THE SEVENTH NEW YORK REGIMENT.

Arrival and Reception in this City.

The noble Seventh Regiment of New York, commanded by Colonel E Clark, and numbering five h men, rank and file, a band of 45 hundred and a drum-corps of 30 men, reached the city this afternoon,on their way to Cape May, and are quartered at the Continental Hotel.

The Seventh left their armory in New York this morning at 7 c'clock, and marched down Broadway to Courtlandt street ferry, where they took the boat for Jersey City, and left for Philadelphia, at 8 c'clock, by way of the Comdon and Amber Beilingd.

Camden and Amboy Railroad.

The trip to Philadelphia was a pleasant and uneventful one, with the exception of a short detention at Trenton, caused by the coupling of a car breaking.

Camden was reached shortly before 12 o'clock, and the regiment, after shaking off the dust and receiving the salutations of the Camdenites, took the steamer State Rights for Walnut street wharf, where they arrived at twenty-five minutes past twelve o'clock. On passing Smith's Island a salute of welcome was fired from that point, and when the State Rights reached the city-hearty cheers of welcome went up from the Committee in waiting to receive them, which was responded to by the members of the Seventh, who were packed together like herring in a box on the deck of the vessel. When the Seventh landed they were received by a Committee of seventy-five citizens, representing several of our military organizations, commanded by Col. Wm. McMichael, and preceded by the Liberty Cornet Band.

The line of march was then taken up for the Continental Hotel, and when the famous Seventh emerged frem the depot they were lustily cheered by the immense crowd that lined the sidewalks. The Seventh were dressed in full gray uniform, and each man carried a well filled knapsack, which together with clothing, must have proved an uncomfortable addition when the mercury is up among the nineties.

The 7th presented a magnificent appearance, and their marching and military bearing defied criticism. The procession marched up Walnut to Third, up Third to Chestnut, and up Chestnut to Tenth; down Tenth to Walnut; down Walnut to Ninth, and up Ninth to the Bazaar, at Ninth and Spream extracts where the 7th at Ninth and Sansom streets, where the 7th stacked their arms, prior to entering the Con-The military guests were received at Fifth and Chestnut by Mayor Fox, and at this point ropes were stretched across the street to keep back the surging and enthusiastic crowd.

Chestnut street, from Third to Tenth, was densely crowded with spectators, and the visitors were continually cheered during their

The Continental was reached shortly after 1 o'clock, when the officers of the Seventh were escorted to one of the parlors and introduced to a number of our principal citizens, but no to a number of our principal citizens, but no fermal ceremonies took place. After a half hour spent in washing, shaving, hair-dressing and other body-refresheners, the regiment were escorted to the dining hall, where they sat down to a splendid lunch, which was most heartily enjoyed by the way-worn visitors.

To accommodate such a large number of guests in addition to the regular sojourners of the Hotel, it was found necessary to extend the tables from the dining-room into the hall, and even Parlor C was temporarily converted into a dining-room.

Mr. J. E. Kingsley, the proprietor of the Continental, displayed the most Napoleonic generalship in arranging quarters for his distinguished guests: No regiment during the war ever marched with more celerity or precision to their tents or camps than did the members of the Seventh to the quarters assigned them at the Continental.

Ten rooms were assigned to each company, and as the different companies marched into the Hotel, they were convoyed by Mr. Kings-ley and his assistants to their rooms at once and without a moment's delay or confusion. Had each member of the Seventh been living for his entire lifetime in the room assigned to him. he could not have found his quarters with greater certainty and quickness than it was done this morning. Spacious rooms were assigned to the Commander and other officers of the Regiment, and the Drum Corps, Band, New York reporters, &c., were all provided for comfortably, and the visitors, when they retired to their quarters, found a most tempting repast awaiting them in their rooms.

This afternoon the Seventh will make a grand parade on North Broad street, and will be escorted by the First and Fourth Regiments, under command of Colonels Latta and Sellers. The Seventh will be reviewed at Seligrs. The Seventh will be reviewed at Broad and Jefferson streets by Gov. Geary, Gen, Meade, Gen. Prevost and Mayor Fox. This evening they will partake of a grand banquet at the Continental and at 9 o'clock this evening they leave for Cape May.

