HUMOROUS ITEMS.

An irreverent rascal publishes the following atrocious conundrum:

"What is the difference between a maiden of sixteen and one of sixty?"
One is happy and carefree, while the other is cappy and hairless."

An will ye afther telling what kind of a baste ye call this, said a newly arrived Irishman, holding up a wasp between his thumb and finger.

"Och, murder! Spake quick, for he's biting me."

A village pedagogue, in despair with a stupid boy, pointed at the letter A, and asked him if he knew it.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, what is it?"

"I knows him well by sight, but somehow I can't remember his name."

An Irishman travelling in a street well paved, was startled by a dog with a threatening growl. The traveller attempted to pull up one of the paving-stones to throw at him, but it was fast.

"Arrah," said Paddy, "what a fine country is this, where the stones are tied and dogs let loose."

Everything has its ludicrous point of view, and funny events occur even on such grave occasions as funerals. A certain Blue Beard of this latitude, overcome by his sensibilities, fainted at the grave of his fourth spouse.

"What shall we do with him?" asked a perplexed friend of his.

"Let him alone," cried a waggish bystander, "he'll soon re-vive!"

A Lafayette minstrel, riding a pumpkin colored sorrel, perpetrated a heavy sell on a toll-keeper in Lafayette, last week. He rode up unobserved, and quickly turning his horse about, opposite to the direction which he wanted to go, called to the toll-keeper who by this time had come out:

"How much to —?"

"Twenty cents," answered the toll keeper.

"Too high," responded the solitary horseman. Can't pay it. Guess I'll go back."

He turned his horse around and proceeded in precisely the direction he wanted to go—the toll keeper never dreaming of the sell.

PATRICK AND THE PRIEST.—Patrick, the widow Maloney tells that you have stolen one of her finest pigs. Is that correct or not
