RAILWAY MASTER MECHANICS.

Their Third Appual Convention. This morning, at 9½ o'clock, was opened in the Assembly Buildings, Tenth and Chestnut streets, the third annual convention of the Master Mechanics of the United States. H. M. Britton, of Cincinnati, President of the Association, called the assemblage to order, Association called the assemblage to order, and stated that a prayer would be offered by Mr. Wells, of the Jefferson, Madison and Indianapolis Railroad. After the prayer the President stated that the Committee on Manufactures had presented the Convention with white badges, which the members were requested to wear, to designate them from the risitors.

The fourth article of the Constitution of the Association, relating to the qualifications of master mechanics as members, was then read by Mr. Britton.
The primates of the preceding convention

The minutes of the preceding convention were next read by the Secretary and the same adopted.

The roll of members was then called and new members allowed time to sign the con-The President then delivered the following stitution.

The President then delivered the following address:

Gentiemen of the Convention: Again we are permitted to be gathered together in this our third anniversary, and it is with no ordinary feelings of satisfaction and pride that I greet you in open convention.

Pride, first because you have conferred upon me the honor of presiding, and secondly, because there is be fore me evidence of the not only unabated, but increased interest, as manifested by the number present, and en larged by the addition of many 'new faces that have not before met with us.

Satisfaction, because our organization, undertaken with many fears and missivings in. September, '58, is no longer an experiment, but a reality.

Our session of '69, also anticipated with some doubt, was a source of encouragement; and now this gathering of eighteen hundred and seventy, as though drawn by "brotherly love," because appointed here, proves and confirms the wisdom of all our previous efforts, and establishes the Master Machinists Association of America upon a basis not to be disturbed, and therefore a fixed fact.

We are now an organization that cannot fail to be productive of good results; that will be enhanced in proportion to our perseverance. Known only to ourselves for a time, we are now a reorganized body of men, as being anxious to serve faithfully the interests of our employes, and to cater to the contour and satety of the traveling public. We are recognized by the superior officers of the different lines of railway with which we are connected, and thus sustanded and encouraged by the present of the different lines of railway with which we are recognized by the properties and present and properties and properties and properties and properties of properties and properties of the different lines of railway with which we are connected, and thus sustanded and encouraged by the properties and e all efforts made in their behalf tending to their comfort our proceedings, and we have many indications that we are recogized by the traveling public, who appreciate all efforts made in their behalf tending to their comfort, speed and safety in traveling public, who appreciate all efforts made in their behalf tending to their comfort, speed and safety in traveling.

Favorably the owners of railroads have watched our progress and intentions, because they observe a determination on our part to promote their interests by a faithful desire to improve upon, and care for their property, confided to us in trust.

With all these surrounding encouragements, gentlemen, we may well fell proud of our institution, though yet in its infancy, but already indicating such permanence and beneticial results.

The object of our Association is not of a mercenary character; we gather together that by united experience we may gain knowledge in our profession, and this knowledge thus acquired cannot be stamped as a selfish desire, for it is to be directly imparted to those in our employ, and indirectly applied to the interests of the community wherever penetrated by the iron rail and traversed by the locomotive.

Let us then feel greatly encouraged in our enterprise, and enter upon the work with renewed zeal, and a permanent and gratifying success will crown our efforts. The reports of the various committees submitted to the last Convention at Pittsburgh were very satisfactory, and abounded in useful information. These have been printed in pampliet form, and copies may be obtained by application to the Secretary.

Avery member should recognize it as his duty, and esteem it a pleasure to render all the assistance possible to the various committees, by promptly contributing any new ideas in his experience upon any topic that may come before the convention, thus adding to the committee appointed last year shall make their report to this convention, an opportunity will be given for discussion, and I would especially urge upon all to participate with a perfect freedom. A member who entertains dif minds.

I would call the attention of members to the fact that to a very limited extent, the leading officers of a few roads have formed a wrong conception of the objects of our indertaking. In some instances it has been coupled with "labor unions" and other offensive projects that are entirely foreign to our intention.

It is desirable thatmembers should personally make it a point to disabuse the minds of such officers of their erroneous impressions, and explain fully the object and importance of our meetings and discussions, and solicit their cro-operation. When we are thus fully understood they will undoubtedly heartily second our efforts to promote the welfare of our association, and thereby sustain us in striving to unite our common knowledge and experience in whatever tends to occuming durability and safety in the management of the property committed to our care. Those of us who can look backward twenty-five years and see the vast strides that have been made in the quality and management of machinery, can form some idea of what may be expected for the future.

communes to our care. Those of us who can look backward twenty-five years and see they ast strides that have been made in the quality and management of machinery, can form some idea of what may be expected for the future.

