NORTHERN HOME FOR FRIENDLESS CHILDREN AND SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' INSTITUTE.—The eighteenth anniversary of these joint popular institutions was celebrated at the Academy of Music, last evening, in the presence of an audience that filled the house to repletion in every part. The appearance of the children was in every respect admirable. The number present was about four hundred; the girls dressed in white, with red and blue sashes, and the boys in blue. Everything about them betokened neatness, cleanliness, healthfulness and discipline.

At eight, precisely, the curtain rose, revealing a sight such as is rarely seen. Two companies of soldiers' orphans were then marched on the stage. A prayer was offered by Rev. E. W. Hutter, during which the soldiers rested on their guns. A drill was then gone through with by the two companies, under the command of Captain Frank Sloan. At its close they were reviewed by Major Dean, who appeared in full regimentals. The boys were trained by Dr. A. Harshbarger. A beautiful song, "Mother's waiting for her children," was sung, which was followed by the report of the Treasurer, J. L. Claghorn, Esq. The annual report was read by the Secretary, M. J. Mitcheson, Esq. From these two reports we glean the following statistics:

Children in the Home May 1, 1869, 338; admitted from May 1, 1869, to May 1, 1870, 121—459. Of whom there were 14 soldiers' orphans. Returned to parents and furnished homes, 109; enticed away or absconded, 4; died, 2—115. Now in the Home, 344. Of these there are friendless children, 104; soldiers' orphans, 240—344. The receipts amounted to $54,222 83, and the expenditures to $54,222 83.

At the close of Mr. Mitcheson's report he made an appropriate allusion to the death of Mr. J. W. Claghorn, to whom the Northern Home is so largely indebted for its present efficiency. A favorite hymn of Mr. Claghorn's was then sung by the children, when several little girls, attired in white and mourning, offered a tender and touching memorial to the memory of their deceased friend and patron. It was in the form of a chair draped in mourning, containing a beautiful floral cross. The little girls recited in concert a pretty address commemorating the virtues of the dead. This was written by Miss Walk. Rarely has a more impressive scene ever been presented on the boards of the Academy.

The subsequent exercises consisted of songs, dialogues, recitations, &c., in all of which the children acquitted themselves admirably. A striking and pleasant feature was a concert recitation by thirty little girls, entitled "Angling." One of the most prominent of the exercises was the piece, "What May Be," written for the occasion by A. M. Spangler, and rendered by the children in a style that won the hearty plaudits of the audience. The declamation of "Socrates Snooks," by Mark Dean, was exceedingly well done, as were, in fact, all the pieces.

A brief, appropriate and pointed address by Rev. P. Stryker, D. D., was well received. A more lengthy written discourse was delivered by Rev. G. F. Cain.

A collection was taken up, the proceeds of which are to be applied to the Chapel building fund.

Taken as a whole, the celebration was a complete success, reflecting credit upon all concerned, and winning, we hope, a large number of new friends for these popular institutions.

LOCAL CHOWDER.—Everybody to-day seems to be buying flowers. The man or woman who doesn't love flowers is a man or woman to be regarded as at least deserving of suspicion that their moral graces need thorough hoeing. We have known people who alike entertained aversion toward music and babies. We never yet knew a person who disliked flowers. In the bosom of every woman whom we ever knew was implanted an appreciation for rosebuds and johnny jump-ups. When Mrs. Brilliant was in a position of affluence, and lived in Broad street, her windows gleamed with the japonica and the Japanese lily. Though her husband was ruined by copper stocks, her window in Tasker street is still crowned with a floral decoration. The only difference is that instead of a display of lilies in a jardiniere of porcelain, she now contents herself with an exposition of verbenas blooming in an unpainted starch box.

"A woman in thy hours of ease," etc.

In Fifth street market, at a game stall, this morning, we noticed a wild swan. The bird measured about six feet across its outspread pinions. Its bill was as black and as highly polished as a piece of ebony. From the goose the species is as entirely distinct as that of the goose from the duck, the rabbit from the hare, or the rat from the mouse. The trouble is, that no one but an ornithological expert can tell the difference between a swan aged two years and a corresponding bird aged two hundred.

The amiable Commissioner of City Property returned last evening from a three days' examination of the suburban roads. He this morning reports a great improvement over the state of things existing two weeks ago. The Twenty-third and Bridge street entrance to Fairmount Park has been put in order. How long it will remain so depends entirely upon the number of hundreds of overladen ice-wagons that continue to travel over it. What is here wanted is wooden or Belgian pavement. To the apology for paving that hereabouts exists the wheels of the ice-carts pay about as much respect as is paid to a near-sighted school-teacher by an unprincipled school-boy. Beyond this our rosy-cheeked friend, the Commissioner, complacently plumes himself that if matters and things are not any better, they might be a great deal worse.

