THE LATE COMMODORE RITCHIE -In yesterday's BULLETIN we announced the demise of Commodore Robert Ritchie. Commodor, of Commodore Robert Ritchie. Commodore Ritchie was a representative of the Lord Nelson school of sailors, who are fast passing away. Admiral Stewart was of that school. The nautical experience of both was in vessels propelled by sails. Admiral Farragut has experience in steam. Neither Commodore Stewart nor Commodore Ritchie, we think, ever commanded a vessel other than that of the kind commanded by Decatur—a vessel that probably inspired the author of the song of which the initial line is—

"A wet sheet and a flowing sea." Commodore Ritchie came from an illustrious lineage. He received his appointment in 1816. In 1825 he received a commission as Lieutenant. He was assigned to the schooner "Grampus." In those days to capture an American ship required two British ones. The then Captain Stewart, commanding the Constitution, captured the British ships Levant and Cyane. At a late banquet at the Continental, at which he made his last public speech, the then Rear Admiral Stewart narrated an anecdote that history has never mentioned. Until to day it has not appeared in print. After the surrender of their swords by the captains of the vessels in question, Captain Stewart ushered them into his private cabin on board the Constitution. The stew-Commodore Ritchie came from an illustrious tain Stewart ushered them into his private cabin on board the Constitution. The steward, at his bidding, refreshed them. Leaving this prisoner-guests to enjoy their biscuits and Madeira, Capt. Stewart stepped up the companion-way to the deck. At the instant of his disappearance, the epauletted prisoners began a recriminatory conversation language that was plainly audible to Capt. in language that was plainly audible to Capt. Stewart. "You," said the Cyane commander, "lost me my reputation. That last broadside of yours was worse than wusted." The Levant hero replied with equal acroity. At the moment when one captive was about to physi-cally assail the other, Capt. Stewart descended the stairs of the companion-way. Gentle-men," said he, "pray don't make any demon-strations of this kind. Upon neither one of you rests the smallest blame. The worst that can be said by the British Admiralty of what you have done is that you have made a mis-take. You thought that with two ships you could take the 'Constitution.' You couldn't cound take the 'Constitution,' I've country have taken her with four."

Of this school of seamen was Commodore Ritchie. From 1825 to 1827 he was in the West India squadron. From that to 1830 he superintended the recruiting for exploring expeditions, under the orders of the Government. In 1825 he was in command of the reexpeditions, under the orders of the Government. In 1837 he was in command of the receiving-ship at the Navy-Yard. He remained so until 1840. In September, 1841, he was ordered to the frigate Columbia. After one year's cruise with the Brazil squadron, he was placed in command of the Navy-Yard at this port. He retained it until 1850. He passed the next three years in the Paoific squadron. In 1855 he received his rank as Captain, and was put in command of the sloop-of-way. was put in command of the sloop-of-war Saranac. In July, 1862, he received the title

Saranac. In July, 1862, he received the table and emoluments of Commodore. He was retired in 1867, through the instrumentality of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Fox.

Commodore Ritchie had attained the full longevity allotted to man. He died from no special malady, but from the burning out of the oil in the lamp of life. Fortune never gave him the opportunity to signalize himself in naval fighting. The question of his seamanin naval fighting. The question of his seaman-ship is beyond all peradventure. His hear was in his hand. Strict to a degree as a disciplinarian, there are cases in which, when even the ship's surgeon recoiled from the supposed contagion of the black vomit, Captain Ritchie has personally sat by the hammock of the sick sailor in the forecastle, who, perhaps, had merited his displeasure but a few days be-

According to his request, the remains of Commodore Ritchie will be interred at Laurel Hill, with neither pomp nor parade. He was unmarried, and no children are be-reaved by his demise. But all who knew him will miss from his former walks the ever kind and ever genial Commodore Rober Ritchie.

we have been permitted to copy:
"Hartford, Ct., Dec., 1869.—Dear Sir:
Your letter of the 11th inst. I received to-day.
I do not recollect distinctly the remarks of President Lincoln when I read to him your patriotic letter from the Pacific in the Spring of 1861. But I well remember the gratifi cation that letter afforded us at an eventfu crisis, when many deserted the flag, and others were wavering in their fidelity. The letter itself is on the files of the Department, and attests your opinions and determination to discharge your duty faithfully in the responsible position you then held as senior on the station, in the absence of Flag Officer Montgomery.

