Richmond in Mourning---Action of the Legislature.

RICHMOND, April 27.—The sun rose bright and cheerful this morning over a city full of happiness, which by midday was turned into mourning and desolation. One of the most frightful and appalling catastrophies occurred at the Capitol building, wholly without a parallel, by which nearly fifty lives were lost and as many were maimed, and this day is henceforward one of horror and calamity in Richmond's history.

The Scene of the Disaster.

Such was the intense interest felt in the decision to be rendered by the State Court of Appeals in the Mayoralty case to-day, that by 11 o'clock A. M. a growd of eager citizens filled the court-room, which is located on the upper floor of the Capitol building, on the north side, and immediately above the hall of the House of Delegates. The room is about twenty by twenty-five feet, the judges' bench at one end, being confronted by a small galery at the other Theorems. lerv at the other. The entrance to the courtroom is from a balconied gallery in the upper story, over the Washington monument, on the lower floor, and above is a skylight in the roof, which admits the light. This balcony, or gallery, was also filled with people who could not gain admittance into the court-room.

The Crowd. At the time of the catastrophe it is estima-At the time of the catastrophe it is estimated that not more than three hundred persons were in the court-room, but these filled it to its utmost capacity. A large number of the legal fraternity and members of the press were seated in the room immediately in front of the bench and the gallery. The opposite end was filled with leading citizens, and the centre of the small room was thronged by a crowd, both seated and standing. There was a general conversation or discussion as to the merits of the case going on among the assembled audience, the members of the press were arranging their paper and cracking jokes, as is ranging their paper and cracking jokes, as is usual among them, and all were eagerly awaiting the advent of the Judges. At length two of their Honors entered—Judges Joynes and Anderson—and took their seats, when the conversation lulled among the people, and for the first time there was a perceptible silence. The Accident.

Suddenly, and while awaiting the arrival of the remaining judges, a report of asmothered gun under the floor was heard, followed im-mediately by another similar report, and everybody started from their seats and looked everybody started from their seats and looked towards the centre of the room, from whence the ominous sounds seemed to issue. People there stood up and looked themselves for an explanation of the strange and mysterious noise. But they had not long to wait. There came a crackling sound, as of small timbers breaking, and then the floor was felt giving way. in the centre of the room. Simultaneously everybody imped to their feet, for all felt that danger was imminent, and self-preservation is the first law of nature. But it was too late. Down, went the floor with a terrible crash, with its living, breathing and frightened human freight, dragging with it the gallery and its living mass, and down they went a distance of nearly twenty-five feet to the floor of the House of Delegates. Then, with the descending mass, the ceiling above, which was somehow attached to the gallery, also came down with another fearful crash, smothering and crushing the living and struggling mass of rigtims neneth

Providential Escapes. A ledge of about twelve feet, on which the hench was located, did not go down, and on this many lives were saved, including the judges and reporters. As soon as the fearful crash had occurred, those who could clutched hold of the windows, stepped out of the gallery and ran out to other rooms, and thus many others were also saved.

The Excitement. The scene which followed is utterly beyond description. Between the two bodies of the floor and ceiling was the mass of people, the torce and power of the latter, with the gallery force and power of the latter, with the gallery talling upon them, forever silencing their cries for help. It, was a scene of horror never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it. To those who remained about and who ventured to look down into the vacant space of the court-room nothing was visible but a cloud of thick dust, through which the frantic cries of the victims yet alive could be heard vainly appealing for help.

Spreading the News Through the City. The crash was felt in every portion of the building, even to the basement, out of which the officers ran in precipitate haste, and soon the alarm of the catastrophe was pealed through the city on the bells of the surround-ing churches. This sound had the effect of bringing promptly to the scene the Fire De-partment, besides a large concourse of citizens, who were under the impression that a confingration had taken place. Hooks and ladders were at once brought into active requisition, and the work of extracating the dead, the man gled, the wounded and the dying was com-

The Capitol Building, which dates nearly to the revolutionary era, is dilapidated and insecure, and is now but a wreck, of what it was, the whole northern what it was, the whole northern side of it being a mass of debris. While the dead were being removed, many alarms took place, and the people rushed from the building repeatedly, in terror of another calamity. Suspension of Business in the City.

Throughout the entire city business has been suspended, stores are closed, and the community are mourning their irreparable loss. Many of the stores are draped in the emblematic crape. Women and children are crying and weeping in every direction; men are rushing hither and thither, seeking fresh details of the sorrowful tragedy.

A Meeting Called For.

