these fires, two horses were burned to death. The church mentioned was fired by stuffing a bundle of straw under the floor while the congregation was engaged in worship. Ten or twelve of the boys connected with the gang of incendiaries were arrested upon the order of Fire Marshal Blackburn. Of these, some were discharged for the want of evidence to convict them, others were placed under bonds for their good behavior, two or three were convicted of other offences, and the three principals, Henry Kincade, William Francis and John H. Welch, were convicted of arson. Judge Ludlow, in charging the Francis and John H. Welch, were convicted of arson. Judge Ludlow, in charging the jury in the case, drew a graphic picture of the demoralizing effects of the Volunteer Fire Department on the rising generation, and characterized "an irresponsible Fire Department" as one of the "greatest curses of the day in this com-munity." munity." These youthui incendiaries will be sentenced on Saturday next. The mode of operation of these juvenile fire-runners is fully set forth in the following affidavit, made by Welch before the Fire Marshal:

Marshal: John H. Welch, sworn-Lives on the old Lancaster Turnpike, near Fifty-second street. I am going on 16 years old. I drive a team in in the Park for Charles Carpenter. I remem-ber the fire at Samuel Ellis's stable, on Sunday night, the 15th of May. I am willing to tell all know about that fire. There was an alarm of fire thet of termoon coursed by the burning of fire that afternoon, caused by the burning of the ruins of a mill, Twenty-fourth and Spruce. The Monroe hose carriage went all the way to that fire. I met the carriage, on its return, at Marketstreet and Lancaster avenue I returned with the carriage. Francis was walking on the pavement, alongside of the carriage. At Thirty-seventh and Lancaster avenue the carriage halted, and the boys went and got a drink and washed their faces. I and and got a drink and washed their faces. I and Francis got on the back of the Hose carriage. Francis snid this was a bully run; can't we have another to-night? We walked on up as far as the Monroe Engine House. I said, we, will see about making another fire when we get up in Hestonville. We went up as far as Allen's grecery store and sait down on the porch. He (Francis) proposed to set fire to Samuel Ellis's barn; we sait there and talked about it for proposed to set fire to Samuel EUIS's barn; we sat there and talked about it for awhile; we did not agree at that time posi-tively to fire the place; I said I would see after supper; I came down from supper about half-past 6 o'clock, and met Francis in front-of the Depot; we cut up for about half an hour; we went across and sat on Allen's porch again; after awhile Kincade came along and sat down between me and Francis: Francis sat down between me and Francis; Francis asked Kincade if he did not want to have a run; Kincade said yes, I would not mind having a run; Francis then proposed Ellis's barn-again, and told Kincade I would go around there with him and set it on fire; I said to there with him and set it on hire; I said to Kincade it would burn the horses in the stable and set fire to the pens that had sheep in them; Kincade said they would get the horses out, and d—n the sheep-pens, they are insured and they can build them up again; Francis then said there is an old stable at Jones's und they apply on mile up the road up of a to woods, about one mile up the road, we can 1 up and set fire to that and have a good run; I said that was too much out of the way, I would said that was too much out of the way, I would not go up there; Kincade said, I will tell you a good one; we will go up to Rhoads's barn. I would not go up there; Francis then proposed to set fire to Pat Sullivan's stables on Kershaw avenue; I would not agree to that, and Kincade pro-posed Jim Gray's barn, on Meeting House lane. I would not agree to that. We walked up as far as Lentz's, and Francis walked ande. I would not agree to that. We walked up as far as Lentz's, and Francis walked up and sat in front of Little's meat shop, op-posite the Monroe Engine House. Kincade and I walked down Paschall street and up Fifty-second to the depot. It was understood between Francis, Kincade and myself that I ord Kincade were to set first a burn or stable and Kincade were to set fire to a barn or stable. We did not know which one to set on fire, but intended the one we could get the best chance intended the one we could get the best chance at. Francis was to be on the lookout, to give the alarm as soon as he saw the blaze. He wanted to get the tongue of the hose carriage. Before we left the depot Kincade and I agreed to fire Ellis's stable. We went up Fifty-second street, under the railroad bridge, and went along the embankment of the track as far as Samuel Ellis's barn. The place was ready to fire, but the wind blew the match out. I struck the match on one of the boards and the wind blew it out before I could put it in the hole. Kincade was there with me at the time he said. I will get some more matches. in the hole. Kincade was there's with me at the time; he said, I will get some more matches, and that he' would go to Daily's eigar store, light his eigar and bring some matches. He was gone about five minutes. Two men came along. I stepped into Ellis' yard through the gate; then Kincade came back; he had two matches and his eigar light#d. He gaveme one match, and I struck it, and put it in a hole through one of the boards on the side next to the sheep-nens. There was only a little space heone of the boards on the side next to the sheep-pens. There was only a little space be sheep-pens. There was only a nucle space be-tween the stable and sheep-pens. Kincade lighted his match on his cigar and put it in a hole on the front of the stable, on the Summer road. I looked to see if the hay had caught. and when we saw it blazing we left. We crossed the railroad, and through Mr. Heston's crossed the railroad, and through Mr. Heston's field, and down Fifty-second street to the pike. Before we got back to the pike the fire had been seen. The bell was rung, and the alarm given. I, Kincade and Francis all met at the fire. Francis said: "Jump around and be lively; they won't think so-much of it; they would not suspect you." Francis was work-ing hard to stop the fire. Before we set Ellis's stable on fire Kincade and I went to Sullivan's to see if there was any chance to set that on to see if there was any chance to set that ou fire. The dogs barked and made a noise, and some people came out of the door, and that frightened us off. Francis told me when I fired the place to go inside and pile the hay over the fire, so that it would burn slowly, and give us time to get away. He said that was the way he and Kincade had fired two places in Hestonville last winter. The object of this fire was fun and excitement. We wanted to what mischief had been done, I was very Forry for it. [Signed] JOHN H. WELCH. Scower, at Juhiper and Kater streets, about two o'clock this morning. There had been a wake in a house in that neighborhood. The two men had been among the attendants. They quarrelled, and after leaving the house, McKeown, it is alleged, was attacked by Scower, who knocked him down, got upon him, and used a knife quite freely. McKeown received about a dozen cuts. His injuries are on the head, face and body. One wound in the left side is very serious. McKeown also had the ends of two of his fingers nearly bitten off. A policeman found Scower on top of him. Mr. Harlan introduced a bill providing 'for additional representation in the Forty-second Congress, which provides that in any State in which the representative population by the ninth consus shall exceed by 150,000 or more the representative population as shown by the eighth consus there may be one additional representative in the Forty-second Congress for each 150,000 of such excess, and for each fraction thereof not exceeding 125,000. The for each 100,000 of such excess, and for each fraction thereof not exceeding 125,000. The Secretary of the Interior is directed, on ascer-taining what States are entitled to additional representatives to notify the government thereof, and unless such State is otherwise directed by law, additional representatives shall be elected on the general ticket at large. Rouse-[Continued from the Fourth Edition. Mr. Cox said the general sentiment outside of Congress was strongly against the manner in which Georgia had been treated. He read an extract from the message of Governor Fos an extract from the message of Governor 10 set ter, (?) of Connecticut, regretting that Georgia was still kept out of the Union, owing to a lack of wisdom in Congress. Out of all the batch of bills which had been proposed he (Cox) would choose and vote for Bingham's amendment as the least objectionable.

