I do not believe a single practitioner of this city had anything to do with writing or distributing them. Nor do I believe that anyone can be induced to endorse them, as either representing or aiding what we regard as the Hospital—not the professional or "doctor's"—cause.

It is true that a few of the Managers of the present Board have contributed some eighty thousand dollars to the Hospital (principally for the Insane Department). But are they unanimous on this question? And if they are, which is not likely, did that amount of money buy the Hospital? The physicians have contributed only five thousand dollars in money; but how much in labor, time, know—the notice of the continue to watch and discuss the results, without the slightest regard to newspaper intolerance and clamor. It would seem that professional opinion and the services cheerfully and ably given, although always uppaid and very slightly and rarely acknowledged, are to be of no account unless they are on the side only of the spurious philanthropy. Medical men have so much to do for the public at their own expense, and are so ready to do it, that they have no chance to grow rich like business men and thus to give out of the abunbusiness men, and thus to give out of the abundance of their gains and accumulations. In their competition for the sacrifice, under a vain delusion as to the glory, they have always been so spunged upon by those who pay for all other services, that their mites should be counted as at least equal to rich men's doles.

Neither the medical schools nor the medical practitioners of Philadelphia desire or attempt to interfere, with female medical students and practitioners; but they cannot be forced to believe or acknowledge (or to conceal a contrary opinion) that more than an extremely small number of women, if any, are or can be fitted by nature or education, or by both, to undertake the responsibilities involved in the practice of medicine or surgery.
