As I write the learn that the course hended. As I write, we learn that the counsel for the family of Victor Noir are addressing the jury, and I presume the trial will terminate to-morrow at latest. A verdict of condemnation for homicide (manslaughter), with an imprisonment of from one to three years, seems to be anticipated. There has been a fresh outbreak at the mines of Creuzet, and serious disturbances are innrehended. ____

RETIREMENT OF A WELL-KNOWN EXPERT. We have already reminded our readers of the intended retirement from business of Mr. J. P. Reanmont, the widely-known artist and expert. This veteran connoisseur has watched obscurity and sent out to meet and vanquish American taste for about thirty years, we bethe cohorts of Radicalism. Neve, his active period among us dating from the time when Leslie became an Englishman, and Vanderlyn projected unappreciated Ariadnes. Connected, as a young painter, when his studio was in the Old Arcade, between Maiden Lane and John street, N. the Collotts of the Court in Spartanburg county, S. C., last week. A local paper said he was "essaying the herculean task of removing the accumulated mass of litigation from its Augean Issue Docket," and that it tween Manuel Land and Value and Value and Vanderlyn, he has lived to see strong will and sound judgment would render the strong will and sound judgment would render Trum- "had no doubt but the Alphean waters of a es Elliott and Leutze, painters of a Charles Elliott and Leutze, painters of a later generation, pass from us. An agreeable conversationalist, Mr. Beaumont has at his beck scores of anecdotes of his friend Cole, who created American landscape art, and of his own adventure in accompanying John Vanderlyn, when the latter was going to Paris to paint the "Landing of Columbus" for the Government.

If his present retirement is effected for the make of elaborating his private memoirs, he might give us a volume of reminiscences of Bronté and ether English writers. She is an might give us a volume of reminiscences of the most charming kind. His connection with our most celebrated patrons of Art, and with some of the most eccentric of our former artists, would enable him to make it rarely entertaining. In the meantime, thirty years' accumulation of treasures—the stores which becomplished by fetting married the has kept by him for the gratification of his other day. Their jibes, however, were cut. be has kept by him for the gratification of his private taste, when the mersy marketable portions of his importations were passing from him in a series of grand public sales,—has made his private house one of the most singular museums in America. He now places in the hands of Mr. Miner—alone in the firm of Leeds & Miner since the death of his senior partner—the whole of those paintings which he respected too much to sell, together with some hundred of recent importation. These will be disposed of on April 18th and the following days. We say, "those paintings which he respected too much to sell," and say it deliberately. Mr. Beaumont's stock in life was his singularly fine taste. But, at times, when his singularly fine taste. But, at times, when he met an extraordinarily sympathetic or fastrikingly fine picture, his taste stood in the way of his purse. He kept it for himself, to enjoy in his own drawing-room or library. Such are his extraordinary head—merely a sketch—of Mrs. Morris—by Gilbert Stuart, and his two Coles. Such is his George Washington, also by Stuart—his Zeem—his Cupp (the father), and a score or more of positive gems, some of which have been in his posses—gems, some of which have been in his posses—the United States Government allowing her an annual pension of $48, which it costs $5 to colsome of which have been in ms possession for more than twenty-five years.

No contemptible landscape painter himself, in former days, Mr. Beaumont abandoned his profession for a more profitable calling, which have belonged to Napoleon's "Old Guard," have belonged to Napoleon's "Old Guard," proved of great advantage to the American taste. Now that his work is done, both a result the arena an end about as ignoble as that of his ancient for himself and the public, he quits the arena as a successful athlete, whose last struggle with fortune deserves to outshine all his others with fortune deserves to outshine all his others in its brilliant result to himself and the reputation which it will leave him.

Some four hundred paintings constitute the gallery which Mr. Leeds will begin to distribute on the 18th instant, and which may be examined at 817 and 819 Broadway N V. examined at 817 and 819 Broadway, N. Y.
There are a singular number of English paintings, a quantity of curious works attributed to various old masters, and numbers of examples from those medians.

Pennsylvania Legislature.

The Pennsylvania Senate, after the close of our report yesterday, passed the House supplement to the Philadelphia Registry act. The Escheat bill, on motion of Mr. Connell, was recalled from the Governor, and the final vote reconsidered. The bill was then postponed indefinitely. House bill, providing that the old appropriation bill shall be held to remain in force for school purposes in cases where Councils fall to pass a new one, was passed. At least three hundred bills were passed by their titles during the day.

The House of Representatives refused to concur in the Senate amendment to the Public Oirquare Saws.