The following call has been issued for a meeting, at which Governor: Walker will preside:
"To the Citizens of Richmond: A: terrible calamity has just, occurred, by which many who were in life but a day or two ago now sleep in the calm repose of death. It is fitting upon such occasion that some public action should be taken expressive of the deep sorrow that pervades every heart; and it is, therefore, recommended that the people assemble on the Capitol square to morrow at 12 o'clock to give a suitable expression to their grief and sympathy on this mournful occa-sion." Remarkable Escapes.

Among the miraculous escapes are those of the reporters of the Whig. Dispatch and State Journal—all of whom were seated immediately on the edge of the parting floor, poor Brock being so far back that he fell into the fearful abyes and lost his life. Several others grasped or clutched hold of doors, windows and benches, and saved themselves by extraordinary exertions and the interposition of Providence.

Narrow Escape of Governor Walker.

Particulars from One Who Escaped.

Particulars from One Who Escaped.

A gentleman, who narrowly escaped with his life, describing the scene, says:

"I was seated at one of the tables with the reporters when the floor caved in, and the crash of ceiling, floors and timbers followed; my chair thus half fell, and I went over the ledge, but, happily, grasped the floor, and was for a time suspended; I involuntarily- prayed, and heard a clinging companion say: "Lord, have mercy upon me, I am gone;" it was a terrible moment, which I never shall forged; the crashing of the floor, the shrieks of the mass who went down in their death slaughter, and the frantic efforts of some to escape, with my own slight chances of life, were all fearfully presented in a single instance; when I recovered, and got-myself-back—on the platform, I fainted, and was hurried by somebody from the fatal apartment."

Miscellaneous Items. To-night a great meeting of the Uahoon and Ellyson police was held, at which resolutions of respect to the memory of their deceased brethren were adopted, and it was agreed that both parties should join in and participate in the funeral ceremonies. the funeral ceremonies.

The State Capitol to be Abandoned. Both branches of the General Assembly held a session at the Exchange Hotel, merely meeting and adjourning until to morrow at twelve o'clock, to avoid any interruption in the proceedings. It is believed the Capitol will now be abandoned as a public institution. It was built in 1792, and is now nearly seventy-eight years old.

A private telegram from Richmond says that the court was about to deliver an opinion in favor of Mr. Ellyson, one of the judges dissenting, as the floor fell.

A TERRIBLE CRIME.

A Man Found Murdered at Englewood N. J.—Efforts to Ascertain Who He Was and Who Killed Him. The beautiful little village of Englewood, N. J., about fourteen miles from New York, on the Northern Railroad, has just been plunged into painful perplexity by a mystery which has filled the whole district with which has filled the whole district with horror. On Thursday evening, the 14th instant, about 9½ o'clock, as a party of ladies and gentlemen were returning from Hackensack to Englewood, over the meadows, they heard sounds of distress proceeding from a distance; and fancied they heard cries of "Help! help!" They paused in their walk for a few minutes, and no further cries being heard proceeded on their way homeward, and next day dismissed the matter from their minds as insignificant. They were destined, however, to be again reminded of the occurrence in a way they little expected. Nothing more transpired until last Friday evening, when a workman returning home to evening, when a workman returning home to Englewood the same way, in the dusk of the evening, thought he saw a man lying on the wet part of the meadow near the Peck creek, wet part of the meadow near the Peck creek, but either from timidity or some other unexplained cause; passed on home. On arriving at home he tried to dismiss the subject from his thoughts, but: all the evening the image of the body he had seen rose before him, and haunted him with a strong presentiment of something wrong. He passed a sleepless night, and early next morning rose and started off for the meadows. On ing rose and started off for the meadows. On arriving at the spot he found, to his great hor-ror, that the body he had seen before was that of a man in an advanced stage of decomposi-tion, lying on his side, with the clothes appa-rently undisturbed, but with the throat cut rently undisturbed, but with the throat cut from ear to ear, the gash being so deep as almost to sever the head from the body. He at once returned to Englewood and communicated the facts to Mr. Squire Miller, Justice of the Peace and Coroner for the district.

The Coroner at once took charge of the body, and at first it was supposed to be a case of suicide: but the fact of the body's having been found having reached the ears of persons who heard the screams ten days before, they communicated the fact to the Coroner, and a medical examination of the body was made. medical examination of the body was made, the result of which leads to the belief that it was not suicide, but a brutal and deliberate murder. The body of the deceased is that of an unknown man about forty years of age, and is supposed to have been dead about ten days on the day it was discovered. The jugular vein was entirely severed, and the position of the wound seemed to show that it had not been inflicted by the de-ceased's own hand. The supposition is that the murder was not committed for the purpose of robbery, as a valuable pin was found on the man's breast, and 92 cents in cash in his yest pocket. In his coat pocket was found a cigarcase containing two cigars, and a pocket-handkerchief, on the corner of which, in very faint letters, is the name "Morris." The Christian name was so faint that it could not be deciphered. The inquest was opened yesterday, but was adjourned until Tuesday next, in order to give the Vigilance Committee of the village time to endeavor to obtain some clew as to the residence of the unfortunate

THE MORMON TROUBLES.

