Pennsylvania Steam Sugar Refinery in Ruins.

OTHER PROPERTIES DAMAGED

THE LOSSES AND INSURANCES

Last evening, about a quarter before seven o'clock, the extensive building at the northeast corner of Crown and Race streets, Sixth Ward, known as the Pennsylvania Steam Sugar Refinery, and the property of Newhall, Borie & Co., was discovered to be on fire. The refinery was purchased by the firm about 15 years ago, after it had been used for thirty-five years in the same business. The buildings have lately been enlarged and improved. They extended 150 feet on Race street and 190 feet on Crown street. The Race street front was six stories in height, while the northern half of Crown street front was seven stories, and ran back to the height of eight stories. The walls were of brick, and towered above all the other structures in the vicinity. This large building was stored to its fullest capacity with raw sugar, and the refined article ready for shipment. Operations were continued night and day, one hundred and sixty men working throughout the day, and thirty at night. While these thirty were in the building last evening, and scattered in the various stories, the alarm was sounded that it was on fire, and directly out of the southeastern windows, on the Race street front, dense volumes of smoke burst. The excitement at once became very great, and the firemen were soon moved, but before they reached the ground, and ere the workmen in the upper stories had gained the lower floor, the Race street front was all on fire, and the flames were belching out of the windows with an appalling roar and crackle, leaping across the street, scorching the buildings opposite.

The fire originated in the boiler-room on the ground floor, fronting on Race street, and, it is stated by a workman, was caused by the flames being forced out of the doors of the fire chamber by a sudden draft and communicating with a lot of shavings. The fire spread to the packing-room on the same floor, and darted throughout the entire structure with great rapidity, fed as the flames were by the stock of sugar, amounting to some two thousand hogsheads, stored on the first floor, both on the Race and Crown street portions. The third and fourth floors were used for the storage of the moulds necessary in the manufacture of refined sugar, and the fifth floor for purifying purposes. In a half hour after the first discovery of the flames the entire structure was involved. The flames were in every part of it, leaping through every window, the entire seven stories up, and rising hundreds of feet above the walls, throwing a lurid glare over the squares of dwellings for a great distance on every side. The heat was intense, and it was almost impossible to approach within fifty feet of the burning building. The firemen drew their hose upon the roofs of the buildings on the south side of Race street, and from these elevated positions directed streams into the caldron of flame before. While they are to be credited with great courage and labor, the efforts of the firemen were all futile in attempting to extinguish the flames in the refinery. Despite all the water thrown upon it, the fire did not end until everything inflammable was destroyed, the walls in ruins, and the refinery a smoking mass of debris.

At half-past eight o'clock, the Race street wall, which had been warped two feet out of plumb by the intense heat, fell with a terrible crash. A large number of firemen were hurt by falling bricks, but fortunately the precaution having been taken to keep the street clear, no one was buried beneath the ruins. Soon after, the northern half of the Crown street wall, (seven stories in height,) fell outward, and as there were a number of men in this vicinity, a rumor fast spread that they had been buried beneath the crushed wall, but an investigation proved this report without foundation. Then the partition walls successively went down, with a dull, thundering noise, forcing into the air clouds of sparks, which fell in showers on neighboring roofs, startling the people beneath with the horrifying thought that they were to be burned out. A portion of the northern wall fell out upon the roofs of a number of small dwellings beneath. Upon the top of a building about thirty feet from this wall, were a number of the Philadelphia Hose Company's members. A number of them were injured, while two of them are not expected to live. The Mayor ordered the streets to be roped off, so that no one might be injured by the falling of the remaining walls.

The firm owning this property is composed of Gilbert H., Frederick C. and Harrison L. Newhall, and John J. Borie. They purchased the building with the ground for $500,000, and had added machinery and improvements to them, making their value up to the time of the fire about $600,000. There were 16 large patent safety boilers in the refinery, of the Wiegand and Harrison patterns, and it was over these, in the southeastern section of the building, that the flames were first seen. The steam was very large, and was yesterday increased by large receipts of the raw material. The firm was doing an immense business, and its stock was valued at $400,000, the larger portion of which was in process of refining. As we have said, about two hundred men were employed within the refinery, and at least one-third of that number were employed as teamsters and stevedores. So that about two hundred and sixty workmen are suddenly thrown out of employment. Not a thing was saved from the burning building but the ledger books, and the persons securing them ran the extreme risk of being suffocated.

