BUCHANAN'S CABINET.

Judge Black and Thurley Wood as His

Judge Black and Thurley Wood as Historians.

Judge Jeremiah S. Black, who was Attorney-General under President Buchanan, and who was transferred to the State Department in December, 1860, when the general disruption of the Cabinet took place, has appeared as the champion of his old Administration—and of Edwin M. Stanton!—A more incongruous set of clients can scarcely be conceived, nor a more extraordinary advocate. Mr. Black deals largely in bitter personalities, with which we have nothing to do, but he makes some assertions which are so widely at variance with the accepted record of the period to which his story relates, that we feel called upon to consider them. His article appears in the Galaxy for June, and is written in answer to one on Mr. Stanton by Senator Wilson: He asserts that President Buchanan was not the weak and irresolute man he is generally supposed to have

President Buchanan was not the weak and irresolute man he is generally supposed to have been; that the last months of his Administration were not marked by perturbation or indecision; that no member of his Cabinet dared to act in the interests of the embryo rebellion while in office, and that the accusations which have been made to that effect are base fabrications. He denies, scriatim, the charges that Cobb deranged the Treasury; that Floyd scattered the army; that Toucey sent the navy on distant service; that Thompson permitted the robbery of trust funds, or that Mr. Stanton, while acting as Mr. Buchanan's Attorney-General, ever wavered in his Democratic interpretation of the law as to coercion of States by the Federal Government. He declares that Mr. Stanton's Dew cratic opinions did not change when the war opened, but that he was emphatic in his professed adherence to them up to within a few weeks of his appointment as Secretary of War by Mr. Lincoln, in January, 1862. He admits, however, that his conversion was a real one, and was immediately followed by a change of party relations.

conversion was a real one, and was immediately followed by a change of party relations. Judge Black has the grace to say that "he was not a mere fawning hypocrite."

We are not prepared to accept Mr. Black's assertions, nor to admit the force of his arguments. It is natural that he should seek to retrieve the will reput in a factorial the collection.

retrieve the evil reputation of the only Administration with which he was ever in any way connected, but for that very reason his statements must be received with allowance. We certainly are not disposed to accept a justification of Mr. Buchanan any the more readily because it is disguised under a pre-tended defence of Mr. Stanton.

tended defence of Mr. Stanton.

By a singular coincidence, the number of the Galaxy containing Judge Black's defence also contains a very interesting chapter from Mr. Thurlow Weed's forthcoming autobiography, bearing strongly upon the question we are considering. It gives a sketch of some of the most important incidents which transpired at the inception of the rebellion, and during that memorable period in which occurred what Laboulaye called "the uprising of a great people." Mr. Weed states that while present at Mr. Lincoln's inauguration, on the 4th of March, 1861, he discovered unmistaly ble evidence that rebellion had been deliberately planned, and that preparations for hely planned, and that preparations for active hostilities were made. The magnitude of these preparations, as detailed by him, forbid the idea that Mr. Buchanan and his Cabinet should have been in ignorance of them, while outside persons saw all that was going on.

It is ascertained beyond all doubt that Mr

It is ascertained beyond all doubt that Mr. Lincoln's assassination had been determined while he was on his way for Washington, and the supposition that the event was to have been the signal for other important demonstrations is strengthened, if not confirmed, by Mr. Weed's narrative. He states that secret information was conveyed to him, while in Washington, that Harper's Ferry was to be seized, and that shortly afterward similar information was given with regard to the Navy Yard at Gosport. In both instances those important points were occu-pied by the rebels before the Government could take measures for securing an adequate defence. This, it will be remembered, was shortly after the 4th of March, and indicates a concert of action on the part of the rebels not at all consistent with an assumption that the Southern members, at least, of President

Buchanan's Cabinet, were in the dark respect-

HAVANA, May 14.—On board the Pajaro del Oceano there came here the two Cubans, Ga-par and Diego Aguero, companions to the un-fortunate General Golcouria in his endeavor to leave the island. These two gentlemen succeeded in getting away from Guajaba Island or Key, and in passing over to Romano Key, but there were seen by a fisherman and denounced to the Spaniards and captured. They state that the Canadian major who