INFRINGING A PATENT RIGHT.—About five years ago R. P. Hall took out a patent for the Sicilian Hair Renewer." He started business in Nashua, New Hampshire, and after being very prosperous for several years, sold out his patent for $30,000, to a man named Gillis. About three weeks ago Hall came to Philadelphia, and entered into partnership with two men named respectively Small and Worcester. They commenced the manufacture of the same article and imitated the trade mark of the original, the labels being printed "R. P. Hall & Co., of Philadelphia, formerly of Nashua, N. H." The firm had an office in the second story of No. 434 North Third street, and the members resided at Vineland, N.J. Mr. Gillis, through his general agent, Mr. Mansfield entered complaint, and Detectives Lukens, Tryon and Levy were detailed to investigate the matter. The two first-named offiwent to Vineland, arrested Worcester and brought him to the city. Small was arrested when he entered his place of business To-day Hall came from Vineland, and he wa likewise arrested. The prisoners are at the Central Station, awaiting a hearing. Yesterday they made their first shipment. It was consigned to Halifax and St. John, and the prisoners claim that it was not their intention to sell the article in the United States, as the patent-right for this country has already been disposed of.

SUPPOSED BURGLAR ARRESTED .- Warren Manual, an old offender, was arrested, yester-day, by Detectives Fletcher and Gordon, upon the charge of having been concerned in the robbery of the store of Samuel D. Hall & Co., and George E. Hall & Co., at Fifty-fifth and Lancaster avenue. An account of the robbery was given in the BULLETIN of yesterday. It will be remembered that the fire-proof safes were broken open with sledge hammers, and money and checks were abstracted. It seems that the burglars were seen and pursued by Thomas Hunter, who resides in that vicinity. They got into an oat field, from which two shots were fired at Mr. Hunter. A crowbar, which had been fixed with iron pins, so as to give greater leverage, was found there. When arrested there were found on Manual a rovolver, two barrels of which had been discharged, also $250 in money, which was identified by one of the members of the firm robbed. Rain was falling lord at the time of the robbers and Manual hard at the time of the robbery, and Manual had on a wet suit of clothing when captured. The prisoner was locked up for a hearing at the Central Station.

the Central Station.

Lost His Monky.—Last night John J Barnell, of Boston, Mass., fell in with Emma Peterson, and she persuaded him to go with her to a house on Bay street, above Sixth. There he displayed considerable money, and, getting a $50 bill changed, dispensed his cash quite liberally. In one of his garments hetied up $450. He then went to bed. This morning upon awakening he discovered that the portion of the garment in which the money had been tied had been cut off. The money was missing, and Emma could not be found in the house. The unfortunate Bostonian then went to the Mayor's office and entered complaint, and a warrant for the arrest of the complaint, and a warrant for the arrest of the supposed thief was issued.

WIFE BEATERS.—Abraham Mumbauer, re-liding at No. 448 St. John street, was arrested ast night. upon the charge of beating his wife. He was held in $600 ball to answer at Henry Reap, residing at Adrian and Master streets, was held in $600 bail by Alderman Shoemaker on a similar charge.

DIED IN THE PENITENTIARY.- Neil Mc-Laughlin, who was convicted of complicity in the attempt to assassinate Mr. Jas. J. Brooks, Revenue Detective, and was sentenced to an imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary, died in that institution last evening about nine o'clock. The cause of his death was con sumption.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.—This morning Fanny Vansciver, aged two years, residing at No. 167 Otsego street, was accidentally shot in the neck by Frank Balbeck, aged ten years, while he was playing with a revolver. She was seriously wounded.

A PLEASANT EXCURSION.—Through the generosity of Mr. Wm. H. Gatzmer, the Presdent of the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company, and Col Jas. Fisk, of New York the pupils of Girard College will shortly be taken on an excursion around New York Bay.

AN ITEM FOR THE LADIES.—Prominent among our emportums for the sale of laces and white goods is the commodious and attractive store of Messrs. Le Maistre & Ross, No. 212 North Messrs. Le Maistre & Ross, No. 212

THE EUROPEAN TROUBLES.

The Opinion in Diplomatic Circles---Na-poleon's Lunacy---Bargain Between Na-poleon and Prim.

The Washington correspondence of the New York Herald says:

It is believed here in official circles that forty-eight hours will develop whether there is to be peace or war. The general opinion is that nothing can avert war, because Napoleon desires to measure strength with his great rival, King William. Ever since the battle of Sadowa he is considered to have been preparing and thirsting for a brush with Prussia, and now that some pretext is offered he has seized it eagerly and without the desire or intention of accepting peaceful explanations. M. Berthemy is said to believe that war is inevitable, and Baron Gerolt entertains about the same opinion. The late pacific despatches from Paris, Berlin and London are believed to be mere ruses of the speculators, who desire to affect the markets. While this is the general opinion in official circles here, still it is not to be denied that there are some who entertain very different views. I have heard some men high in office declare that Napoleon is no longer responsible for his acts, that his intellectual as well as physical powers have become greatly weakened within a few years, and that his medical advisers are of the opinion that his trouble is softening of the brain. An incident tending to confirm this story of Napoleon's mental infirmity is related to me. While Marshal Niel, the late French Secretary of War, was on his last bed of sickness, Louis got one of his severest attacks. One of his aids going to see him one morning during this sick spell was astonished to hear the Emperor say to him, "How is Marshal Pelissier?" The latter had been dead some years, and the aid observed, "Your Majesty must mean Marshal Niel, not Pelissier." "No! no! no!" impatiently replied the Emperor, "I mean Pelissier; how is he?" The aid bowed submissively and retired, reporting the conversation to Marshal Niel. The latter directed the aid to go back and report that the Secretary of War was a and report that the Secretary of War was a good deal better. This little anecdote is related to show that this present war move of Napoleon must be the result of ome insane malady; but it seems pretty-vident that if Louis is "looney" he has communicated some of his disease to Ollivier. vident that if Louis is "looney" he has com-municated some of his disease to Ollivier, Gramont, and some of the brightest minds on the empire. There is another story, to the ffect that the candidacy of Prince Leopold is the result of a secret understanding between Napoleon and Prim. These two have had several conferences lately, and it is mysteriously suggested that they have made an arrangement by which, should Prussia accept war with France, Spain will come to the as sistance of the latter through Prim, the head of the army. As a compensation for this support, it is said that Napoleon will aid Prim himself to the Spanish crown, and thus at the same time settle the question who will rule over Spain and which power shall dominate in Europe, France or Prussia.

THE MISSING JUDGE.

Judge George H. Holliday, the Western Judge, not yet Found...What Has Be-come of Him?

Judge George H. Holliday, a gentleman well known in the State of Illinois, where he had been for upwards of eleven years clerk to the county courts of Macoupin county, has been missing about six weeks. He left home in April last to come to New York to sell his thrary, and was here for several weeks. From this city he went to Niagara Falls on the twentieth of May, and put up at the New York Central Hotel, and returned to the New York Central Hotel, and returned to this city on the twenty-third of the same month and put up at the Coleman House. On the 26th he left the city again to go, as he stated, to Boston. When he came to this city he succeeded in disposing of his library, which was a very valuable one, supposed to be worth about $50,000. Although every effort has been made to find him by Dr. W. A. Robertson, Judge T. L. Loomis and I. J. Peebles, and the holder of this city and Boston, his wheren. Judge T. L. Loomis and I. J. Peebles, and the police of this city and Boston, his whereamouts have not been ascertained. No trace of him could be found after he left this city on the cith of May. In fact, he could not be traced out of the city, and the supposition is that ome of the desperate characters with which he metropolis is infested became aware of the fact that he had a large sum of money on his person and dealt foully with him in some out-the-way place. He has a wife and six person and calariously with him in some out-of-the-way place. He has a wife and six children in Carlinville, Ill., and it is said that his life was insured for $10,000 for the benefit of his family. Mr. Holliday is a man forty-six years of age, of about five feet eleven n height. He weighs about 165 pounds. He wears his beard, which is sandy, sprinkled with grey, full and closely trimmed. His friends are doing everything in their power o ascertain his fate, but they have as yet ound no trace of him whatever. He was exected home about the end of May.-Herald.

MINING ACCIDENTS IN ENGLAND. Nearly an Avoudale Disaster. Nearly an Avondale Disaster.

During the whole of Thursday (says the London Daily News, July 2), up to an early hour yesterday morning, great excitement prevailed at Womwell, near Barnsley, owing to an accident which took place at the Deerfield Main Colliery, by which the whole of the men, 300 in number, were confined in the pit for upward of seventeen hours. It appeared that about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning that about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning the cages in the colliery came into collision in the shaft, so that no person could ascend or descend. On some of the men at the top going down to where the obstruction took place, they found the chair broken and the conductors may the broken, and the conductors smashed to pieces to the extent of some twenty or thirty yards A number of them were at once set to work to dear the obstruction, but it was not until abou en o'clock at night that the broken cages were removed and a new one got ready, when the men were safely drawn to the top, a distance of three hundred and thirty-five yards from the bottom.

Another Accident. Four men were suffocated in a gas-tube at the North Staffordshire Coal and Iron Company's Works, Talke, Staffordshire, July 1. The tube, which is fifty yards long and five feet in diameter, is used to convey waste gas from the blast furnaces to heat the furnace boilers. The works were stopped on that morning for the purpose of clearing out the tube, and only some trifling repairs remained to be done before the commencement of work. Three of the men, one of them being the manager and the other his assistants, went into the tube to do these repairs, and when they had remained there an unusuand when they had remained there an unusually long time the fourth man followed to look after them. On his failing to return, a more careful search was made. The three men who first entered were found dead near the middle of the tube, and the other was lying dead at about six yards from the entrance. All appeared to have died instantly and without the peared to have died instantly, and without the least struggle. There was more gas in the tube than was supposed, and the manager had neglected to have it all removed.