The total loss on building, stock and machinery is estimated at $800,000.

The Damage to Surrounding Properties.

The dwelling-house No. 215 Crown street, adjoining the sugar refinery on the north, was occupied by Mrs. Campbell as a boarding-house. This building was totally destroyed by the falling of the heavy wall of the refinery. No. 217 Crown street, residence of Mr. Henry Fox, was badly damaged, chiefly by water.

The building at the N. W. corner of Fourth and Race streets, adjoining the sugar-house, was occupied on the first floor by Williams, Waterall & Co., United States Paint works; second floor by Jg. Koehler, entrance No. 204 North Fourth street; third story, empty; fourth and fifth stories by Altemus & Co., photograph album manufacturers and bookbinders; No. 206 North Fourth street, Bamberger and Ellerman, dealers in liquors; No. 208, store of Altemus & Co.; No. 212, M. Zuricby, lager beer saloon; No. 214, M. Daily, matches; No. 216, William M. Fiel & Bro., cabinet makers; No. 218, C. H. Battersdorf, cutler; No. 220, C. Christman, baker; No. 222, H. Eggling, wines, liquors and cigars; No. 224, Thomas F. Brock, plumber; No. 226, R. Murphy & Sons, shoemakers' findings; No. 228, C. Schwartz, tobacco; No. 230, boarding house, kept by William Stone; No. 232, F. Brecht, brewer and saloon keeper; No. 234, C. S. Himmelwright, tailor. The above were all damaged to a greater or less degree by fire, which was communicated to the back parts of the buildings, and by the immense quantity of water which was thrown on them. The Insurance Patrol, under Captain McCusker, rendered efficient service in all these buildings, and with their water-proof covers saved much valuable property from destruction. The heaviest losers are Altemus & Co and Titel Bro. The first named firm are insured for $35,000 and the last named for $3,000. The insurances will fully cover the loss. Titel's insurance is divided between the Fire Association and Franklin Insurance Company.

At one time it was greatly feared that Merkey, Merrill & Thackara's Philadelphia lamp and gas fixture establishment, on Race street, above Fourth, and opposite the refinery, would fall a prey to the flames. The intense heat scorched the building, and the flag-pole on top of it took fire from the heat, but a copious supply of water played on the building saved it from destruction. Oldach & Mergenthaler, blank-book manufacturers, southwest corner Fourth and Race streets, also came near being burnt out, the great heat scorching the front of their store.

Firemen and Others Injured.

While the fire was at its height, portions of the walls, on Race and Crown streets, fell, and a number of firemen were more or less injured. Two of them, reported to belong to the Robert Morris Hose Company, were received into the Pennsylvania Hospital. One of them, Wm. H. Cook, was much bruised about the body, and burned in the arms and legs.

Harry Smith, residing in South street, was severely cut in the head by falling bricks.

The following named members of the Philadelphia (late Moyamensing) Hose Company were injured by the fall of pieces of the Crown street wall:

James Muirland, residing on Bainbridge st., near Eighth.

Frank Fritz, residing in the neighborhood of South and Ninth streets.

John McGurk, residing in Baker street, near Eighth.

Matthias Furey, residing on Paul street, near Sixth.

John S. Smith, residing on Lybrand street, near Race.

Frank Devlin, residence not ascertained.

The only two of the above who were believed to be dangerously hurt were Frank Fritz and Matthias Furey. They were carried to the Neptune Hose House, on Crown street, where they were carefully nursed until means were provided to remove them to the Pennsylvania Hospital.

Samuel Gilpin, a member of the Neptune Hose Company, was overcome by the heat, and was under medical treatment when last heard from with a prospect of recovery.

Wm. H. Myers, Washington Hose, injured in legs and head.

A boy named Louis Law, residing at Fifth and Jefferson, was climbing over the wall surrounding St. Augustine's church-yard, when some bricks from the top of the wall fell on him and hurt him severely.

Frank Deemer, member of Tivoli Hose, leg broken by falling bricks.

George Lauer, Shiffler Hose, struck in the stomach by bricks from falling wall.

Peter Benner, Shiffler Hose, leg broken.

Wm. Kane, residing at No. 646 Fitzwater street, badly bruised about the breast.

James Myers, residing in Bremer's alley, below Vine, fell off a ladder, and was badly hurt.