They state that the Canadian major who was with them has probably died of hunger and fatigue, and that the four railers have surely escaped. A Cuban report denies the death of the Canadian major, and saffirms that he has reached one of the Bahamas in company with one of the sailors. though they arrived at 9 P. M., by 10 P. M., or an hour later, they had been sentenced to death by the garrote—a packed drum-head court-martial having disposed of their case with the same haste and speed that characterized the proceedings against General Giocouria. They were soon after placed in capilla, and this evening at 4 P. M. will be garroted in the presence, no doubt, of thousands of Spanish volunteers and loyalists. Their friends say they will meet death with the same wonderful composure and fortitude that General Golcouria displayed. Like him they will be denied an opiortunity to make addresses from the scaffold. The elder of the victims, Col. Gaspar Aguero, Brigadier-General by brevet, I believe, is the same Aguero captured by Count de Valmaseda in January, 1868, during the battle of Bonilla, he (Aguero) being then insurgent Governor of the district of Nuevitas. He was sent to Spain, where he escaped from the authorities, went to the United States, and then returned to the island, some six months

The Spaniards of Havana are very much vexed at the discharge, in Key West, of the Cubans accused of the murder of Señor Casta-

A Chinaman Assassimates His Purchased Wife,

[From the Sacramento Reporter, May 10.]

Yesterday morning a young man brought word to the police that a Chinese woman bad been almost cut to pieces, and that her assailant had committed suicide. Officers proceeded to a cellar on I street, and in a back room found a woman on the floor, entirely insensible, and weltering in blood. In another room they discovered a man stupefied from room found a woman on the floor, entirely insensible, and weltering in blood. In another room they discovered a man stupefied from the effects of poison. Doctors were immediately called, who dress the mangled body of the woman, on which no less than twenty-two wounds had been inflicted. Both arms were broken, and in places the bones laid bare. Horrible gashes were made on either side of her neck, one of her breasts was nearly cut off, and other parts of her person dreadfully mangled. She was carried to the hospital, with small hopes of her recovery. The man, Ti Lee, was taken to the station-house, and a Chinese doctor, who was supposed to understand the nature of the poison used, directed to use his skill in bringing him to, which he did at once by administering a strong emetic. On being restored to his senses. These confessed the deed and his murderous intentions; but, in extenuation, said that the woman had for a long time urged-him to purchase her of her owner that she might be his wife, and professed great lovo-for him. He believed her story, and did as directed, paying $500 in gold coin for her.

He said she was very good to him for some time, but has lately been receiving the attentions of another Chiumman, which caused quarreling, and yesterday morning told him (Ti Lee) that she would have nothing more to do with him, and kicked him; and said she would put a knife in his side. He professes do with him, and kicked him, and said she would put a knife in his side. He professes to have been fully impressed with the belief that she was in earnest in this threat, and, in the full belief that she was dead, claims to the full belief that she was dead, claims to have been fully justified in putting her beyond the power of putting them into execution. He described the implements with which he did the butchery, and said they were a knife and a hatchet, and were in the room whore he lay. This case, fully illustrates the condition of the Chinese women in our midst, and quite as fully the barbarous vengeance of the class of men who abide with them. It is hardly as fully the barbarous vengeance of the class of men who abide with them. It is hardly possible that the woman can live, but if she does we may get at particulars that will set this matter in even a more glaring light. Paving With Ashes.

The following is the communication re-ceived by Select Council yesterday, from Mahlon H. Dickinson, Chief Commissioner of Highways: "To the Honorable the Select-Council-GEN-

To the nonorante the Select Council—Gen-thems. On the 21th day of April last I re-ceived from the Assistant Clerk of Select Council the following communication: "CLERK'S OFFICE SELECT COUNCIL, PHILADELPHIA, April 29, 1870. "To Mahlon H. Dickinson, Chief Commus-sioner of Highways—Sir: This is to certify that the following is a true and correct copy of the original resolution approved by Select Couscil the 28th day of April, A. D. 1870, entitled A Resolution of Request to the Chief Commissions of Highest Property of the Chief Commissions of the Chief Chie incr of Highways."

"Resolved by the select council of the city of Philadelphia, That the chief commissioner of Highways be, and he is hereby requested to inform select council, under and by what authors and remarking of the streets. thority the repairs and repaying of the streets of the city is done, by making a bed of laying cobble stones thereon exclusively of ashes.

"'Attest, "Clerk of Select Council."

"Delay in complying with the foregoing request was not for want of proper respect for Select Council, but may be attributed to the fact that the object of the author of the resolution was not very clearly expressed therein. "From the proceedings of Select Council at their meeting as published in the newspapers of the city. I now understand that the author of the resolution desires to know by what authority ashes are used in paving the streets. "To which interrogatory I respectfully reply, by authority of ordinances approved in March and June in the year 1868.

"Notwithstanding Councils have by these ordinances sanctioned the use of asines, the Commissioners of Highways, being satisfied that gravel is far superior for paving, have (where they have authority to do it without contravening the ordinance of Councils) directed the work to be done with gravel.

