HENRY PHILLIPPI, CARPENTER AND BUILDER, NO. 1024 SANSOM STREET, LITTER FROM VICTOR HUGO ON ADERICA AND THE WORKING-MEN.

General Cluseret, a Frenchmen, now in New York, and formerly in the United States military service, where his career was not brilliant, appears to be charged with a mission from the associations of workingmen in France to those of this country. He has written a letter to Victor Hugo on the subject, and has received a reply, of which the follow-

"Liberty is a means, at the same time that it is an of ject. You understand it. So the toilers of France have elected you their representative in America; and I congratulate you and I congratulate them.

"Labor is now the great right, as it is the great duty. The future belongs henceforth to two men: the man who thinks and the man who labors. In truth these two men are but one, for to think is to labor.

"I am one of those who have made the suffering classes the study of their lives. The

"I love America as my own country. The great Republic of Washington and John Brown is a glory to civilization. Let her not hestate to take her part, in a sovereign way, in the government of the world. In a social point of view, let her emancipate the toilers; in a political point of view, let her liberate Cuba. Eurore has its eyes fixed on America. That which America does will be well done. America has the double-honor of being freelike England, and logical like France. We applaud her patriotically in all her advances. We are the fellow-citizens of every nation that is great. that is great

THE CUBAN BEBELLION.

General Jordan in New York—His Re-ports of the Situation. The New York Standard contains the follow

General Jordan, lately Commander-in-Chief of the Patriot Army of Cuba, arrived here yes-terday in the steamer Morro Castle from Nas-sau, N. P. He was enthusiastically received, as might have been imagined, by representa-tive Cubans and personal friends. The General was accompanied by several members of his staff, and was, though fatigued, looking inspirits.

In regard to the condition of the Cuban cause the General said: "The island is in revolt from Colon, near the centre, to its eastern extremity. The sent of Government and army organization is at present in the District of Camagueay, which has been the chief seat of the revolutionary spirit for a number of years. The inhabitants are of the first families of Cuba, and are all enthusiastic for the cause. Congress is now in sersion there." ... What about the removal of

Cespedes, General?"
"That is one of the falsehoods of the Associated Press. Congress never had any idding any such thing as to remove him."

About the Negroes.

"How about the negroes?" "In regard to that I must say that they make splendid soldiers. They fight like demons. I have seen them tried very often." Just here we may state that the General has brought with him a colored man who was farmerly an offi him a colored man who was formerly an offi-cer in his (the General's) command, and who comes to this country for the express pur-pose of trying to convince Mr. Sumner that the slaves have been really emancipated. On this point the General says:

"The American people ought to understand this question. The senior officer of my staff emancipated a hundred slaves, who now serve as soldiers under the command of their former master."

What Has Been Done. "What has been done in the past winter, General?"

"Well, the enemy have had about 8,000 men in active service, of which 800, including 40 officers, were put horse de combat, and, on my honor as a soldier, I had in the whole campaign only 15 men killed and wounded." The Climate. "Is it not very unhealthy there?"

"Not for Americans, I think; they seem to stand it well, but it is death on Europeans, chiefly because of their utter disregard of sanitary precautions. A guerilla or strictly defensive warfare would drain Spain of 20,000 to 50,000 soldiers annually, and she could not stand that very long. On the other hand, the Cubans can continue that sort of thing intefinitely. I am too old a man for that, however, I want to get arms enough to make shorter. I want to get arms enough to make shorter work of it." The General also said that a great need was clothing, for want of which there is great suffering. After the battle of Los Minas, his troops dug up the enemy's dead to the num-ber of 180 for the purpose of securing their

The Spaniards.

"What is the Spanish force, General?"
"I think, on the whole Island, there are about 40,000 regulars and 25,000 volunteers, which latter force is worthless, except for How, then, have they only 8,000 active meh?"

"Because they are obliged to keep over twenty thousand men guarding plantations and collecting taxes. If these were withdrawn the plantations would soon be destroyed. This fact, with the necessary garrisons, &c., leaves them a small force available for tighting."

