PHILADELPHIA LOW-LIFE.

Rich and Poor. We all know that at this moment a large part of the homes professedly deserted are really occupied.

People who frequent but the West End of the city, and who will delicately ask, as a school-miss of our acquaintance did, "where South street is," have little conception of the strange scenes going on at their sides during the moonlight nights when they sit at the door-plate daily acculturated to the rust of neglect.

In the Rittenhouse region you stray through silent and echoing streets, with "Not at Home" vociferously written everywhere, with brilliant cats spitting at you through the balustrades, and with an inspiring consciousness of belles in crumpled wrappers possibly peeping through the chinks of lofty inside shutters; there is an ostentation of being deserted.

But turn eastward and southward—work yourself gradually, through many and increasing obstructions, into the locality populated by our day-laborers, hod-carriers, porters, stevedores and lazzaroni, and the whole complexion of things is changed. Here there is no pretense of being other than what and where you are.

The well-meaning Fountain Society might be caused to transplant their basins from the front of the most notorious rum-shops. While the horse drinks the driver is sure to feel thirsty, and he is not satisfied with what contents the horse. He goes inside,—and the master's errand is spoiled by an imbruted messenger.

As a speculation on the part of the City of Philadelphia, the Seventh street grog-shop is a most disastrous one. Old Mullen, it is true, must have fully and punctually paid his fifty-eight dollars per annum for the privilege of selling his poisoned poison.

When the pains used to say to us: "Vender I want studies of real grace and naturally noble attitude, I go down into the Ghetto, at Rome; there is the place to detect the poses that Raphael copied, and the play and expression of live limbs and bodies."

The change indeed, to a promenade who walks in the direction we have indicated, is sinister and unpleasant. The lofty lines of cornice and the stately perspective of porticos are exchanged for low crouching roofs, that are humped with an unexpected hip like the back of a toad, structures that begin as respectable three-storied houses, but quickly get out into their back-yards in the dark and kneel down into two-stories, then thrust out a futile long shed or low wall that has somebody unexpectedly watching you from the roof of it.

But at almost every corner, even at the narrow alley-corner, comes a great flash of garish light. Some dramm-seller has bought the property, and after his fashion, improved it. The upper stories, probably, are left to their sins; the mortar has crumbled from between the old cracked and blackened bricks, the wooden lintels are split and dark, the roof is crooked and treacherous.

The liquor-sellers. But at almost every corner, even at the narrow alley-corner, comes a great flash of garish light. Some dramm-seller has bought the property, and after his fashion, improved it.

The Yellow Fever.—Mrs. Fanny Garrettville, nurse at the Lazaretto hospital, who was ill of yellow fever, as stated in the BULLETIN yesterday, died yesterday afternoon. She has been at quarantine station about two weeks, and has been very faithful and attentive in the discharge of her duties as nurse.

CONCEALED WEAPON.—A colored man, named William Woods, was arrested last night at Ninth and Rittenhouse streets, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. On searching him a blackjack was found in his pocket. After a hearing before Alderman Jones, he was committed on the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons.

DELIBERATE LICENSE OF SIN. We wish we could pass here and express all that we have felt while watching the goings-on down in these hideous palaces; but our aim is at present somewhat different, and we will only stop to represent in a few lines solid with matter, the evil they do and to the community at large, including the respectable classes.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.—An attempt was made to enter the cigar store No. 211 Carpenter street, about twelve o'clock last night. A shouter was pried open, when the thieves were frightened off by Policeman Peeney, who fired five shots after them.

STOLEN ROBBERY.—The hat and cap store of A. J. Hess, No. 1010 South street, was entered by forcing open a back door sometime during last night. Goods valued at $100 were stolen.

SLIGHT FIRE.—The dwelling of David Moss, Esq., at the corner of Huntingdon, was slightly damaged by fire about half-past five o'clock this morning. The flames originated from a defective flue.

TIRE TAPPING.—The liquor store of Mr. Slick, Thirtieth and Calloway streets, was entered last night by a sneaky thief and $47 in pennies were stolen from the money drawer.

ACCIDENT.—William Fryson, aged 40 years, residing at 1632 Vine street, fell down and broke his arm this morning.

