HUMOROUS ITEMS.

Why are husband and wife not one, but ten? Because the wife is number one, and the husband goes for nothing.

Philologist.—John, how did you hurt your finger? "Only an accident." "How so?" "I cut it chopping wood." "Oh, you mean you made a dent in it with the axe?" "Just so."

A Presbyterian and a methodist had a controversy, in which the former quoted largely from the bible to the Romans. "Ah," said the other, "Paul says so, I know; but then I always thought he learned his logic toward Calvinism."

A Scotch address one day visited a lawyer at his office, in which, at the time, there was a burning fire, which led him to exclaim: "My—your office is as hot as an oven!" "No," it should be my lord, as it is here, I make my bread."

A clergyman, standing in his place in the pulpit, was once handed a slip of paper which was intended to convey the following sentence to the congregation: "A man going to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the church."—But the sentence was improperly punctuated, and he read, "A man going to sea, his wife, desires the prayers of the church."

A man much addicted to drinking being extremely ill with a fever, a consultation was held in his bed-chamber by three physicians, how to cure the fever and abate the thirst. "Gentlemen," said he, "I will take half the trouble off your hands; you cure the fever, and I will abate the thirst myself."

"Allow me," said an American host, in his most persuasive tones, to a friend dining with him, "allow me to help you to a piece of Washington pie."—"Sir," replied the gentleman oratorically, waving his napkin, "George Washington was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen. I admire him for his purity, his piety, and his patriotism, but I detest his pies."

"Mamma said a child one Sunday evening, after having sat still in the house all day, 'have I honored you today?'"
 "I don't know. Why do you ask?"
 Because the Bible says, "Honor thy father and mother, that thy days may be long; and this has been, oh, the longest day I ever saw."

Mamma.—"How dare you slap your sister, George?"
 George.—"She kicked me when my back was turned, and hurted me very much, I can tell you?"
 Mamma.—"Where did she hurt you?"
 George.—"Well, I can't exactly say where, because—because my back was turned, and I was looking another way!"

In the year 1586, the young Constable of Castile was sent by his sovereign to felicitate Pope Sixtus V. on his exaltation to the papal throne. The pontiff, displeased that so young an ambassador had been deputed to him, could not help saying, "And well, sir, did your master want men, by sending me an ambassador without a beard?" "If my sovereign had thought," replied the proud young Spaniard, "that merit consisted in a beard, he would have sent you a buck goat and not a gentleman as I am."

A new Bedford paper says that one Saturday evening recently, a lady who lives near a church in that city, was sitting by the window listening to the crickets, which were loudly chirping, the music from the choir rehearsal being faintly audible, when a gentleman dropped in familiarly who had just passed the church and had the music full in his mind.

"What a noise they are making tonight!" said he.
 "Yes replied the lady, "and it is said they do it with their hind legs!"

A story is related of a boy who was watching his school-fellows as they snow-balled an old gentleman's windows. The old gentleman rushed out of his house determined if possible to inflict some severe corporal punishment on the offender, saying, when he caught the boy, "Now, you rascal, I'll thrash you within an inch of your life!" Accordingly, he began to beat him, when the boy immediately commenced laughing, and continued until the old gentleman stopped beating him, with the exclamation: "Boy, what are you laughing at?" "Well," said the boy, "I'm laughing because you are awfully sold; I ain't the boy!"