"Is it true about the atrocities practiced by the Spaniards?"

the Spaniards?" Yes, and more than has been told. They kill all, not only all prisoners, but also all mer found at work—non-combatants. I believe they are the veriest flends out of the infernal regions."
"How about similar accusations made against the Cubans?"

"They are false. 1 invariably pardoned all prisoners.—This is one of the Associated Press Lies, of which there have been no end.—Their agent at Havana is one Adolphe Strauss, a creature of the Governor-General, and a hanger-on at the bower but a control of the Covernor Country and a covernor covernor covernor covernor covernor covernor covernor covernor cov his house. His reports in relation to affairs on this island are invariantly false. I am going to see Mr. Simonton and try to convince him of the gross injustice this man is doing us. He claims to have once been a Confederate soldier, but I don't believe it—he is too contemptible a liar."

As an instance of these falsehoods, the General said that the reports of Cubans coming is and giving themselves up are manufactured by the Spaniards, by the ingenious plan of sending a force into the island to seize whole families, and when their distracted husbands and fathers come to find them they are paraded

THE GREEK BRIGANDS.

Details of the tapture and Murder of English Travelers—The tireck Government Heid Responsible for the Out-The London Times publishes the following

The London Times publishes the following particulars of the capture by Greek brigands of a party of English travelers, already reported by telegraph:

On Monday, the 11th of April, at 6.30 A. M., the party, consisting of Lord and Lady Muncaster, Mr. Frederick Vyner, Mr. Herbert, one of the Secretaries to Her Majesty's Legation; Count de Boyl, Secretary to the Italian Legation, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd, with their young child, five years of age, left Athens in two carriages, under the escort of four mounted gendarnes, for Marathon, accompanied by a dragoman.

After exploring the scene of one of the most interesting events in history, they started to return to Athens. At 4 P. M. entering a thickly wooded—part of the road,—near—the-bridge of Pikerneas, two mounted gendarmes riding one on either side of the carriages, and two in frent, a volley was suddenly fired into them, killing one of the gendarmes, and mortally wounding another. a dragoman.

them. Rilling one of the gendarmes, and mortally wounding another.

The road was immediately filled with brigands, who forced the occupants out of the carriages, using much violence, striking, though not severely, Lady Muncaster, and tearing off her watchrand lockets, and menacing with knives the lives of all. They hurried their captives up the side of Mount Pentelicus, but had scarcely got 50 yards from the road when the six infantry soldiers came up and at once commenced tiring into the brigands, who returned the fire.

The soldiers, finding themselves overmatched (the brigands being upward of 20 in number), happily discontinued the engagement, which would have been probably fattal to the captives, who were collected in a body in their midst. The brigands then hurried their prisoners up the slope of the Pentelicus, and after two hours' walking they put the ladies on the horses of the dismounted gendarmes, and, with one servant, let them go to tally wounding another.

armes, and, with one servant, let them go to

After the ladies had gone the five gentlemen consulted what was to be done, and it was agreed to ask for one of their number to be allowed to go to Athens to arrange for payment of the ransom they demanded, and an amnesty. After several hours talk between the dragoman and the captain of the band, the terms of ransom were settled so far as that the captain of the brigands reduced the enormous sum demanded of £50,000 to the still enormous and extravagant sum of £25,000.

enormous and extravagant sum of £25,000.

He would not, however, suffer any further discussion, but, growing impatient, said emphatically, "Finish quickly." The captives then arranged that Lord Muneaster should be then arranged that Lord-Muneaster should be the person to go in and make the arrangements necessary for his own and companions release—a promise being exacted by the brigands that failing in his mission, he was to return, and that the lives of the others depended on his success. They promised to let Lord Muneaster go that night, but did not do so, as they could get no guide, and none of the brigands dared to be seen with one of their captives.

