THE ISTHMUS CANAL PROJECT .-VIEWS OF AN EXPERT. Looking on the map of Central America. would seem that there ought to be no insuperable difficulty in cutting a canal between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The Isthmus is very narrow, and modern engineering and machinery have accomplished so many extraordinary works, that it would seem that if the capital could be furnished, a canal could be constructed. Then would come the question of preserving it in good order, in a country of earthquakes, where there are frequent upheavals and depressions that totally change the surface of the earth. The preliminary rumors that come from the party sent out to the Isthmus by the United States must not be accepted as entirely trustworthy. There are over-sanguine young men in all adventurous enterprises, and there are also men who have an object in exaggerating or deceiving so that the enterprise which occupies and pays them may not be abandoned. There have been some pretty thorough and eareful explorations of the Isthmus of Darien in past times. Those made in the preliminary surveys for the Panama Railroad, and in its construction, threw a great deal of light on the enestion of the possibility of constructing a canal. Mr. John C. Trautwine, of this city, this act of justice may perhaps be accomwas one of the engineers engaged in those ex-plorations in the year 1852, and his professional plished. reputation is such that his views on the subject are entitled to respectful consideration. The force, at large, evidently resents this infingement upon its record, and has promptly taken measures to re-establish its threatened reputation. The duty was an easy one, and was eherfully assumed by a special committee se lected from the large number of men competent to demonstrate the utter unfitness of Mayor.

Fox's police. Messrs. Patrick Levy, Thomas Morgan and John Bowlen formed the committee, and did their work in the most statisfactory manner. Mr. Levy distinguished himself by arresting two peaceable citizens, who remonstrated against his abuse of a prisoner, preferring false charges against them and locking them up in the cells of the station-honse.

The force, at large, evidently resents this, induced that it can be made to pay, before entering upon any heavy expenditure. Mr. Trautwine thinks the made to pay, before entering upon any heavy expenditure. Mr. Trautwine thinks the made to pay, before entering upon any heavy expenditure. Mr. Trautwine thinks the most feasible solution of the matter would be for all the leading commercial nations to construct the canal at their joint expense, and then throw it open to the use of the world at large, exacting merely sufficient tolls to keep it in repair.