Let each one of us then endeavor to make the improvement for the next twenty-five years compare favorably with the past, so that in the future. should we be stared, we may look back with feelings of pride and epicasure upon our organization of 1863; and to accomplish this, each one must be willing and anxious to contribute his mite to the general fund of knowledge.

Ido not wish to be considered wearisome, but there is another feature to which I would call your attention and that is its social element. From the Atlantte to the Pacific Ocean, and from the northern Lakes to the Guli of Mexico, by the reaching out of the iron arm of rail ways, our various engagements are locate; and were it not for our organization, being thus widely separated, we must have continued strangers to each other.

But being brought together in a business point of view, we are made socially acquainted; and by an interchange of traternal feelings much good may, be accomplished. I am glad also to learn that so many are as companied by their wives. It is a gratification to us and doubtless a pleasure to them to be here. Here, in this great and beautifule ity of "brotherly love," they will see and meet with much to interest and plense, and from the change our felicity, may spur up the course to go and do filtewies; and thus secure their happiness and meet with much to interest and plense, and from the change four felicity, may spur up the course to go and do filtewies; and thus secure their happiness and we with them, are enjoying ourselves in a manner that a bachelor cannot, perhaps some of our single members seeing our felicity, may spur up the course of those entitled to membership. His duties in the past year by encouraging the attendance and interest though arduous, have been falled willingly with signal perinter, at practical facts. I can speak of him only in forms of unisc, so a man, mechanic and manager. Through his ath our Association has lost one of its most caraest, negetic and practical members.

I hope the Convention will take some action in reference to the loss we have sustained by their death, and me respect in which we hold their memory.

And now, gentlemen, in conclusion, I would recommend that we be punctual and regular in our attendence upon the sessions, and that all may take an active art in the deliberations of the various subjects that may come before us for consideration. To you, then, as a body. I now commit this Convention, with many hanks for your attention and forbearance, whilst I have been making these crude and imperfect remarks.

The next business in order was the reading of the Treasurer's report. On motion of O. H. P. Little it was received and adopted.

Mr. Dodge offered the following: "The question having been raised as to the propriety of allowing visitors to attend the deliberations of the association, it is moved that the privilege be temporarily accorded each member of inviting such guests as he may elect, and that the subject be referred for final action to a committee upon revision of by action to a committee upon revision of by-Agreed to.

The Committee on Boilers and Boiler Materials, appointed at the last Convention, consisting of Messrs. Hays, Anderson and Jauriet, then reported progress, and offered several valuable suggestions relative to the construction of locomotive boilers. The report also treated of the relative merits of English and American locomotives, and claimed pre-ference for the latter on account of their being better adapted for work on roads of any con struction, the English engine being only suited for roads constructed in a first-class manner. The report was received and the Committee discharged.

On motion, an intermission of five minutes was taken to allow new members to sign the Constitution.

The following forms a complete list of the tonte B.B.

Upon re-assembling Mr. Yale moved that the Convention continue in session, daily, from 9 A. M. until 2 P. M., until its business is ended. Agreed to.

A discussion followed on "boiler plates," in which a number of the delegates took part. The next business in order being the report on steel tires and axles, the committee reported progress and asked for time to finish their report. On motion, the committee was continued. The Committee on Cylinder and Stuffing next reported, and their report received and adopted, and the Committee discharged. A discussion then followed, when twenty-four delefavor of steam packing. Many of the delegates favored what is known as the "Dunbar Patent Packing." Others were in favor of the use of the "Stearn's Patent Packing," the merits and demerits of both being pretty generally venti-Mr. Gregg, of the Erie R. R., moved that a vote be taken, so as to ascertain how many of the members favored the Stevens, the Dunbar, or the Spring packing.

To this motion Mr. Sellers objected, stating that he was not in favor of having the Con vention advertise any man's particular claims.

Mr. Gregg disclaimed any such idea and only desired to know the respective choice of each master mechanic present.

Mr. Hayes entertained the idea that differ Mr. Hayes entertained the idea that differ ence in water and iron formed the principal rouble with regard to either packing. On one road where the water was good, the Dunbar packing would suit, whilst on another it might not be found to answer. He was of the opinion that the question might be discussed until doomsday and no conclusion arrived at. As to the matter of voting he did not think the convention ought to take any such vote.

