not use drink that will hurt and debase us. That other command, "love thy neighbor as thyself," forbids us to drink, or deal out wine and strong drink. The family circle is that which is the most sacred in contact, and if we love our neighbor as ourselves, we must keep our family from drunkenness, lest its influence may injure our neighbors. This principle of love to our neighbor will induce us not only to carry it into and purge our families, but to carry it into the Church of Christ. Those in the Church who had wine upon their tables must be given it to their children, their families or their friends, and not give it up, and then they will be able to win the hearts of the drunkard and the fallen, and be able to do more for those who have never entered a church. Then they will be able to see the interests of Christ in the child neglected by the Christian community, to see His image in the victim of drink, and be able to bring him into and show him how pleasant it is to be in places where there is no temptation of this kind. He inculcated upon His hearers the principle of self-sacrifice, and urged them to banish the wine cup from their lips, and to go forth among the families of those addicted to strong drink, sowing the seeds of temperance.

—A feather bearing was had yesterday afternoon before Alderman Robert E. Smith, in the case of James A. Cann, otherwise Harry Robinson, charged with bigamy, on the oath of Ida Ehrenzeller, now called Ida Robinson. The allegation in this case is that in 1861 defendant married a respectable young lady of Wilmington, named Emma E. Saul; that subsequently he was married to Mary Durham, and quite recently to Ida Robinson. The accused was held in $7,000 bail for trial.

ART ITEMS.

—Prof. Schmessone's "Burial of the Canary" sold for $150 at the auction of Mr. Frost's pictures, by Leavitt, Strobridge & Co., N. Y. on Saturday, the 19th. At the same sale "Just Awake," by Eastman Johnson, brought $910.

—The sale of the D'Huyvetter collection of paintings was concluded at Barker's gallery, New York, Thursday evening. The picture by Ferdinand Pauwels, "Boccaccio at the Court of Naples," was purchased by Mr. Millhanks, for $2,000; and Van Lerius's "Rembrandt and Djali," by Mr. Muller, $1,900. "Grading the Manuscript," by Accard, brought $605.

—Dr. Birch lately read an interesting paper before the Royal Society of Literature, on Coffins and Mummies discovered in Egypt during the visit of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, a sepulchre having been discovered at Thebes, but at the time that he was there, containing several coffins and mummies, all apparently of a Theban family, who lived about the seventh century before the Christian era. The site had been known for some time to some of the residents on the spot, but had been kept a secret.

—The effect of gilding all the decorative statues of sovereigns in the Royal Gallery at Westminster, London, is now being seen the effect is so far satisfactory that the brilliant white of the marble figures no longer interferes with the coloring of Mr. Maclise's pictures on the walls, and is splendid when all is superintended by gorgeous. At present, notwithstanding the use of gold somewhat dimmed in its brilliancy, the statues look rather hard and metallic; but—as few things of the sort approach old gilding in richness and sobriety of color—if the precaution in charge can be persuaded to let time take effect on the figures, the result will be that the statues will become more in keeping with the coloring generation. It is well worth while to see what a change gilding has made in Mr. Thornycroft's figure of Charles the First.

—Thanks to the liberality of the Society of Dilettanti and the energy of the Trustees of the Classical Antiquities in the British Museum, the English National Collection has obtained a very valuable addition to its present stock of treasures. Among the most striking of those which have been transferred to the British Museum may be mentioned a foot, a hand, and some other portions of a colossal female figure, the question of which may safely be referred to the best period of Greek sculpture, and which is in all probability belonged to the celebrated figure of Athene which stood on the pedestal. On a smaller scale is a female head of great beauty, which in its peculiar style of dress, as well as in its general character, is very similar to one of the heads discovered by Mr. Newton on the site of the Mausoleum, and engraved in his Travels. There are also two draped torsos, a smaller female figure without head and several hands, as well as a pair of bronze wings, which may have belonged to a figure of Victory held in the hand of Athene. All these fragments of sculpture are discolored by fire, and have evidently suffered in some period when the beams of the temple must have fallen on the pavement in a burning mass. But there are other fragments which bear no traces of fire, and which evidently belong to a later time. The figures are in very high relief, and at least some of them will probably be found, when the fragments are put together, to belong to a single battle scene, perhaps a Gigantomachia. In their modelling and general treatment these figures present a striking resemblance to those on the frieze of the Mausoleum. These marbles are from the ruins of Priene, near Smyrna.