"It was a relief, when so many faltered, to know who were reliable; and your zeal and devotion to the service and the country were never questioned.

"Very respectfully, "GIDEON WELLES."

THE IRON MOULDERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION—ITS FOURTH DAY'S EESSION.—At 9
A. M. to-day, in Common Council Chamber, this body reassembled. President Meyer was in the chair.

The Committee on Journal reported recommending the publication by the Union of a serial as it did in 1867 and 1868.

A resolution was then made that in such journal no financial reports shall be published By doing this, it was urged, employers and antagonists to the Union would be put in pos-session of information that from them it especially behooved the convention to conceal. In the course of the debate upon the subject of issuing said journal, it was urged that the journal should be the medium of imparting information upon mechanical and scientific subjects, and that for such information premiums thould be treable stated. niums should be freely given.

The resolution, with amendment, was agreed

John C. Collopy, of Union No. 51, moved that one-third of the whole issue be printed in that one-third of the whole issue be printed in the German language.

This was amended by making the quantity one-tifth instead of one-third.

H. J. Walls, No. 1, moved to refer back the entire matter to the Committee on Journal, to inquire as to the cost of printing and translating the German edition. This was agreed to.

A preamble and resolutions protesting against the importation into this country of coolie labor. The resolutions were adopted. The remaining portion of this morning's session was occupied in the discussion of financial matters between individual Union and the Head Centre now in session, of interest to nobody but the parties immediately concerned. Three Unions claimed that they had paid into the general treasury a sum beyoud the pro rata of their assessment. They asked for a return of their money. Having done this, that body adjourned.

He had long been asufferer from illness, but by a will that up to the last inoment was indomitable he baffled the operation of the king of terrors. Almost everybody in Philadelphia knew Mr. Divine. He was the President of the Cotton and Wool Manufacturers' Association of this city. He has had running at one time, we think, as Manufacturers' Association of this city... He has had running at one time, we think, as many as four different mills. The people to whom he gave employment might be enumerated by hundreds. With firms like that of Joseph Bullock & Sons, Pollock & Campbell, and many others of like note, when the war began he devoted the entire resources of his mills to the equipment of the soldiers of the Union army. And he did it caring neither whether by his energy he profited or lost. Mr. Divine was a representative man. Modest and unassuming, though very far from unlearned, he was a gentleman whose word was as good as his note, and his note as good as his word. He was presented as a candidate for this honor by his preceptor, Counsellor Theodore Ochlschlager. Counsellor Ochlschlager, as a matter of course, is acquainted with John Phoenix's friend, Mr. Wee Gates. Col. Lechler, instead of beating his sword into a pruning hook, beat it into a copy of "Hale's Pleas to the Crown." From the manner in Pleas to the Crown." From the manner in which our military friend underwent examination upon Blackstone and Chitty, Counsellor Ochlschlager may safely be set down as a preceptor of the hugest possible proportions. The Counsellor is a legal instead of a theological Dean Swift. His pupils, like duck eggs in early July, invariably yoke themselves to the Legal profession with unimpeachable yolk.

DICKENS'S DOMESTIC LIFE.

Some Harsh Statements. A writer in the Chicago Advance gives these among other personal details about Charles Dickens:

The ugliest feature in his life is his treatment of his wife. Mr. Wells, his business partner and most intimate friend, told me last year that it was the one unpardonable act that could neither be explained nor forgiven. The causes of the separation are perfectly well known. Miss Hogarth, own sister of Mrs. Dickens, who had always lived in the family from the time of the inarriage, was too much the favorite of the head. For years this was the subject of discord until it ended in separation, Mrs. Dickens removing to Gloucester Crescent, London, while the subject of the subject o ing to Gloucester Crescent, London, whil-Miss Hogarth remained at Gad's Hill to the last. No charge of a criminal aspect was ever made. Dickens paid his wife £600 a year. The children, of whom eight are living, went The children, of whom eight are living, went at their option from one house to the other, the sons mostly residing at their mother's house, the daughters with their father. A correspondence was kept up between husband and wife, and Miss Hogarth frequently saw her sister at her "own" (Mrs. Dickens's house. It was the refusal of Bradbury & Evans to publish Dickens's "statement" in the columns are their country of the columns Punch that caused the quarrel ending by his withdrawal from Household Words and commencing All the Year Round. Although Charles Dickens, Jr., married Miss Evans, the seniors never after the outbreak spoke to each other.

ANOTHER HYDROPHOBIC DOG

Two Ladies in a Room With a Mad Dog. [From the Detroit Free Press. July 3.] About eight o'clock last evening two ladies, residing up stairs in the block of Woodward avenue, just beyond State street, observed that a large Newfoundland dog, which had long been in possession of the family, was exhibiting strange conduct. He had been with them in the room for an hour or more whining and seeming to be very restor more, whining and seeming to be very restless; but when the attention of the ladies was directed to the animal he was snapping his jaws, scratching, and his eyes had an excited look. The ladies were not easily alarmed, and no particular attention was paid to the dog for some time, he lying down in a corner at the command of one of the females. Suddenly, and without warning, the brute sprang into the middle of the room, eyes ablaze and his hair like bristles, and he uttered a howl of rage and pain that sent the blood from the ladies, faces in an instant. Leading off from the room was a closet or clothes press, and for this both of the women instantly prang. The dog did not follow, nor attempt o molest them until just as they were closing he door, when he came near gaining admittance, snapping and snarling savagely. The male portion of the family were away to market and the ladies found themselves prisoners, with a genuine mad dog for a keeper. The animal howled and barked, ran about the room, biting at y article of furniture, and his heavy breathing and yells of intense pain would have made stronger hearts quail than those shut up in the little closet. The ladies screamed, the dog howled and for nearly an hour there was an exciting time within a small space, the dog now and then scratching and tearing away at the closet door. At last, alarmed by the screams, several men from the street made their way up-stairs, and with clubs, after a sharp struggle, killed the frothing brute. The dead body of the animal was thrown into the alley and was carted off by the scavengers. The was looked much by large the scavengers. It was looked upon by large numbers before being conveyed away, and none who saw the eyes and the foam-fiecked jaws doubted that the animal had been seized with an attack of hydrophobia.

Heirs in Georgia Claim Succession to Eighty-two Millions of Property in New York. [From the Gadsden (Georgia) Times, July 3.] Two of the descendants of Robert Edwards; living in Gadsden, have received information that a large amount of valuable property, situated in the city of New York, on Canal street, estimated to be worth $82,000,000, will come into the possession of the heirs of said Edinto the possession of the heirs of said Edwards upon their proving their identity. Their property consists of estate granted by King George of England to Robert Edwards, about the same time the grant was made to Trinity Church, which to-day, by reason of that grant, is the wealthiest eccelsiastical corporation, in the property, as did the trustees of the Trinity grant, for ninety-nine years. This lease has expired, and the persons now in possession of the property recognize the fact and will be compelled to give possession when the heirs prove their identity. General Edwards, of LaGrange, Ga., known over the Southern States as a great railroad man, has Southern States as a great railroad man, has employed Ben Hill, of Georgia, and Judge Bingham, for the heirs, and they will, we understand, immediately institute suit for pos-session. We learn further, that the occupants of the property are so well satisfied that the title of the heirs of Edwards is valid they will not confest it, except so far as compelling them to prove themselve true descendants of said Robert Edwards.

NOW NEARLY COMPLETED. This Company are now pushing their work forward with great rapidity, and the entireline necessary to connect St. Louis and St. Paul is graded and under contract to be finished this season. The fact that this enterprise has been undertaken by a combination of leading bankers and railroad capitalists of well-known wealth, experience and ability, insures its early completion and future success.

