FLOWER-VOICES. "You flowers that rich in bright and golden green (So hung aloit in boundless denth of blue, The starry lustres of the night are seen), "Speak, ruddy roses, beauties of the grove, You lilies speak, with bells of silver tongue, And sing again the songs of peace and love Which once in happy Eden's vale you

O then there came a far-responsive ring From woodland, upland knoll, and leafy uen, So sad and sweet, as nightingales might sing,

"The song of joy and peace we sing no more Which angel voices warbled o'er us then; Our banishment and yours we must deplore,

And sadly weep with you, ye sons of men. " For drons of blood hedew with red the rose, And falling tears the lity's chaltee fill; While melancholy pipes the wind that blows And sighs in unison the rushing rill.

"Though Solomon, in all his glory clad, Was not so fair as is our bright array, The motioes on our painted leaves are sad, And sorrow is the burden of our lay.

"We are but emblems of the path of pain

Which since the sin of Adam men have trod ; We hope to tell of joy and peace again

When we, and they again, shall be with God." T. M. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE

MEDICAL SOCIETY OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The Society reassembled at 4 o'clock yester av afternoon. An invitation was received and accepted from Dr. Addinell Hewson, for the Society to visit the Pennsylvania Hospital on Friday morning next, to witness the application and use of earth | Ry ssings. The report of the Committee on Charters was taken up. This report shows that the Commitee had failed in their efforts to procure a suitable charter from the Supreme Court, and asks that the Committee be discharged.

r. Gallagher moved to recommit the repor to the Committee, with instructions to obtain a charter from the State Legislature. Lost. On motion of Dr. W. L. Atlee, the charter, as prepared by the Committee for the consideration of the Supreme Court, was adopted as he Constitution of the Society, to supercede the old Constitution. On motion of Dr. Hiram Corson, the order of business was suspended, to admit the report of the Board of Censors in the case of the appeal of Dr. Halberstadt, of Schuylkill county, ho was suspended from the County Society, the Schuylkill County Medical Society. Prof. Wm, H. Gobrecht, of the Medical College of Cincinnati, was invited to a seat on the or of this Convention. On motion, the Convention adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. In the evening, at Jefferson Medical College an exhibition was given of the powers of the gas microscope, for the entertainment of the lelegates. A large number of them were resent, accompanied by their ladies. The in-roductory and explanitory remarks were made by Prof. J. Aitken Meigs, the exhibition being under the management of Drs. J. Gibbons Hunt and W. W. Keen. The specimens exhibited by projection on a screen consisted o animal and vegetable tissues-more especially those of a cellular character-including photographs, largely magnified, of the entire nervous system of man, spiders, mosquitoes, beetles, and animalculæ were exhibited in rapid succession to the intense delight of those who the gas microscope a very remarkable exhibiion was given by Professor B. H. Rand of the effect of polarized or refracted light.