L. W. Sharpe, Philadelphia Hose, injured in the back, head and legs.

John Williams, Neptune Hose, was injured about the head by a ladder falling upon him.

More Fires.

During the great fire at the Pennsylvania Sugar Refinery last evening, a second alarm was sounded, proceeding from the liquor establishment of Lazarus Moyn, at the southeast corner of Third and Wood streets, the roof of which was damaged by sparks from the large conflagration. This was soon extinguished, when the leather store of John H. Hulseman, No. 321 North Third street, was also discovered on fire. This establishment was seriously damaged, mainly by water. Insured for $5,000 in the Spring Garden Insurance Company. The store of G. Ulman, No. 327 North Third street, importer of cigars, was also slightly damaged.

Doings of the Firemen.

We have received the following communication:

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, July 26, 1870.—To the Editor of the Evening Bulletin: DEAR SIR: At the fire of the Sugar House, on Race and Crown streets, this evening, the Washington fire engine equipped members cut up and used for fuel, under their engine, some two thousand feet of selected oak and other timber I had placed in front of 156 North Fifth street, for building uses.

I have suffered a number of times to the extent of $50 at a time, and feel that a wrong is committed in this way that bears heavily on builders, that the attention of the officers of the Fire Department should at least endeavor to prevent.

Will you call attention to this in your articles favoring a Paid Fire Department, and much oblige yours, &c., JOHN CRUMP.

THE FIRE LAST NIGHT.—The obliteration of large establishments like the mill of John Dearie and the sugar refinery of Newhall, Borie & Co. is something to be set down not only as a loss to the people by whom the various manufactures are carried on, but as an indirect loss to the entire community. The annihilation of any considerable quantity of merchandise, by heightening the value of what remains in market, increases its price to every consumer. Operatives are deprived of employment, while hundreds of stockholders in insurance companies are made to feel the effects of the disaster in their diminished receipts in the shape of dividends.

Within twelve hours more than a million dollars' worth of property has been wiped out of existence by the demon fire. The ruins of the sugar warehouse are being visited to-day, notwithstanding the extreme heat of the sun, by a multitude of people. A glance at the walls of this mammoth structure tells of the destructiveness of the flames, and of the difficulty when they once gain headway of circumscribing their natural course. Through the wall of the sugar refinery the falling of one of the big drums used in the production of sugar has punched a gaping hole as cleanly as a stick would punch a hole through a paper kite. Sullenly and slowly, as if the element were sated with its vengeance, trailing banners of smoke are still rising above the ruins. Through the sashless windows appears the melancholy spectacle of half-burned timbers, great pans crushed shapeless as so many battered pots, great piles of brick, and elaborate and costly machinery now mingled with other debris in a state of chaos.

The condition of the interior of Altemus & Co.'s bindery and deposit room presents a discouraging spectacle. The loss to stock is principally by water. That instead of being partial the loss isn't total, is because of the prompt and sagaciously-directed efforts of Chief McCusker and his insurance patrol. The mischief attending such fires is the injury that they inflict upon regular trade. Merchandise smoked or wetted, even though triflingly, finds its way to the auction room. Precisely to the extent of its quantity it inflicts injury upon regular trade. In the present case, the stock of Altemus & Co. is more or less wetted. It therefore cannot be put into the market in the regular way.

To restore to its former condition this cicatrix at Fourth and Race streets must necessarily consume considerable time. To procure extensive machinery is the work of long labor—often a longer time than to erect a building to receive it. The refinery, we presume, will be re-erected as soon as possible. Candor compels us to say that a hope is expressed by everybody in the vicinity that it will be built elsewhere, and that its present site will be devoted to other purposes.

By few who saw the burning of last night, we think, will the occasion be soon forgotten. A more extensive or expensive piece of pyrotechnics is not often seen. The only one exceeding it in beauty, though not in size, was the result of the burning of French & Richards' drug house at Tenth and Market streets. The burning of the sugar house, as a spectacle, was fearfully beautiful. Against the background of the sky it traced out in lines of fiery gold, for squares around, every spire and pinnacle within its reach. High above it, through the smoke that lowered over all, like so many tropical fire flies danced a myriad of sparks held upward in the rarefied atmosphere until they paled and fell. The roof before it sank in was a continuous array of flaming pennons, and when the grand crash came it seemed as if Polyphemus were present in person, and was stirring up again the fiery forges of Ætna. The police found difficulty in keeping back the crowds; at this moment a cordon of them is necessary to limit the advance of the curious multitude.