The President announced that there were award gentlemen present who favored both several gentlemen present who favored both Stearn's and Dunbar's packing, and hence hey-could-not cast a-vote in-favor-of-either.

On motion, the one made by Mr. Gregg, was laid upon the table. The report of the Committee on Boiler Incrustation was next called In response the Secretary stated that the hairman of the committee had, through a change in his position, been unable to attend the matter, but had transferred the duty o Mr. Tour. Mr. T. consulted with Mr. Ray of the T. W. & W. R. R., but the latter gentle man, through ill health, could afford no assistance, consequently the labor devolved upon Mr. T. alone, who presented, not a reort, but a communication pertinent to the ubject. The paper recommended the use of ome arrangement by which the water used night be purified, as that element and its con-tituent parts were the sole cause of incrustaion. On motion, the paper was ordered to tion. On motion, the paper was ordered to be entered on the minutes.

The next business in order was the report of the Committee on Safety Valves, which was read by the Secretary.

On motion, the report was received and adopted and the Committee discharged.

The Committee on Smoke Stacks, Ash Pans, and Grate Bars, reported through the Secre-

and Grate Bars, reported through the Secreary, and the same was received, adopted, and

The committee discharged.

The report of the Committee on Boiler Explosions was next called for, but owing to the absence of the chairman, the committee asked for further-time, which request was granted. The Committee on Dead Weight Rolling Stock made a similar request, which was granted.

The Committee on Uniform Size of Tires re ported through the secretary. The number of different-sized tires in use amounts to 63, and the committee reported in favor of several of them alone, the centres being 36, 40, 44, 50, 56 and 62 inches. The report was received, adopted, and the committee discharged.

A general interchange of opinion following this subject. On motion, further discussion of the retter was hid ever until to recover. of the matter was laid over until to-morrow in order that the general Committee on Tires may be beard. The hour of two o'clock having arrived the President declared the convention adjourned until 9 o'clock A. M. to-morrow.

Prior to their leaving the Hall each member was furnished with a neat and serviceable memorandum book, furnished through the kindness of Wm. F. Murphy's Sons, Railway Stationers, No. 339 Chestnut street. THE HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION.-The The Horticultural Exhibition.—The annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, at Horticultural Hall; a description of which was given in the Bulletin of yesterday, was visited by a large number of ladies and gentlemen list evening. The concert was delightful, the programme having been very well arranged. The exhibition itself is one of the finest of the kind ever given in this city. It will be continued every evening until Friday night.

FOUNDLING.—Last might about ten o'clock an infant about five weeks old was found on the steps of a house, No. 1213 Carpenter street. The little one was taken in charge by a family realding in the neighborhood.

Fox's American Varieties.—There is an old adage that "Merit will meet with its reward." There is no better practical illustration of this than the popular applause which every evening greets the efforts of Mr. Manager Fox, who has made his variety theatre one of the fixed institutions of Philadelphia. When he gets into his more palatial establishment on Chestnut, above Tenth, he can congratulate himself upon his great success in business. To himself upon his great success in business. To achieve this much requires close attention to business, continuous perseverance, liberality and judgment, especially in choosing his as

A few years since he came to Philadelphia a stranger, and, by his unostentatious deport-ment, he collected around him friends whose good opinions are worth cherishing. The entertainments at the Varieties are thrilling and exciting, and as they all possess merit, must of necessity become popular with the public. His minstrel performers are the most eminent in the sable profession.—Public Record, Sept. 10.

MUSICAL.-Madame Blanche Smith, of the Musical.—Madame Blanche Smith, of the Philadelphia Music School, 1208 Chestnut street, has secured the services of Signor Paul Georza as teacher of vocal music. Signor Georza is a member of the Conservatoire of Milan, and is known as a composer of popular music. His acceptance of a position in a school in this city is a fortunate thing for the Principal, and we believe it will be, also, for the principal, and we believe it will be, also, for the principal in the art of singing.

MARTIN BROS., the picture auctioneers, open the fall campaign with a large and showy lot of pictures, which will be sold to-morrow and next day, day and evening. They consist of landscapes, and careful copies of works by celebrated masters.—The season being so early, bargains—may be—anticipated.—169-pictures are numbered in the catalogue.

WATCHWORDS OF THE CAMPAIGN.—Wana maker & Brown have determined to stick by their old watchwords and live by them through this campaign, as they have done through all previous ones. "Lowest Prices," "Best Workmanship," "Largest Stock," "Popular" and "Reliable."
