NOMINATION DAY.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTIONS

THE PROCEEDINGS TO-DAY

The Conventions of the Republican party to nominate candidates for city and county officers, Representatives in Congress, one Senator, and Representatives in the General Assembly, met this morning at the places designated by the Executive Committee. The proceedings of the several bodies, up to the time of going to press, will be found ap-

The Sheriffalty Convention.

The chiefest political centre of the day was at National Hall. Here it was that the Conat National Hall. Here it was that the Convention to nominate a Sheriff was held. The fierce fight for this high office promised at this assemblage scenes of extraordinary excitement. It was known that the Walton delegates were inimical to the Leeds party, and the latter just as determinedly opposed to the former. In the event of these prominent caudidates, it was confidently assented that the of success to either of these prominent candidates, it was confidently asserted that the forces would join hands and voices in favor of Bingham or Massey. At ten o'clock the great crowd of delegates, with a slight mixture of the colored element, entered.

In a twinkling, John Lane (the Walton party representative) jumped upon the stage, and was directly mominated for temporary chairman. The nomination was ratified by a portion of the delegates. Mr. Lane had not tapped the desk more than twice with a gavel upict he drew from his pocket, when Wm.

tapped the desk more than twice with a gavel which he drew from his poeket, when Wm. Elliott, a representative of the Leeds party, was declared the temperary chairman, and he jumped upon the stage; followed by H. H. K. Elliott, who was pressed for the chairmanship by the Berry delegates.

A scene of great excitement followed. A struggle for the gavel was hotly waged. It was snatched from Lane's hands by the Berryites, and in a moment it was forcibly transferred to the keeping of Elliott, the Leeds' party man. A hundred delegates crowded upon the stage, and a scene of wildest confusion directly ensued. The desk was overturned, and the stage chandeliers were wrenched from their places.

No sooner had the desk been replaced and
Mr. Elllott mounted it to declare the names of the Secretaries, than Lane rushed upon him, snatching for the mallet. In the con-tention which followed, Elliott and Lane and tention which followed, Elliott and Lane and a dozen of delegates who were lottly pressing them on either side, were thrown from the stage upon the floor—a distance of six feet. Elliott, with remarkable alacrity, regained the stage, but to find the back of his coat ripped to the collar. Stripping himself of the garment, he again stepped upon the desk, and, in a momentary caim, announced Dr. Crowell and Isaac McBride as the temporary Sacreturies, and thus spoke:

"I desire to say that if it is the desire of the Convention that I shall not preside as the temporary organizer, I will withdraw. I tell you that it is, for the interest of the Republican party these scenes of disorder should cease. Those who want me for temporary organizer say 'Aye.'"

A roar in the affirmative was followed by an equally loud roar in the negative, and the fight was again resumed, during which the reporters' desks were overturned and the knight of the quill themselves forced for safety's sake, into the stage boxes. During the melec Lane's hat was smashed, and that gentleman Lane's hat was smashed, and that gentleman was seized by the arms and legs, and dragged to the edge of the stage, the intention induditably being to force him off., Happily his progress off the platform was stopped by one of the chandeliers, which had been replaced. He struggled out of the hands of his captors, and, jumping upon a bench, cried out.

"As temporary Chairman of this Convention, I nominate John W. Sayres and John Thompson for Secretaries, and I want to say."

Cries of "Put him out," "Throw him off the stage," &c., and an uproarious boo-hooing drowned, to the reporters' ears, whatever else the said. The Leeds party men then cleared the stage, forcing off Lane and his adherents in a twinkling. Thus the former proved trumphants and Chairman William Elliott waved the baton of power with an unchaflenged—though not an undisputed—right; V He then announced that he would call the precincts of the several Wards in numerical order, in order that the delegates might regu-

Mr. Myers having a majority of the votes polled, was declared the nominee of the Republican party, and, on motion, his nomination was made unanimous.