Eleven hundred thousand dollars have been wiped out of existence within half a day, like a sum upon a schoolboy's slate. Who's turn comes next?

CHOWDER.—The heat to-day is rather more tolerable. Though still among the nineties it is tempered by a pleasant breeze.

—Signor Blitz is rusticating at Groton, Mass. Signor Blitz, Jr., having "felt his bumps," and finding himself all right in point of courage, will open out to-morrow night at the Ocean House, Cape May. His success is of course, beyond all question.

—A gentleman living at Nineteenth and Wallace streets tells us that last night, by the light of the sugar-house fire, he could see to read print from his second story window.

—The business done by our committing magistrates just now is very limited. Of civil business they have next to nothing. Recorder Given spends his time in reading up the reviews. Justice Kerr comes daily to the Central Station mainly for the purpose of going through the motions.

—For refusing to allow to pass through the fire cordon, last night, an unaccredited reporter of the Inquirer, the worthy lieutenant of the Fourth District is this morning visited with unmerited vituperation. The author of the attack is a new comer who, unprovided with a badge or other credentials, undertook to force his way through a line that duty compelled the lieutenant to preserve unbroken.

—Watermelons are in market. They bring a price that may be set down as stiff. Canteloupes are growing plentiful. Really fine and edible peaches came on this morning in small quantities. By Saturday next we shall have not only these in their perfection, but sweet potatoes also.

HOUSE ROBBERY.—Some time during last night the dwelling of George F. Gordon, No. 828 North Broad street, was entered by thieves. The family are absent from the city. Some of the neighbors discovered that there was something wrong, and notified the police. The premises were searched, but it could not be ascertained whether anything had been stolen. The house was then locked up. Further developments showed that the search was not very effective. About four o'clock this morning, a negro, with a bundle, was seen to leave the house, having cut a panel out of a door. He was pursued for some distance, but succeeded in escaping.

ANOTHER DEATH.—James Dundon, aged 21 years, another of the men who were injured by the falling of the scaffold at the oil refinery at Point Breeze, died this morning at the Pennsylvania Hospital.

HOW A ROBBERY WASN'T COMMITTED.—Last evening, Lieut. Leech, of the Sixteenth District Police, was notified that silver ware valued at several hundred dollars, had been stolen from a house at the southeast corner of Thirty-ninth and Chestnut streets. As an inventory of the stolen articles was being made, the silver ware, nicely packed up, was found concealed under a bush in the yard. It was supposed that the thieves would return during the night for the plunder, and a close watch was kept, but nobody turned up.

TAPPING A TILL.—John Kidd, aged 16 years, was arrested yesterday upon the charge of having stolen $20 from the money-drawer of a trimming store on Haverford street, above Forty-first. He was taken before Alderman Randall, and was committed for a further hearing.

ACCIDENT.—Frank Myers, driver of the Assistance Fire Company, while pushing on the back locker of the Company's hose carriage last evening, was badly injured by the tongue of the William Penn Hose carriage striking him. He was taken to his home, at Ninth and Brown streets.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.—Geo. Smith, colored, was caught in the act of robbing the money-drawer of a tavern on Amber street, above York, yesterday afternoon. He only succeeded in getting eight cents. Alderman Heins committed him in default of $500 bail.

ANOTHER ACHIEVEMENT.—The most handsome private express wagon we have ever seen has just been built for the well-known stationers, the Brothers Murphy, at the corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets. Whatever is undertaken by this enterprising young firm is not only done, but done in the best possible manner. The iron work of the vehicle has been plated with nickel—a plating having all the lustre of silver, with the imperishability of hammered steel. This work was done at the Star Nickel Plating Works, No. 425 Walnut street, in this city, under the superintendence of Wm. F. Irwin, Esq. The task was a ponderous one. It is compensated for by the exceeding beauty of the work. The advantage of a surface nickel is, that to destroy it you must first destroy the metal behind it, and that what would ruin the brilliance of silver is without effect upon a surface washed in nickel. Under the vigorous and intelligent management of Mr. Irwin, the Star Nickel Works have been lifted into an important position in the list of the manufactures of Philadelphia.