In the drug store of Doctor Jayne has just been deposited a snake more than eighteen inches long, expelled from the body of a human being. It is a perfect serpent in every respect. It is marked with alternate rings of black and white, about an inch and a half in length. The matter will probably be elaborated by the medical journals. All our reporter has to say is that of the various gentlemen who have examined the reptile, not one can identify it with any species that lives on the outside of folks instead of the inside. As a curiosity it is certainly rare.

THE RELAPSING FEVER.—The endurance of the resident and visiting physicians at the Almshouse, at this moment, is rather severely tested. Into the sick wards of its hospital have lately been received about a hundred and fifty unfortunate creatures, poisoned by the death-miasm that saturates the atmosphere of the Fourth Ward slums in the vicinity of Bedford, Baker and Spafford streets. The name given to this malady is the relapsing fever. At intervals the medical world is interested in sets of symptoms coincident in a sufficient number of cases to warrant it a subject of especial study, if not of especial nomenclature. This was the case with Bright's disease of the kidneys, and with what for a season or two was classified as "spotted fever." To the list is now to be added the malady originating in the district above-named, and unpremeditatedly endowed with the title of "relapsing fever." That its type is not especially frightful, our reporter yesterday learned. Thus far, under the assiduous watchfulness of the Almshouse physicians, no patient was reported to us as having sunk into collapse. Opinions as to the contagious character of the disease are divided. Doctor Elmer has been seized with it, and with symptoms of such severity that the physicians on duty take the same precautions to avert infection from it as they would do in diseases set down as contagious beyond all dispute.

The only person who sets by the bedside of the victims is Rev. Father O'Brien, the Catholic priest assigned by the Bishop to the onerous and self-sacrificing labors of Chaplain to the Almshouse. The oneness of this gentleman's purpose was not at first understood by the surgeons in charge. The columns of the BULLETIN some time ago were the medium through which he complained that from the bedsides of dying Catholics he had been driven while administering the sacrament that to the moribund Catholic is believed to a certain extent to be his passport to Heaven. The gentleman who thus came into verbal collision with Father O'Brien is the same Doctor Elmer who is now lying so severely sick.

At the Almshouse hospital no more of this class can at present be received. Those sent from Bedford street yesterday were sent, as a matter of necessity, to the pesthouse on Lamb Tavern road. The disease is caused by a peculiar condition of the atmosphere. It isn't closely akin either to the jungle fever, to the fever that follows the inhalation of the Pontine marshes, or to that which wipes out the British consuls at Sierra Leone. It arises from the continuous inhalation of an atmosphere made up of nameless filth, of an unvarying diet of foul food, of frightful uncleanliness and of deadly fluids in the shape of stimulants.

The success with which the malady is treated at the Almshouse hospital is something almost wonderful. A change of air, even for a quarter of a mile distant, has been known to revive a drooping patient almost as effectually as a change from the atmosphere of Canada to that of New Orleans. The recovery of the poor creatures at Blockley may be tardy. Of any serious loss of lives the attending doctors express no apprehension. The curative means employed are actively effective. With a removal from the cause of the disease, a comparatively revivifying result is the immediate consequence. The unexpected visitation is causing a severe strain upon the Steward's and the physicians' supplies. The Guardians of the Poor are individually and collectively giving personal attention to the subject of the sick, and are leaving no pains unspared to assuage the sufferings with which the victims are wrestling. While the doctors are very chary in expression of opinion as to contagiousness of the disease, our reporter would counsel every one to defer a proposed visit to the "relapsing" ward of its hospital unless impelled by the most special business.

THE DISTRICT COURT.—The following correspondence has passed between Charles E. Lex, Esq., and a number of the prominent lawyers and business men of this city:

"PHILADELPHIA, May 3, 1870.—Charles E. Lex, Esq.—Dear Sir: The Legislature having passed an act authorizing the election of an additional Judge for the District Court for the city and county of Philadelphia, the approaching convention of the Republican party will be called upon to name a candidate for that position. The undersigned, your brethren of the Bar, from their personal and professional acquaintance with you for many years and their belief in your legal ability, strict integrity and patriotic devotion to principle, consider you eminently fitted for that office, and would request permission to present your name as a candidate for the Republican nomination.

"Very respectfully, yours, &c."

"PHILADELPHIA, May 5, 1870.—To Horace Binney, Eli K. Price, F. Carroll Brewster, B. H. Brewster, Alexander Henry, Esqrs., and others—Gentlemen: I acknowledge the receipt of your kind letter asking me to permit my name to be used for the office of a Judge of the District Court, before the approaching Convention, and reply thereto that it is at your service, and that if nominated by the Republican party I shall be pleased to submit myself to the suffrage of my fellow-citizens.

