From Cairo to Jerusalem ... By Rail t Ismailia.-Through the Sucz Canal to PortBaid-By the Red Sea to Jaffa-The Valley of Ajalon...Arrival at Jerusalem

Communicated for the Phila. Evening Bulletin.] CAIRO, HOTEL DU NIL, Friday Evening, March 4th, 1870 .- I mailed No. 2 here this morning, and not knowing what opportunity there may be for writing when we move from here, I begin again without delay. We have enioyed our week at Cairo very much, in spite of the ficas, the filth, and the amazing amount of squalid misery that abounds in the place. Of the food that we have here we cannot complain. The table is very clean, and the things rell cooked. But as we go through the streets and see the markets or provision stores, I wonder how it is possible for us to eat any. thing here. The thing that I enjoy most are the oranges. They are perfectly delicious. At home I never care about them, and hardly eat one in a year. But here I am ready to eat them at all times. I enjoy them, and they agree with me. It may be, I must admit, that one thing which adds to my enjoyment of them is the perfect assurance I have that when the skin is removed I am eating something clean.

Ar Washington, last night, a torchlight pro cession took place in honor of the Fifteenth Amendment, and in favor of the proposed change in the government of the District of Columbia. Cannon were fired and many houses illuminated—among them that of Vice President Colfax. The procession proceeded to the White House, which was lighted up. President Grant appeared on the portico, and was addressed by Judge Fisher. The President, in reply, said he hoped those enfran-chised by the Fifteenth Amendment would prove themselves worthy of its benefits, and that all might be benefited by it. He felt conlident this would be the result. If he had not he should not have been so anxious for ratification.