The road runs through the richest and most thickly settled portion of Iowa, and is built in the interests of the great Northern system of roads which centre at St. Paul. The of the Company pay 7 per cent. Gold Interest, free of Governmenttax, and are issued for the very small amount of $16,000 per mile. For the present, the unsold portion are offered at 95 and accrued interest. The attention of investors is invited to the fact that the road is now nearly finished, and that 'the Security is therefore entitled to a high rank, In our opinion, no class of investments has been found so uniformly safe and profitable as First Mortgages on completed railroads:

Of 235 companies operating 30,000 miles of railroad in the Northern and Western States, on which there is a bonded debt of $662,000,000. we know of but two that do not pay their interest regularly.

We believe there will be no more favorable time to sell Governments, and bny really First-class Railroad Securitiessuch as these ... than the present.

FORTV-FIRST CONGRESS.

Second Session. SENATE-Continued from the Fourth Edition.
Mr. Yates said Mrs. (Lincoln and all her family sympathized with the rebellion, and if the Senate thought she ought to be rewarded let them vote this pension, but he would never vote a dollar for such an object in the face of the starving orphans and widows whom the war had despoiled of their legitimate support Mr. Howard advocated the bill, and denied that Mrs. Lincoln was disloyal during the

Mr. Saulsbury defended Mrs. Lincoln's character, and deprecated any allusions such as had been made by Senators. After further debate Mr. Thurman moved o lay the bill on the table. Lost.

The bill was then laid over informally.

The Senate took up the Army Appropriation bill. The amendment repealing the provisions of the law authorizing the enlistment and employment of Indian scouts was with irawn.

Mr. Wilson offered as an amendment the provisions of his bill reducing the number of enlisted men in the army to thirty thousand, with modifications leaving the pay of the high grade officers as it now is, and leaving it dis-cretionary with the President, after January next, to furlough, without pay, all supermimerary officers until they are assigned to fill vacancies, or discharge them on one years pay and allowance.

House—Continued from the Fourth Edition. The House then proceeded to vote separately upon the Senate amendments, of which there are ninety-seven. Among those non-concurred in are the following.

Reducing the duty on jute from ten to six dollars per ton.

Placing a duty of two cents per pound on cotton bagging.

Imposing a duty of nine dollars per ton on wrought scrap-iron, and six dollars on east Taxing sword blades thirty-five per cent. ad valorem, and swords forty-five per cent.

The Senate amendment reducing the duty on steel railway bars from one and one-half to one and one-quarter cents per pound was con-curred in—yeas 99, nays 11. The amendment reducing the duty on railway bars made in part of steel from one and a quarter cents per pound to one cent concurred in.

FROM NEW YORK.

By the Angrican Press Association.1 Weekly Bank Statement. New York, July 9.—The bank statement for the week ending to-day is as follows: Loans decreased, $280,000: specie increased, $3,500,000; deposits increased, $1,500,000; legal-tenders decreased, $570,000.

The Murderer Sheridan --- An Appeal to the Governor.

Mr. Edwin James, the counsel for Thomas Sheridan, who was found guilty of murder on Thursday last, and sentenced to death, nas deeided to prepare an earnest appeal to Gover-nor Hoffman on behalf of his client, and eudeavor to secure the signatures of those persons opposed to the death penalty being in-flicted. It is believed the memorial will be favorably considered by the Executive, as both Judge Barnard and District Attorney Garvin will not throw any obstacles in the way of the prisoner's sentence being com-muted to ten or twenty years' imprisonment, There are two Thomas Sheridans confined in the Tombs for murder, the second one being now awaiting trial for killing Daniel Nichols on Second avenue, on the 26th ultimo.

Coroner's Inquest on Lingard's Body. The inquest on the body of James Lingard, actor, commenced to-day, Various witnesses testified to the brutality of his wife, and further investigation was postponed until Monday Park Inspection.

BROOKLYN, July 9.—The Park Commissioners of Albany are visiting Prospect and other parks of this city, with a view to improving those of their own city.

Operations of Pickpockets at Concy

Island.

The raids of pickpockets and thioves on Sun-