"With thanks to you for the interest manifested in my behalf, I remain

"Yours, sincerely, CHARLES E. LEX."

SCIENTIFIC MICROCOSM.—Last evening the first public lecture under the auspices of the Scientific Microcosm was delivered by Prof. E. J. Houston, in the High School lecture-room.

Through the ingenuity of one of the members of the Microcosm, the Holtz Electrical machine, which refuses to work in damp weather, was by means of a hot iron got into fine running order, when a series of most beautiful experiments were shown. Of these the most rare and striking was the passing of an electric current from a Rhumkorff coil through a variety of Geysler tubes. A variety of beautiful tints were produced by the passing current. Another interesting experiment was "The Philosopher's egg—showing the appearance of the electric current passing through a vacuum. The crowning experiment of the evening was an exhibition of the Gassiot Cascade, in which an emerald-green vase appears, overflowing with a pink and purple auroral light. This was truly beautiful. At the close of the lecture the next meeting of the Microcosm was announced for Wednesday evening, June 1st, after which the large audience dispersed.

ASSAULTING A POLICEMAN.—Cornelius Gibbons has been behaving badly recently, and, it is alleged, his father directed that he should be arrested. Yesterday, at Fourth and Chestnut streets, Reserve Officer Burns undertook to carry out the request of the elder Gibbons. Cornelius, it is alleged, pitched into the officer and gave him a pretty severe beating. He was arrested, however, and taken before Ald. Kerr, by whom he was held in $1,200 bail for trial.

A ROUGH CUSTOMER.—William Bruce, residing on Vine street, near Thirteenth, who was arrested sometime ago for beating his wife, began to break things in his house last evening. A policeman who interfered is alleged to have been pretty roughly handled. Bruce was arrested. After a hearing before Ald. Jones, he was committed in default of $600 bail to answer at Court.

SCHOONER ROBBED.—The schooner Henrietta Miller, which is loaded and ready for departure, was boarded at Kaighn's Point, sometime during last night, and was robbed of her flying jib. The stolen property was subsequently recovered on the lower end of Smith's Island, by Officer English, of the Delaware Harbor Police.

INCENDIARISM.—An old unoccupied foundry, at the southeast corner of Fifth and Canal streets, in the First Ward, was destroyed by fire, about two o'clock, this morning. The loss is estimated at $1,000. The building belonged to Charles Griffith. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

ALLEGED WIFE-BEATER.—Lewis Carrigan, residing on Warnock street, above Girard avenue, was arrested last night upon the charge of beating his wife. He had a hearing before Alderman Hood, and was committed to answer.

MAN STRUCK.—William Hopkins, aged 17 years, colored, residing at 1006 Rodman street, was struck with a slung shot, severely cutting his head, by another colored man, name unknown to him. He was sent to the Pennsylvania Hospital.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.—An attempt was made on Wednesday morning last to enter the dwelling of Constantine Myers, at Richmond and Bridge streets, in Bridesburg. The back shutter was forced open, but the noise aroused the family, and the thief escaped over the back fence.

IDENTIFIED.—One of the men who was killed near the Fish House by being run over by a train of cars, as mentioned under the head of "New Jersey Matters" in to-day's paper, has been identified as Wm. Brown, a stevedore, residing on Lombard street, in this city.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—A young man named George Cowell was arrested last night, at Seventh and Race streets, by Policeman Miller. It is alleged that he attacked a man at Seventh and Race streets, and stole his gold watch and pocket-book. Alderman Godbou sent the accused to prison.

CORRECTION.—In our notice of the arbitration of Messrs. J. F. Tobias & Co., yesterday, Alfred G. Baker, Esq., President of the Franklin Fire Insurance Company, was spoken of as Treasurer of the Company. The error occurred through a misprint.

CORNER-LOUNGERS.—The Twelfth District police, last evening, arrested six young men on the charge of corner-lounging. The prisoners were held to bail by Alderman Hood.

CHESS.—Line 6 of the article on odds in the "Chess Column" should read: "The plan is most especially to be commended at games of odds, &c."

MR. HASELTINE'S FINAL SALE.—The second and closing peremptory sale of the entire Haseltine collection takes place at the Galleries to-night, the best pictures of the gallery being included. The first half were sold last evening, by Mr. Scott, at a decided sacrifice. One of the most adequate prices obtained was that for Boulanger's "Escort to the Bath," which was knocked down to Mr. Henry Gibson, for $1,500.

THE NEW DOMINION.