Mr. Sipher offered the following resolutions, which were adverted. which were adopted:

Resolved, That, in again presenting the Ron. Leonard
Myers to the people of the Third Congressional Vistrict,

Why is Notre Dame, of Pari toe? Because it's a Paris sight.

we respond to the wishes of a large majority of the Republican voters, who, admiring his consistent, howershie and able record, feel that this nomination is eminantly due to his services and worth.

Resolved, That as an able champion on the fleer of Congress of protection to American industry and the right of labor, and of lessening the burden of taxation. Mr. Myors has now a national fams which his own constituents appreciate and take pleasure in asserting. Resolved, That in private as in public life the labour of Mr. Myors for the interests of the people have been faithful, kind and unceasing, and that with him for our stendard-bearer we have a guarantee of enthusiasm and success.

Mr. Myers was then introduced, and spoke After nearly eight years' service as your Represents, yo, this fifth nomination to Congress is an analysis of which have now a service as your services.

live, this fifth nomination to Congress is an endorsement of which any man may well feel proud, for the decade use onding forms the most important era in American of which any man may well feel proud, for the decade just outding forms the most imperiant ers in American history.

It has conclusively proved the capacity of the ecopie for self-government; it has shown that Republics are not all ungratoful; it has shown that Republics are not all ungratoful; it has crystalized noble sentiments and great deeds into form and action; it has given, what the Declaration of Independence only promised, freedom and qual rights for all; it has advanced the honor and fame of our country till its flag, with every star restored, is respected all over the world.

This teas the work of the people.

On march and battle-field, in camp and prison-penthers also an and by every hearthstone, there was gratitude. All gave their treasure; with some it was wealth, with more their heart's best blood. If the Representatives have been worthy of such a people, they need ask no higher meed of praise.

The record will show that a Republican, Administration in all this trying time kept pace with the pagelon in all this trying time kept pace with the pagelon of a nation's justice and honor.

It is five years since the rebollion was crushed—five years since the retoillon was crushed—five years since the rebollion was crushed—five indicated—the people but republican institutions nover wavered. Great armies, flushed with victory, were to be disbanded. Europe predicted it could not be done with safety. Yet they vanished like mists of the moraning, and though the land is full of warriors the citizen soldier is the best safeguard of the republic.

A heavy debt called for centinued taxation—the people bore it without a murmur, in order to maintain the initia and credit of the nation.

Let us see if the representatives continue to do their duty.

No Gevernment before ever gave such bouuties to its defenders after the decader and the proper continue to do their duty.

Let us see if the representatives continue to do their duty.

No Government before ever gave such bounties to its defenders after the day of their service was over. No Government before took such care of the widowed and latherless.

Repudiation was predicted, even threatened. We asswered by paying one fifth of the national debt in five years. Gen, Grant's aiministration has so maintained our credit that greenbacks are almost on a par with gold. The necessaries of life are cheapead, and now responding to the popular wish and declaring it is not incumbent on this generation to cancel the remainder of the debt, we have passed a bill, soon to become law, taking off sixty millions of taxes, which will give relief and new inspiration to the masses.

We have adhered to the dostrine that protection to American labor is necessary for American prosperity. We have, for the first time, wrung from unwilling England and from other lands a renunciation of their doctrine of "allegiance," and since the recent treaties. American citizenship is protected as it never was before.

Nor is this all. No government was ever so generous to a conquered rebellion, but kindness has been tempered with instice. Against every opposition, we have reconstructed the Union on the basis of loyatry, until every fitate that attempted secssion has had its representative conce more on the floors of Chongress. With salipada spanning the continent, with the commerce of the cast ready to seek our shores, with arts high ladvanced, and compensated labor, the future is brilliant with hope.

To have been, by your continued preference, a particular wanced, and compensated labor, the future is brilliant with hope.

To have been, by your continued preference, a participant in the legislature which has aided to produce such results is the highest privilege of my life.

I accept the honor of being again your standard bearer, and through you tender my thanks to the people.

Mr. Myers was frequently interrupted with marks of approbation, and at the adjournment of the Convention cheer after cheer, was given for the workingman's candidate. given for the workingman's candidate.