On Tuesday, throughout the night, they walked over boggy plains and up and down hills, wet through from heavy rain, in which they lay down for three hours, till 6 in the morning, when they started again, and then stopped for the day in a ravine, where a shepherd was found and a small cart obtained, in which Lord Muneaster proceeded to Athens.

which Lord Muneaster proceeded to Athens. He, of course, made immediate arrangements for sending food and clothing to his unfor-tunate friends, and for obtaining the money, which was promptly and generously placed at his disposal by a merchant in Athens. The only difficulty lay in the transportation of so large a sum in gold.

Occupation of Greece Threatened. The Loudon Times, of April 25, in commenting on the news of the massacre, said Assuming it to be true that the impetuous pursuit by the Greek Government occasioned the massacre of the captives, there is a temptation, almost irresistible, to condemn their impetuosity. Such a conclusion would be hasty, if not unjust. The consequences have been most lamentable, but we cannot blame the Ministry for them.

On the following day, however, the same paper, in strong terms, proceeds to arraign the Greek Government and threaten the occupation of Greece. It says: we believe this massacre will prove to be a greatpolitical event. It has filled up the cup of Greek misgovernment. It has exhausted the patience of Europe. At this moment it would be useless to talk of Greek regeneration or Greek advancement. tion or Greek advancement; no one would listen to the advocates of a nation whose soil is infested always and everywhere with unpunished crime, and whose historic almost as inaccessible to the intelligent traveler as the cities of Tartary.

We have no hesitation in saying that the time has come when this scandalous misgovernment should be brought to an end. The Three-Protecting-Powers-did-not-intend-to create within the limits of Europe a petty

State which should be a disgrace to them-selves and to civilization. But what else can Freece be said now to be? There are few of its friends who will deny that its advancement must depend on the con-trol which statesmen wiser than its own rulers exercise over it. Safety of life and property at least must be assured if the tutelage of the Great Powers is not to be a mockery. Foreigners on their legitimate business must not be captured and murdered in a country which enjoys our protection. If its rulers are powerless, then authority must be exerted by other hands. In 1854, Athens was occupied by a French and British force to check the warlike propensities of the Court, and we do not fear to say that a similar step would be equally justifiable now. We spent nine millions upon an expedition to Abyssinia, undertaken at less provocation.

We should have no such difficulties as awaited us there to encounter in Course. awaited us there to encounter in Greece Three or four regiments, under an efficient commander, such as our Indian army or the

of England before many months were over. THE COAL TRADE.

Lohigh and Schrylkill.

The Lehigh region is still as active as it has been for several weeks. There are now no serious difficulties with the men, anywhere but at Summit Hill and Nesquehoning. At Audenried the slate-picken boys have struck, but the miners are working. How pear the but the miners are working. How near the Lehigh Company's men are to a settlement cannot be definitely stated, as the miners are cannot be definitely stated, as the miners are naturally very quiet as to their plans. We still have, however, hopes of an early resumption. The men at Summit Hill are an excellent class of miners; they are good citizens, temperate and respectable, and have very good judgment, which they have frequently shown heretofore when difficulties nave arisen between them and the company. We are confident they will not let themselves be betrayed into any rash disappagment, with be betrayed into any rash-disagraemant with their employers if mild and conservative ac-tion on their part will avoidsuch a disastrous state of affairs. We hope for a compromise. Schuylkill is still idle. We have no reports that give us any encouragement. There seems to be no, efforts towards a rettlement and there is no telling how long the strike will last. The men can live forever, if they will, by going into other regions. If the parties interested do nothing, nothing will be done; resumption will never come of itself.

RITUALISSI IN LONDON.

A Ceremony at St. Albans.

