THE OCCUPATION OF ROME. The great struggle in France has also absorbed the attention of the world, that the drama just enacted in Rome has created none of the excitement which would have ensued if the Italians had occupied the Eternal City six months ago.

It is affirmed, that the "legal tender" act is unconstitutional and void. As the question will arise again before the Court before the year is out, we hope Councils will wait for the opinion of the full Court, and not endeavor to buy popularity for city laws by this use of the public money, or attempt to cast dishonor on the Congress of '62 that saved the life of the nation.