The Tariff Agitation—Retaliation—Red River Matters—Change of Political Sentiment—the Union a Failure—Disintegration and Annexation.

An Ottawa despatch in the Tribune says:

A very uneasy feeling prevails among the larger importers, caused by Sir John A. MacDonald's vaunt that by a war of tariffs he would impede and punish the United States for refusing to grant reciprocity. Telegrams from New York and Washington hint in most unmistakable terms that such conduct will be sure to lead to the refusal on the part of Congress to allow goods bought by Canadians in England to pass through American territory in bond. This would seriously delay all importations, and in fact annihilate Canadian commerce with England during the winter. A clearer case of being hoist with one's own petard it is hard to imagine.

The refusal to allow Canadian troops to pass through American territory, although not at all unexpected, has caused much angry comment, and the moving of the steamer Michigan to Lake Superior has added fuel to the fire. I hear a rumor that a telegram was sent to Mr. Thornton to ask if a peace expedition, for purposes of police and protection against the Indians, were to be sent to Winnipeg, and affairs quietly settled, the men would be allowed to pass by Pembina. I also hear that the reply was unfavorable.

A change of political sentiment is sweeping over the country. It cannot be denied that confederation has proved a failure. There has been serious discontent in Nova Scotia, where the people look toward the Republic. In New Brunswick there has been less trouble, but the inhabitants have fixed their eyes upon the Stars and Stripes. In Quebec the English minority have been more outspoken and decided in their preferences, because they felt more intolerably than others the deadly weight of commercial stagnation, ecclesiastical influence, and general conservatism. Ontario alone—prosperous, liberal, and progressive—has held aloof. She has been making money and enjoying freedom, and she has been blind to the advantages and necessities of American connection. But even Ontario has not been proof against the legislation of this session. The money bill first touched them, restricting the rate of interest on all securities to six per cent. The ascendancy of the Catholic minority, the obstruction offered to international trade, the enormous expenses of Government, the venal actions of Ministers, has convinced Ontario that under Confederation Canada has not become an Arcadia. The disappointment is bitter, and the reaction will be powerful.

"Why not have a Federal Union?" I suggested to a prominent member this morning. "Why not wipe out local Legislatures, and weld the whole Dominion into one homogeneous mass?" "The thing is impossible," he replied. "The lines that divide Province from Province are not on the map merely. If Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario were abolished, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario would remain. The first has her commerce, fisheries, mines. The second has her timber. Quebec is Catholic and French. Ontario is Protestant and Free Trade. How can you ever weld chaos into one people of common interests?" "That is the truth," I answered. "What will the end be?" "Disintegration," he replied. "And then?" "And then," he concluded, "tout ce qui tombe va au soldat—the fruit which falls is the soldier's share." Let the Americans wait patiently. The pear is ripening.

Sir Stafford Northcote, late Secretary for India in the Disraeli Cabinet, is here. As President of the Hudson's Bay Company, he is engaged in consultations with the Government.

—Gilmanton, N. H., has snow drifts twelve feet deep, yet the people are modest and unassuming about it.

OUR TEN-DOLLAR All-Wool Spring Suits and Five and Seven Dollar Overcoats, that have caused so much excitement this spring, were all disposed of on Saturday last that we had in store, before three o'clock, and hundreds had to go away disappointed. So we say to our friends and patrons—Come early, before the rush commences.

THE RICE DIVORCE SUIT for fraud in age is causing great excitement in Boston. It should warn young men not to marry in haste. Rice is but 22, his bride 37. He swears that she made him believe she was but his own age, by using Magnolia Balm upon her face, neck and hands. Poor youth. He probably found her elbows weren't quite so soft and pretty. Ought Hagan to be indicted? We know of many similar cases. This Balm gives a most wonderful pearly and natural complexion, to which we don't object. We like pretty women. To finish the picture, they should use Lyon's Kathairon upon the hair. With pearly chin, rosy cheeks, and soft, luxuriant tresses, they become irresistible.

CITY ORDINANCES.

RESOLUTION APPROVING THE SUreties of John L. Hill, Collector of Delinquent Taxes, &c.

Resolved, By the Select and Common Councils of the City of Philadelphia, That Thomas W. Price, Samuel Miller and John H. Jones are hereby approved as the sureties of John L. Hill, Collector of Delinquent Taxes, and that the City Solicitor is hereby directed to prepare the proper bond, with warrant of attorney, for said parties to execute, and to cause a judgment to be entered thereon; and further, to file agreements of record that the lien of the judgment entered in pursuance to said warrant of attorney shall only operate on and against the respective properties submitted to the Committee on Finance by said sureties; that is to say, the lien of the judgment against Thomas W.
