HUMOROUS ITEMS.

A light employment—cleaning windows.

A thorough washerwoman—Sal Soda.

The largest ants in the world are called eleph-ants.

A dead reckoning—Calculating one's funeral expenses.

A charity scholar under examination in the Psalms being asked, "What is the pestilence that walketh in dark ness?" replied, "Please sir, bed bugs."

During an examination, a medical student being asked the question, "when does mortification ensue?" replied, "When you pop the question, and are answered no."

Why is the letter R very unfortunate? Because it is always in trouble, wretchedness, and misery, and is the beginning of riot and ruin, and is never found in peace, or innocence.

"Well, Susie, how do you like your school?" "Oh, ever so much, papa." "That's right Susie. And now tell me what you have learned to-day." Well, papa I've learned the names of all the little boys."

No man can do anything against his will, said a metaphysician to an Irishman.

"Be jabbers!" said Pat, "I had a brother that went to jail, an', faith, I know it was greatly against his own will."

A young lady in Ellington, N. Y., concluded a love-letter as follows;

I shall write to you agin jo Cummings told me an orful story about Suke tyler but I don't pay no atten Shun at all to this sickin tail Yourn till deth part both on us.

The following order, was recently received by a Chicago undertaker: "Surs: My wife is ded and wants to be burried to morro. At wuner klok U knose wair to dig the hoal—bi the side of my toe uther wives—Let it be deep."

A gentleman from the corn-growing districts attempted to open a clam in the same manner that he would a bull's eye watch—with his thumb nail.
After repeated efforts he became disgusted and called for another one that "wasn't so stiff in the hinges."

A young lady of one of the first families of Bridgeport, whose father made a fortune selling mosquito-bar blankets for army use, went into a drug store, the other day, and asked for a bottle of "Hair Manure."—It was "Renewer" that she wanted.

A justice, in rebuking a virago who had been arraigned for nearly scratching her husband's eyes out, said:
"You should remember that your husband is the head of the domestic realm—that he is your head, madame." "Well then," she screeched, "haven't I a right to scratch my own head?"

A mother who had with her a little daughter, was examining the figure of a horse on a tombstone, and wondering what on earth it was the emblem of.
There was nothing to explain it in the inscription. "Mama," said the little one, as they moved away, "I shouldn't wonder she died of the nightmare."

A notion seller was offering a yankee clock, finely varnished and colored, with a looking glass in front, to a lady not remarkable for her personal beauty.
"Why, it is beautiful," said the vender, "Beautiful indeed, a look at it almost frightens me," said the lady. "Then, mama," said Jonathan, "I think you had better take one that hain't got no looking glass."

A couple of countrymen having visited London for the first time, on getting out of the stage-coach in the centre of the city, they gazed around for some time in silence. At length one said to the other: "I vow, Jim, I never see the beat of this afore—did you? The roads is all fenced in with houses!"

A young hopeful from the country came to town last week, and went into a cabinet store and inquired if they kept coffins for sale. Upon being answered in the affirmative, he remarked that "Pap" was dead, and he wanted a cheap coffin. The proprietor showed him his stock of coffins, but they were all to high priced to suit the customer. After a moment's hesitation, he exclaimed:
"Blast it, let me see your second-hand coffins; I reckon they'll be good enough."
