THE DAILY EVENING BULLETIN-PHILADELPHIA. WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13 1870.

AMUSEMENTS. Mr. T. J. Hemphill's Benefit.

Mr. Thomas J. Hemphill, the business manager of the Walnut Street Theatre, will have a benefit this evening, and will present two good comedies, London Assurance and The serious Family. The best members of the company will appear in these pieces, and Mr. W. A. Chapman will sing a comic song. We recommend the entertainment and the beneficiary to those of our readers who are theatregoors. Mr. Hemphill is an excellent manager, and he has striven, in a most successful and grateful manner, to present to the public, during the present season, a series of first-class performances, in which some of the best actors in the world have appeared.' The promise for the rest of the season is equally good. Besides this, Mr. Hemphill is a worthy and excellent gentleman, who deserves considera-tion for his uniform courtesy, and for the carefulness with which he provides for the comfort and enjoyment of those who patronize his house. We hope he will have an audience, to-night, that will assure him of the popular appreciation of his merits.

The Star Course of Lectures.

At Horticultural Hall to-morrow night, Senator Revels will lecture upon "the Press." On Saturday afternoon, in the Academy of Music, Olive Logan, will discourse upon "Girls." Tickets for both lectures may be produced at Gould's, 925 Chestnut street.

Ole Bull's Concert.

How astonishing it must be to a veteran artist such as Ole Bull to stand at the footartist such as Ole Bull to stand at the foot-lights of asplendid building like our Academy, before an immense audience of his admirers, and recall the long series of adventures which have conducted him to such an enviable posi-tion! Did he remember, last evening, when he had achieved his quaint old-fashioned bow and was waiting for the planist to give him the keynote, his wanderings through the streets of Paris, penniless, in 1831, weeping for his stolen violin? Or did he recollect Maibrar's unblic kiss, a few years later, on a for his stolen violn? Or did he recollect Malibran's public kiss, a few years later, on a stage only smaller than ours, the grand stage of San Carlo at Naples? And did any pride come over him in thinking of his quarter-century's American reputation -a reputation begun before audiences of tobacco-chewers like the characters in Mrs. Trallone or Martin (Unvilonit, and finishing Trollope or Martin Chuzdewit, and finishing before a company of such culture and splendor as he had last night? Just turned of sixty, Ole-Bornemann Bull has behind him a beautiful succession of constant art-triumphs extending over three-fifths of a century; and he even contrives, it might be thought, to tell or hint a great deal of his inner history, in a style of play which is full of reveries, caprices, contrasts and reflections. Wedded to the romantic manner of Paganini, he makes his bow trace all the contradictory branch-ings of thought, and seem now meditative, now coquettish, now prophetic. The cunning instrument was enslaved, in his last night's performance, to a train of ideas that displayed performance, to a train of ideas that displayed all his versatility. Now, in the tarantella of South Italy, the notes sparkled like the diamond set in the extremity of the imple-ment; now, in "Sweet Home," they were vibrant and sustained as a Norway wind; and between these extremes the intelligent machine took up in turn the specialties of all the finer took up in turn the specialties of all the finer instruments of the orchestra. Truly these evenings with the inspired and white-haired Northman, as they cannot in nature last much longer, have in them something sacred. The violin was accompanied last night, very faithfully and feelingly, by Mr. Edward Hoffman, whose own arrangement of the Mocking-bird was truly graceful and delicate; by Miss Safford, a pleasant soprano; and by Mr. Macdonald, a pure but somewhat feeble tenor; the audience was very large and very exacting, demanding was very large and very exacting, demanding constant repetitions, to which the veteran in-