FROM THE SOUTH.

[Special Despatch to the Phile. Evening Bulletin.] The Execution at Dover.

[Continued from the Fourth Edition.] Rev. Dr. Haskins (Episcopal) was with him all the morning and administered the Commu-nion. Darnell persists in denying his guilt, and says Wm. Loper killed the man. Darnell only helped to drag him to the mill-pond. He is willing to die, but he believes himself inno-cent, and thinks Loper ought to be hung with him. Darnell evidently is unsound in mind, and was enticed and threatened by Loper, who received all the money on Hogar's per-son. Darnell says Loper threatened to kill him if he refused to help him. About teu o'elock, Rev. Dr. Haskins conversed with Darnell, in his cell, and asked that, God might care for him. In company with the Sheriff's deputy and Dr. Haskins, the prisoner wont on the scaffold, where Dr. Haskins read the Episcopal service, and offered up a prayer. [Continued from the Fourth Edition.] the Episcopal service, and offered up a prayer. Darnell was then asked if he had auything to Darnell was then asked if he had authing to say, and in a clear voice said: "Gentlemen, it is hard to die. I did not do it. William Loper did it. I went with him, and he told me he would pay me for robbing. John Young told me to go with him, that I would not be hurt. William Loper did it." The cap was put over his head, the noose tightened, and at twenty-two minutes of two o'clock he was launched into eternity. He never mo-tioned after he fell. His neek broke. He tioned after he fell. His neok broke. He dropped six feet. About seven hundred peo-ple, men, women and children, girls and boys, from five to fifteen years old, were present and witnessed the execution with apparently the greatest satisfaction, smilling and joking. Immediately after the execution a guard of-twenty men with old fashioned muskets stood around the scafiold keeping the crowd at a re-spectable distance. At eight minutes past two his life was pronounced extinct, and the body was dropped into a coffin. Owing to the su-perstitious prejudice, the trustees of the ceme-teries here refused to allow the body to be in-terred in any of them, and Sheriff Wilds had to hury him in the jail-yard, there being no to bury him in the jailyard, there being no public burying ground. Loper, since the murder, has been living