"During the autire term of the preciant

"During the entire term of the present Board of Commissioners the Supervisors under their control have been required in paving streets to use gravel, and in order to-more effectually prevent the use of ashes (where it was not sanctioned by Councils), the Committee on Highways, at the instance of the Chief Commissioner, adopted a resolution that no bills shall be approved for work done with ashes.

"I am satisfied that through the joint efforts of the committee and commission of high-ways, that the use of ashes, so far as they have authority in the matter, will not be permitted.

"It must be known to most of the members of councils that the highway department has not entire control over the paving and repairing of streets.

ing of streets.

The passenger railway companies repair the streets along the line of their roads; the trustees of the gas works repair the streets where they are broken for the admission of gas pipe, and the contractors for constructing culverts repaye over their work.

"These parties claim the right to use ashes, as councils have, in the ordinances alluded to, permitted their use in new paving, and there being no ordinance to prevent their use in making repairs.

"Through ignorance of these facts, unjust and undeserved censure is daily heaped upon the Highway Department; even those whose duty it is to investigate these things make unfounded charges, and leave the department to bear the odium, when by proper inquiry cor-rect information could be had and the censure rect information could be had and the censure placed where it properly belongs.

"In view of these facts, and in order to relieve this department from a responsibility that does not belong to it, I would recommend that Councils forbid by ordinance the use of ashes for paving or repairing streets by any parties. This belog, I think, the only effectual way to prevent it.

"Yours respectfully,
"Mainon H. Durkinson,
"Chief Commissioner of Highways."

THE OIL BEGIONS. Big Strikes Made.

The Titusville Herald says: One of te finest wells of the season, and one that process to create quite as much excitement as the Brady's Bend or West Hickory well, was suck day before yesterday upon the Dalzell srm, near Petroleum Centre. It is known well No. 2, and for twenty-four hours ening Mon-day noon had produced 359 barils of oil; day noon and produced sor narps of on, it had been pumping four how previous to time of measurement. The ow of gas, which was at first very weak, he increased constantly, and up to eight o'clockast evening there was no apparent diminutio'in the yield of oil. Numerous admiring visits paid their of oil. Numerous admiring visits paid their respects to the new strike yesterdy afternoon, and with a new American fia flying from the top of the derrick, it was in object of general inferest to passengers over the Oil Creek and Allegheny River hilroad. The Dalzell farm, by its several recit strikes, has proved to be valuable propey, and ranks among the best producing farm on the creek. The new well is owned by Josthan Watson, Messrs. Keefer and Potts. Messrs. Keefer and Potts.

A new well is being drilled lear the lowe saw mill about a mile below he old Drake well, and on the left bank of il Creek. It is owned by A. H. Bronson and under the su-pervision of Mr. Fish, of thicity. If successful, a comparatively new erritory will be opened, and of easy access fim this city. A new well was struck yearday upon the Chicago tract, owned by Jessis. Armor & Kemp, which is reported adoing about 70 barrels per day. Another vil upon the same tract, struck yesterday; is refreed at from 65. to 70 barrels; the latter howned by Walt Thompson. The Chicago tet is at the head of the long list of producinfarms and tracts in this vicinity, and during a month of April produced between thirteenha fourteen thou

David Octavius Hill, R. S. A. A cable telegram from London reports the death of this well-known Scotch artist. He was born at Perth in 1800, his father, Mr. Thos. Hill, being a bookseller at that place. At an early age the deceased exhibited a taste for art, and was sent to Edinburgh, where he studied under the late Andrew Wilson. In 1823 his first works, comprising three pictures of Scotch scenery, were exhibited at Edin-burgh and attracted much attention by the ar-tistic skill displayed upon them. Mr. Hill now rose rapidly into prominence as an artist. He received the appointment of Secretary of the New Royal Scottish Academy of Painting in 1830, and it was while holding this position that a controversy was carried on with the dispensers of covernment patternage to art in Section government patronage to art in Scotland which led to the appointment of a commission, whose report was so favorable to the claims of the Academy that a public structure was creeted in Edinburgh for a Scottish National Gallery and Royal Academy. In 1850 Mr. Hill was appointed one of the commissioners of the Board of Manufactures in Scotland. The art of photography was greatly benefited by him, after its discovery in 1843, Mr. Hill by him, after its discovery in 1843, Mr. Hill doing much towards developing its artistic capabilities. Among the principal works of this distinguished artist are his series of sixty pictures, illustrative of "The Land of Burns," "Warwick," "Windsor Castle," "Kenilworth," "Kenmare Bridge," "Valley of the Nith," "The Ballachmyle Viaduct" and "Summer Evening."

The types made one of the Troy papers inform its readers that the polls would be open "from sundown to sunset."