BECK'S PHILADELPHIA BAND, No. 1.—On account of the storm the Fifth Grand Excursion out to New York bay and down to Long Branch, advertised for Thursday, August 11th, will be given Friday, August 12, 1870, leaving Walnut street wharf at 7.30 A. M. Tickets for the excursion to-morrow (Friday) will be sold at a special rate, giving the excursionists a fine view of Long Branch, the magnificent scenery of Staten Island, and landing in New York an hour.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION.—Mundy's thirteenth annual moonlight excursion to Atlantic City, on Saturday evening, August 13th, the last boat leaving Vine street wharf at 8 o'clock. Everybody who has visited Atlantic City knows Mundy, and there are many who have not, and who would be very popular for those who cannot afford a permanent business, this excursion comes in very well, as the train reaches the city on the return at 6.20 A. M. on the following Monday morning.

WAB CRISIS IN PARIS. Singular Street Scenes. The correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from Paris, gives a droll account of the street scenes of the city, and the announcement of the declaration of war. He says: "I saw one group of several hundred young men carrying the colors of the republic, and a scintillating hymn. They were no doubt exceedingly interested in what they were about, but the famous hymn was not so grand and overwhelming as they had expected."

WAR DECLARED.—WONDERFUL STREET SCENES. The city of Paris, on the evening of the 19th, was in a state of excitement in Paris such as has seldom been witnessed on this perturbed planet. The people were upon the streets by hundreds of thousands, and the air was filled with the sound of marching bands, and the shouting of the multitude.

DEVELOPMENTS YESTERDAY. The N. Y. Sun has the following: "Yesterday Mr. Frederick Nathan and several workmen, who had at various times been arrested for house-breaking, were examined by Mr. Washington Nathan, who is supposed to answer a number of questions which had been forgotten the preceding day. The result of the examination may be very briefly stated. Suspicion has been directed from the rooms of the murdered man, and has been directed toward William Kelly."

THE NATHAN MURDER. Developments Yesterday. The N. Y. Sun has the following: "Yesterday Mr. Frederick Nathan and several workmen, who had at various times been arrested for house-breaking, were examined by Mr. Washington Nathan, who is supposed to answer a number of questions which had been forgotten the preceding day. The result of the examination may be very briefly stated. Suspicion has been directed from the rooms of the murdered man, and has been directed toward William Kelly."

THE STORM AT UTICA, N. Y.

$200,000 Worth of Property Destroyed. The Utica Observer of the 9th gives a detailed account of the storm on the previous night in Onondaga county. The city of Utica was almost entirely destroyed. The Old Ladies' Home, on Faxon street, was almost entirely destroyed. At Washington Mills the house of Mrs. Mitchell was struck. Severe injury was sustained by the slaughter, three barns in Frankfort, the residence of Roderick Smith, were consumed. The loss will be about $3,000, and the insurance is light.

THE COURTS.

QUARTER SESSIONS.—Judge Pansow.—Sam'l Webster was put on trial, charged with the pin, the property of Mr. Charles G. Mann. The house of Mr. Mann, 633 North Twelfth street, was entered during his absence, and the contents were stolen. Shortly afterwards the watch in the name of Sharp, and the breast-pin in the name of Harry Walters, were found in the house. It was contended that they had been given to him to pawn. The jury went out to deliberate upon the case.

LETTER FROM ATLANTIC CITY.

(Correspondence of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.) ATLANTIC CITY, August 10, 1870.—Providence seems to have been peculiarly favorable to this pleasant "Seaside City" this present season. Although there have been many thousands more people here, compared with former years, not a single accident has occurred either on the trains or in the surf, to mar the fullest enjoyment of pleasure by all.—The weather, from the moment the season commenced, has been of such uniform temperature as to invite citizens of your over-heated city to take up their residence with us during the "heated term," and therefore, at an early day almost every house on the island became crowded. Notwithstanding the vast increase of accommodations, and those too of the very best character, the hotels and boarding-houses have been, in many instances, packed from first floors to attics, and many luckless wights have been content to take lodgings on a "soft plank."