ANOTHER NEW YORK BAY EXCURSION.—The New York Bay Excursion, given by Beck's Band, on Thursday last, was very successful, and it has been determined to have another on Monday next around New York Bay and down to Long Branch, landing at New York two hours. The excursionists leave Walnut street wharf at 7½ A. M., proceed by rail to Amboy, and then take the splendid steamboat William Cook. The trip around New York Bay and Staten Island is delightful, and every opportunity is given for a view of the magnificent scenery which lines the steamer's course. The members of the band furnish both promenade and dancing music. The fare for a single ticket is but $2 50; for a lady and gentleman, $4 50. Tickets can be procured at the office of Beck's Band, 828 Market street; of Charles Brintzinhofer, 935 Market street; of Engs Renner, 501 Girard avenue; Ticket Office, 828 Chestnut street; and at the wharf on the morning of the excursion.

GRAND CARNIVAL AT ATLANTIC CITY.—The sojourners at Atlantic City are at no loss for amusements and pleasant entertainments during this summer. The grand carnival and fancy dress ball of the season will be given at the Sea View Excursion House, on Wednesday evening, August 3d. The arrangements for the affair are in charge of competent gentlemen, and the capacious and elegant ball-room of the Sea View may be expected to present a very brilliant scene.

A SPEAKING LIKENESS.—Among the most faithful portraits of General Grant yet produced is a large half-length picture now exhibited in the window of Turner & Brother, No. 808 Chestnut street. It is from the easel of Lindeman. It is certainly the happiest effort among the most signal successes of the artist in question. As the picture is for sale and the price but $1 50, the opportunity to see it at Turner's is likely to be of short duration. The picture is oval, enclosed in a massive frame.

NEW YORK BAY EXCURSION.—The Liberty Silver Cornet Band's second grand excursion to New York Bay, around Staten Island and up the Hudson river, will be given to-morrow. The excursionists will be allowed one hour in New York City.

CITY NOTICES.

HOW TO LOOK YOUNG—SIXTEEN.—Don't paint or use vile Hair Restorers, but simply apply Hagan's Magnolia Balm upon your face, neck and hands and use Lyon's Kathairon upon your hair. The Balm makes your complexion pearly, soft and natural, and you can't tell what did it. It removes freckles, tan, sallowness, ring-marks, moth-patches, etc.; and in place of a red, rustic face, you have the marble purity of an exquisite belle. It gives to middle age the bloom of perpetual youth. Add these effects to a splendid head of hair produced by the Kathairon, and a lady has done her best in the way of adornment. Brothers will have no sister sisters when these articles are around.

IS IT MEDICINE?—A friend of ours, who hails from one of the upper districts of South Carolina, called at the Pick office, and, among other novelties, he mentioned "Wolfe's Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps," and stated, as a fact, that in his section of the country nearly all of the physicians, in certain cases, when they deemed ardent spirits necessary to prolong or save life invariably used these "Schnapps," justly regarding it as the only spirits that could be procured pure and unadulterated. He also stated that this medicine or "Schnapps" was becoming the only beverage sold on the great stage or railroad routes. He says those physicians who have used and analyzed it, state that for diseases such as gravel, gout, rheumatism, &c., it is incomparable.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.—The intensely hot weather of the past few weeks has given rise to a new idea in domestic economy, i. e., that of bottling up the heat in self-sealing cans for winter use. This, it is claimed, would tend to moderate the temperature at the present time, and in view of the high rates which will rule next winter, otherwise seem to be inadmissible. But we have no faith in the enterprise, and would advise our readers to supply themselves with good old-fashion anthracite, such as our friends, Messrs. MITCHELL & WROTH, dispense at their popular depot, Northeast corner of Ninth and Girard avenue. They have a specialty of the Beaver Meadow Lehigh, which, for household use, has advantages over any other brand. Now is the time and this is the place to procure your supply for the winter.

PHALON'S "VITALIA," for the hair, can be found everywhere. It is clear, and has no sediment. This wonderful preparation is PHALON'S VITALIA, or SALVATION FOR THE HAIR. Beyond the pale of question no stain. It is nevertheless, the most effective article of its class ever advertised. Sold by all druggists and fancy goods dealers.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the Company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at no distant day to command a market price considerably above par.

The greater part of the road is already completed, and the balance of the work is rapidly progressing.

The present advanced condition and large earnings of the road warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors as, in every respect, an undoubted security.

United States Five-twenties, at present prices, only return five per cent. interest, while these pay eight and one quarter per cent in Gold; and we regard the security equally good.

The Company reserve the right without notice to advance the price.
