face of the decline in bonds was without effect upon the market. The war news received, although of the gand nixed, unsatisfactory and contradictory character, seeming to infer a less favorable situation for the French than had been previously reported, aded in this decline. From this figure it railled to 11755, but wont off again upon a still further improvement in the London market and a second time touched 11675. Here it suffered yet another reaction and recovered to 1175, goings off, however, toward the close and settling to the lowest figure upon a rumor to the effect that a pool is organizing to depress the price:

| MacMahon's Army---No Time to be Lost: London, Aug. 26, Noon.—The following advices have been received here from Paris: The hopes of the country are fixed upon. MacMahon's movements. A great battle is imminent, not because we seek it, but because there is a necessity for the enemy to act quickly in order to be successful.

| A delay of two weeks will turn the tide of the country by the provided in th against him, and inactivity by then would give us time to form two new armies, and reinforce those already in the field; consequently a serious conflict is imminent.

Peace negotiations are still spoken of, but unless disastrously defeated, we will listen to nobody while the enemy remains on the soil of France. M. De LaTour D'Auvergne declares this, and the press unanimously approves his declaration.

Exciting Debates in the Corps Legislatif.

There has been less said to-day respecting the seemingly mythical pool to advance the premium, which has so excited the market during the past few days, and the course of the premium to-day does not certainly avor its existence. There are many who reassort, however, that such a clique has been formed to advance the price of gold, which may corner, but the prevailing impression is that only a short turn will be attempted. There are unscrupulous speculators enough here who would not hesitate at any scheme whereby their own profit may be served, at whatever sacrifice of principle; but these have a wholesame fear of becretary Boutwell, and fully appreciate that no conspiracy to disturb the trade, similar to that