An unusually grand and ornate ceremonial took place on a recent Sunday at St. Albans, Holborn, in celebration of the resurrection of the Saviour. The extreme ritualistic character of the service, says the Orchestra, will be understood when it is stated that "those only who are members of or outlide in connection. who are members of, or -guilds in connection with, the church, or whose sins have been absolved in the confessional," were allowed to take part in its most important stage. This was the procession, which was arranged at three o'clock in the following or ler: Incense pearer and how in which currillers. was the procession, which was arranged at three o'clock in the following or ler: Incense-bearer and boys in white surplices; twenty choristers and precentor, similarly attired; three priests, followed by about twelve boys in scarlet cassocks and white surplices. Mr. Mackonochie, with two boys holding up his train; banner-bearer, carrying a magnificent blue and white silk banner; boys of a guild, about sixty in number; boys of a guild, about sixty in number; banner-bearer, followed by about fifty members of a brotherhood with yellow, embers of a brotherhood with yellow, embers of a brotherhood with yellow, embers of Nazareth, in scarlet collarets and emboidered capes, wearing medals and crucifixes; one of the sisterhood in connection with the church, carrying a large silk banner sisters of the Order of "Mary the Virgin," about eighty in number, in white vills; banner-bearer, followed by a large number of their different orders. Then followed members of "The Holy Family," and those who had been to confession. Those constituting the procession then marched round the church, after which the Rev. Mr. Stanton preached a sermon. It may be added that the Rev. E. F. Russell, a nephew of Lord Russell, is one of the clergy who minister at St. Alban's.

AN ANCIENT PROPERT AGAINST THE POPFI

A writer in the Intermedianre des Unercheurs et des Curieux states that he has found the ollowing in a manuscript in the Imperial Library:

"May 13, 1665.—Ine Nuncio had an audience of the King some days back, and com-plained of certain Parlsian doctors of theology who spoke insultingly against the infallibility of the Pope. The King told him that he would follow the example of his predecessors, would follow the example of his predecessors, who had never interfered with the liberty of the Faculté de Théologie to utter and write fheir views upon matters connected with their own profession. After that the Nuncio presented to the King the Papal brief, telling him that it was very true that the Italian doctriss taught the infallibility of the Pope and his superiority to a temporal sovereign. The King returned answer that if he had any of his subjects who taught this infallibility he would chastise them in such style that others would have no desire to teach it afterwards, and that neither the Nuncio nor the Pope should prevent him. The King, while making this reply, had his arm raised and his fist-closed. The Nuncio departed very much disconcerted. The Abbé Le Caums was one of those who noticed it first at the house of the Abbé de Coaslin, where the Nuncio had just changed his court dress. The King went afterwards to the Queen Mother to tell her what had happened at the audience of the) Nuncio, and, among other things, told her that he knew well who it was that was doing all this, and that if these people annoyed him more they should see what would happen. who had never interfered with the liberty of

ANOTHER UNSAFE BUILDIN

Panicin the war Department.

Considerable apprehension has been felt by the clerks in the War Department at Washing lest a similar calamity to that which has betell the Richmond State House happen in the case of the War Department building. Doubts as to its safety were entertained, says the Washington Republican, a long time buck, and led to a thorough examination of the building some three years since, when it was pronounced unsafe for the purposes of a public department, and it was recommended to put up another building in its place. Some of the rooms are so shaky that the clerks are unable to write legibly when any one passes over the rooms are so snaky that the clerks are unable to write legibly when any one passes over the floor, and almost all the ceilings show more or less depression. The two upper stories are comparatively new, having been built at the commencement of the war, but the lower stories were not built with a view to an additional superstructure, and the building. additional superstructure, and the building has consequently been rendered unsafe. In the fourth story is stored an immense quantity of books and papers, which has called the attention of officials to the necessity of at once removing the same.

A CORDIAL WELCOME.

How Georgia Receives Her Governor.

The Governor of Georgia evidently has a pleasant time of it. To sojourn for a month in Washington for the purpose of getting his State admitted, and to be welcomed home by such a salutatory as the following from a Savannah paper, must be a sweet boon:

"Welcome home! alien, yet Governor; enemy, yet guler; traiter, and yet dicator!

enemy, yet ruler; traitor, and yet dictator! Welcome home! Oh, it were but natural if the snakes coiled about the flowers in your yard—if daggers gleamed in the moonlight on your window-sill! But we are above poisoning or assassination! Live where you can poison the fountains of her land! Live, but the eternal clutch of conscience will fasten on your soul and you are Stantif Trees on he your soul, and you are Satan if you can be
