THE MILITARY OPERATIONS.

Confirmation of the French Victory at Vissois—Heavy Losses to the Prussians—The Orleans Line Clear for the Prussians—Trochu's Policy.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Evening.—A special telegram from the Prussians sustained their reports of a complete success in their attempt to cut the line of the Orleans Railway.

After their repulse at Inverey and before the Fort of Ivry they yesterday undertook a forced passage and secure control of the line. They were met by the Orleans Railway from Corbeil upon the main trunk of the Orleans line at the hamlet of Vissois.

The French force of about equal numbers, posted in the most advantageous position, and with their batteries and their cavalry in line, were extremely severe, and lasted nearly six hours.

A fresh column of nearly 20,000 Prussians came up after the battle had gone on for three hours and attempted, by a flank movement, to enter the works. The slaughter was fearful.

The masked batteries of the French infantry were kept up so continuous and terrible a fire that the cavalry and infantry of the Prussians were decimated and many of the whole line finally fell back in disorder.

Paris is abundantly provisioned for more than two months. Bread is now no dearer than it was before the siege began, and meat is actually cheaper than the results naturally from three causes.

The complete and suddenness of the destruction were evidenced by numerous little circumstances—such as the burnt remains of all other animals one would have expected to find in the streets, and pigeons, and even cats in large numbers.

Horror of the Battle-Field. A correspondent of the Paris Journal has the following: "At Givonne I saw a vast and desolate scene. The ground was deep and deep. In French and Prussian lay side by side, no longer enemies, but brave men united in death."

Minister Washburne in Congratulation of the Republic and the Republic in Reply. The French Minister of Foreign Affairs received from the United States Legation the following note:

An Abandoned Vessel at New Castle. The Wilmington Commercial says: It was briefly noted in yesterday's Commercial that an abandoned bark had been picked up at New Castle.

The following is the scandalous manner in which that beautiful ballad, "The Last Rose of Summer," was massacred at a fashionable concert: "Tiz ze last rose of summer, Left lying alone, All sweet and fragrant, Are fled in vain."

of living in working for the welfare of all shall be secured both for the present generation and for posterity. Finally, I will say to your Excellency that I congratulate myself on having to do with one so distinguished as yourself, and who has devoted to the cause of humanity and to free institutions, is so well appreciated in my own country.

MARETZEK AND FISK. The New Yesterday. The following is Mr. Mareztek's statement of the difficulty which brought him and James Fisk, Jr., to blows:

The reply of Jules Favre in behalf of the Government reads thus: "Sir, I consider it a happy augury for the French Republic that it should have obtained as its first diplomatic success the recognition of the Government of the United States."

After the Battle. A correspondent of the London Times, writing from Florenville on Sept. 4, says: "I have just been to the theatre, and have witnessed a performance of the opera 'Les Huguenots' which will be long remembered by those who were present."

Accept the assurances of the high consideration with which I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant, JULES FAVRE.

WAR NOTES. The Berlin Times states: "The German victories in the field have been followed by a complete change in the modes of fashions. The champions of chicness have been routed. No decent lady wears such an unsightly appendage any longer, and nobody has the nerve to wear it."