Rumors of War-Queer Hovements' among the Mormons-What is Going The Corinne (Utah) Reporter has the following:

For two weeks past the Mormons of Cache and Bear River Valleys have been buying every gun they could obtain in this city. On Tuesday one firm alone in Corinne sold seventy-four guns and took an order for thirty more, to be ordered by telegraph and delivered as soon as forwarded. Last week the Mormons purchased 10,000 cartridges in Corinne, and this week, so far, the trade is still more lively! What does this mean? Do the Mormons purpose to fight or emigrate? still more lively! What does this mean? Do the Mcrmons purpose to tight or emigrate? The reasons given by them for this general arming is that there is danger of Indian troubles in the outer settlements; but we alknow the absurdity of such a statement. And while on this point it may be well to remem ber that there are now over 500 Indians en camped within amile of Corinne, among them not less than two hundred warriors. What are these Indians here for? When questioned, some of them say they have been ordered here to receive their annuities others state that they are here to receive; a friendly, visit from the tribes of the western basin, and others that this is the time set for a general council of the Utes. It may be that all these signs mean nothing; that we will be voted sensational? for thus referring to them; and that the scent of "blood in the air" by some of our citizens is the result of nervousness; but it may be well to remember that we have been that the scent of "blood in the air" by some of our citizens is the result of nervousness; but it may be well to remember that we have to deal with a people who are not governed by the ordinary dictates of reason, and who are firmly persuaded that the Lord will fight their battles and make them his instruments to "smite the Gentiles." We have a good regiment of able-bodied men in Corinne; enough, if properly armed and tortified to "stand on". if properly armed and fortified, to "stand on" all the Mormons north of Salt Lake; but the danger is from treachery, assassination, or night surprise. We hope that all this excitement is without foundation in fact; but as long as there is one chance in a thousand that we are in danger, we think it worth while to take precautions even against that.

The same paper says:

take precautions even against that.

The same paper says:
Advices from "Zion" are considerably mixed. At first all the talk was for war, which soon after settled into an expressed determination to destroy everything and emigrate, if an attempt were made to enforce the Cullom Bill. Still later we have had more exciting any page to the control of the control of the cultom still still later we have had more exciting any page to the control of the control citing rumors reach us. Late arrivals state that there is undoubtedly "blood in the air." We met an old resident of Salt Lake yesterthat there is undoubtedly "blood in the air."
We met an old resident of Salt Lake yesterday, who stated that he found it was time, at least, for him to emigrate, and gives the following report: Brigham Young reached home on Saturday, and was greeted by the largest crowd ever assembled in Salt Lake City. He delivered a fiaming speech in which he urged them to be united and they would triumph over all their foes; circumvent or destroy the enemies of "Zion," and go back to Jackson county in a blaze of glory. Another Gentile emigrant from Salt Lake states that he met the notorious "Port." Rockwell a might or two before his departure, and, that the latter abruptly asked him how long he intended to stop in the city. On his replying, "but a few days," Porter advised him to shorten the time, and added: "There's five men here that's got to go the minute that bill passes. I've got em spotted, and a double-barreled shotgun to their own houses before they go," etc. This Rockwell is one of those "united in offensive." their own houses before they go," etc. This Rockwell is one of those "quiet inoffensive and peaceable Mormons" so touchingly allided to by Congressman Fitch in his late speech on the Cullom bill. It needs no argument to show any sensible man that if the Mormons were one-tently as low children. Mormons were one-tenth as law-abiding and peaceful as they claim they would punish this villain for his crimes, or at least make him stop his threatening.

FORT SUMTER.

The Charleston Courier says:
The work of reconstruction which has for so The work of reconstruction which has for so long a time agitated the country and engrossed the attention of Congress has reached the classic walls of Sumter, and now that battered old fortress, upon whose walls so much indomitable courage has been displayed, is to be reconstructed. The crumbling walls are to be restored, embrasure, angle and slope to be remoulded, and an armament replaced therein. In restoring the work it is contemplated to make it a "heavy temporary battery," mounting thirteen heavy calibre gunseleven 15 inch smooth here, and two 12 inch rifles.
