How to keep yourself dry—Eat freely of red herrings and salt beef, and don't drink.

A farmer who was whipping two of his oldest boys, was asked what he was doing. "Thrashing wild oats was the reply."

A little boy's idea of theology—"I don't see how the devil came to turn out so, when there was no other devil to put him up to it."

The only mention of paper money in the Bible is in the passage where it says that the dove brought the green—back to Noah.

A servant girl asked her mistress the other evening for the loan of her white muslin dress to wear to a party, modestly remarking, "I dislike to ask you for it, borrowed clothes never fit me as well as my own."

A clever mot is attributed to the Prince Imperial. When asked why people always said, "Brave as a sword," and never "Brave as a cannon?" he replied: "Because a cannon always recoils when it is fired."

A green academy student, being required to write a composition in his regular course of study commenced thus: "It is rather difficult and pretty near impossible to communicate to others those ideas whereof we ourselves are not possessed."

"Ma," said a little girl to her mother, "do the gentleman want to get married bad as the ladies do?" "My dear, what are you talking about?" "Why, ma, the ladies who come here always talking about getting married—the gentlemen don't."

Is there no way of stopping the murderous style of singing which executes some of our best hymns, or rather garbores them, in the following style: "The ye-he-he-he-hear of Jew-Billy, of Jew-Billy, Jew-ew-ew-Billy-ey-ey, Jew-ew-Bil-le-he-he is come!"

An Indianapolis German had occasion recently to bury a large wife, and so squabbled with the sexton about the fee. "Dat ish not a pig grafe," said the disconsolate husband. "Not a big grave," indignantly responded the sexton, "why hang it, that's a cellar."

The following copy of the will of a Spitalfields weaver has been filed in Doctor's Commons:

"As to all my worldly goods I having store, I leave to my dear wife and hers for ever more;
I freely give; no limit fix—
This is my will, and she executrix."

That was thoughtful economy of the Irishman in the pit of the Dublin theatre, who, seeing some people about to throw an obstreperous fellow in the gallery, over the railing, and being much exasperated by the bad orchestra, cried out loudly, "Don't waste him; kill a fiddler with him!"

A country cobbler recently visited one of the large shoe manufactories in Boston, and for the first time in his life he saw shoes made by machinery. "What do you think of that?" asked the foreman as the astonished cobbler stood breathless with his hand thrust deep into his pockets, gazing at the wonder-working machine before him. "It beats awl," was the laconic and significant reply.

There was some years ago a trial for murder in Ireland, where the evidence was so palpably insufficient that the judge stopped the case and directed the jury to render a verdict of "not guilty." A well-known lawyer, who desired, however to do something for the fee he had received for the defense, claimed the privilege of addressing the Court. "We'll hear you with pleasure, Mr. B.," said the judge, "but to prevent accidents we'll first acquit the prisoner."

The late Jeremiah Mason was once engaged in a famous murder trial in which some good Methodist brethren were concerned. One morning when court opened, an over-zealous friend of his client came to him, and in a solemn whisper said: "Mr. Mason, Mr. Mason, I had a vision last night. Gabriel appeared unto me and told me brother A. was innocent. No mistake about it."—"Very well," said the man of law, not so much as lifting his head from the table on which he was writing. "Very well, better have Gabriel subpoenaed immediately."