INDUSTRIAL HOME FOR GIRLS.-We have received the twelfth annual report of this in-stitution, the first and only one of its kind in the State. Orphan girls, or those uncared-for by their parents, are here received, clothed, taught to read, write, sew, &c., and instructed by this patents, are here received, obtined, taught to read, write, sew, &co.; and instructed in the arts of housewifery, so as to fit them for the duties of good servants, and then they are placed with families till they are eighteen years of age. Thirty-seven inmates have been cared for during the past year, for the marvel-ously small sum of $1,300, showing the eco-nomical management of the cohern. The "Home" is now permanently located in a commodious house, at the northwest cor-ner of Tenth and Catharine streets, which is kept in admirable order by the girls and their matron, and citizens are invited to inspect the premises. Unfortunately, there is a mortgage on the property of $5,000, and $3,000 more must be raised in two months. As the institu-tion is deing a peculiarly good work, it is to be hoped that contributions enough to make up this sum will be at once sent in to the Treasu-rer, Mr. R. N. Willson, 717 Walnut street; the this sum will be at once sent in to the Treasu-rer, Mr. R. N.Willson, 717 Walnut street; the Secretary, Mr. J. T. Shinn, Broad and Spruce streets; or to either of the following Trustees : Hon. G. M. Stroud, Samuel C. Perkins, Esq., Wm. A. Inghan, Esq., H. Y. Evans, M. D., C. Stuart Patterson, Esq.

A DESPERATE FELLOW.—Last night there was a surprise party at the house of Wm. Keen, on Carpenter street, below Eighth. Among those present was Daviel Dally. His conduct didn't exactly suits one of the particl-pants in the affair, and he was run out into the street. Daviel is not at all partial to such treatment. He attempted to return to the house. He couldn't get the door open. He rapped vigorously, but no attention was paid to him. Daviel then got his back up. He swore, but it was of no use. The door wasn't opened. He then began kicking it. The look gave way, and Mr. Daily gained his point. It is alleged that he drew a knife, flourished it and threatened to kill somebody. Somebody didn't wait to get killed, but called a police-man. The policeman necked Mr. Daily and escorted him to the Station-house. Ald Bon-sall next took charge of the matter and sent the desperate fellow to Moyamensing Prison. A ROBBER CATTURED.—Last night an at A DESPERATE FELLOW .-- Last night there

A ROBBER CAPTURED .- Last night an attempt was made to break into the feed store of Wm. R. Drane, Passyunk road and Cross street. Policeman Devine, of the Seventeenth District, came along and saw the thieves at work. He seized one of them. This fellow. work. He served one of them. Ins lendwing then struck the officer on the head with a jimmy and knocked him against the wall. Devine held on to his man, however, until a citizen came up and arrested him. The comcitizen came up and arrested him. The com-panion of the captured man then drew a pistol, and, pointing it at the policeman, pulled the trigger. Fortunately only the cap snapped. This chap then ran off. Devine got his pris-oner to the Station-Bouse, where he gave his name as William Campbell. He is also known by the name of Amos Tucker. He will have hearing at the Central Station this afternoon.

LOCAL CHOWDER .- The market people. this morning, are exhibiting green stiff in large quantities. Rhubarb, salads and radishes are the principal features of the stock. For butter the figure is from 60a70 cents per pound. Eggs are cheaper than a week ago. The sellers are obliged to consent to a reduction of ten cents a dozen on the price of two weeks ago. The ilower stalls look tempting. Their contents "go off" with a rapidity that covers with beaming smiles the faces of the venders.

A man named Pennington was arrested this morning in Otsego street. He was driving a horse so lean and famished as to touch the teelings even of the roughest of the people who beheld him. The man was fined $5 by Alderman Lutz. His father was similarly served but a short time before.

SUPPOSED ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY.-Last evening, about eight o'clock, a colored man-was observed acting in a suspicious manner in the yard of the house of Theodore Hessenwhen a son of Mr. H. made his appearance, the man ran. He was pursued by Policeman Shields, and, after a chase of several squares, a pistol-shot fired by Mr. Hessenbruck caused are that this will be one of the finest balls over given in the Academy of Music. That it will exceed, in every respect, the balls given in former years by this company there cannot be the least doubt. The at-tendance will be very large. The tlekets have sold rapidly, and the demand for them is increasing daily. For the benefit of those who desire to see what a Moyamen-sing Hose Company's ball is without partici-pating in the gay scene, the Committee of Arrangements has decided to issue audience tickets at one dollar each.

tickets at one dollar each. THE best judges and critics say unqualifiedly that the new planos now being introduced by Messrs. Hallett, Davis & Co., are all the ac-complished performer can desire.
