NEW BLOOMFIELD, PENN'A.

Tuesday, January 31, 1871.

THE impeachment trial of Gov. Holden, of North Carolina, is now in progress; Gov. Holder's answer to the charges covers over 200 pages.

PHILADELPHIA has another Special election on to-morrow. It is held for the purpose of electing a member to the legislature to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Joseph A. Campbell, from the 17th district.

An Act giving $20,000 in aid of the sufferers by the Milln fire passed the State Senate on Wednesday last. doubt there are many persons who badly need this assistance, but it is a bad precedent to establish, as there are fires every week in which persons lose all they are worth, and who can, with equal propriety, ask aid from the State. Besides,money from this source generally passes through political agents who usually work Religious Amendment of the Constitution.

A NATIONAL CONVENTION to consider this subject met in Philadelphia on Wednesday, Jan. 10th, at 2 o'clock, P. M., and continued in session until Thursday night. Two hundred and nineteen delegates were in attendance, representing eleven states of the Union.

The object aimed at is such an amendment to the Constitution of the United States as will adequately express the fact that this is a Christian Nation, and form a sufficient legal basis for all our Christian Institutions Usages and Laws.

The Convention was influential and enthusiastic. Judge Wm. Strong, of the U. S. Supreme Court is the President of the National Association, formed to secure this object, and was expected to preside at the Convention, but his attendance was prevented by official duties.— Ex-Governor James Polloek, of Pennsylvania, was chosen President of the Convention. Addresses were delivered by Dr. Jonathan Edwards, of Baltimore, and by Prof. J. H. McIlvaine, late of Princeton College. Several resoultions were adopted.

The Board of Public Charity.

In the early part of the session, Gen. Kane, the President of this board, made a report to the Legislature on his own responsibility, taking the balance of the board to task for neglect of duty, and winding up with a recommendation that the law authorizing such a commission be repealed. The tenor of the whole document would at once convince the reader that the writer was vexed because he had been unable to control the actions of his colleagues, and that they had formed opinions in conflict with his. Since then the board have made a report which shows that their actions have been for the best interests of the State, and that the only reason why Gen. Kane was dissatisfied, was because they had refused to recommend the appropriation of money in accordance with his desires. The following paragraph, quoted from the last report explains the matter:

" A small but deserving charity, comparitively unknown, which asked for State aid, and whose expectations did not exceed $1,000, had the recommendation of our President for $3,500; another, of similar character, had his voice for $5,-000; and for a third, which asked and obtained the recommendation of the Board for $10,000 he proposed $50,000. A scheme, which was rejected last year by one of your committees, he desired to revive, with a recommendation of $50,000. To this, the members of the Board were

non. A rather romantic history has been developed by the trial of a suit in a New Orleans court for the property left by a This person zertain Henrietta Newsham. came to New Orleans from Vicksburg on a flatboat during the war,accompanied by ther cousin, who was said to be also her lover. Upon the arrival of the twain in New Orleans, Henrietta adopted the garb of a boy and became a newsboy. She continued to sell newspapers, and dress in a male attire, unsuspected by her associates, until an order from Gen. Banks ordering a draft in New Orleans induced her to resume the habiliments of her sex. She thereafter became known as the girl newsboy. In 1864 she died of small pox. In the following year her cousin died of the same disease, and in 1865 her aunt, with whom the two lived, also died. Some thousands of dolllars were left by the girl newsboy, and the suit now brought is by a person assuming to be the mother of Hen-rietta, and who claims her estate.

Early in October last, a very gentle-manly person, giving the name of J. R. Livingston, was introduced to Mr. Goddard, the Treasurer of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express, by Mr. Clark, a broker .-He expressed a desire to purchase $100,-000 of Kansas Pacific bonds, and at once commenced his negotiations. Day after day he called upon Mr. Goddard, and it was not until Oct, 12 that he concluded the bargain. He then bought $100,000 of the bonds at 772, giving in payment Hallgarten & Co.'s check on the Park Bank for $77,500. He had been so long in deciding on the purchase, and had noted so courteously throughout the transcompletely off his guard, and accepted the cheek without question or inquiry as to its genuiness. It afterwards proved to have been altered from $1,000, while the certification of the teller of the Park a sheer forgery.

Mr. Goddard endorsed the cheek and deposited it in the Continental Bank, whence, in due course of business, it was sent to the Park Bank. This was on the 18th day of October, and the check should have been verified on that day, but owing to a pressure of business the matter went over until the I4th. On to be tried. that day the bank officials discovered that Hallgarten & Co.'s account was overdrawn, and so informed them, and this led to a discovery of the alteration of the

Mr. Worth, eashier of the Park Bank Mr. Goddard, and Mr. Cornelius F. Timpson, eashier of the Continental, held consultation as to the case, when Mr. Goddard suggested detectives (a moneyed man's universal pauaces). But Mr. Timpson knew too much to give the ease into the hands of detectives, and in two hours did as much as a detective would have done in as many months. He found that Livingston had deposited the Kansas Pacific bonds with the Commercial Warehousing Company as collateral for a loan Bank and Manhattan Company for 25,000 each. These checks he had deposited with Cauldwell & Co., on Wall treet, with orders to buy him $30,000 in U. S. bonds. After they had purchased the bonds he called and demanded them, together with the balance, $27,500.

Cauldwell & Co. refused to deliver either the bonds or the money, as something had excited their suspicious and they wanted Livingston to get somebody to identify him. He brought a Mr. Chadwick, a Broadway broker, but the firm demanded that he be identified by the President of the Commercial Warehouse company. He went in search of this gentleman, and while he was gone, Mr. Timpson, who was "looking up" the cheeks of the Warehouse Company, entered Cauldwell & Co's office, and explained the true condition of affairs. Mr. Timpson was accompanied by two wellknown detectives, and it is supposed that their presence deterred Livingston from returning. At any rate, he didn't return, but started post haste for California or some other distant point.

After he left it was discovered that his true name was Lewis Van Etten, and that he was a leader of a gang of counterfuiters, who had everything ready to swindle Wall street to the tune of balf a million. Detectives were at once sent after him. Police and held to await a requisition by Gov. Hoffman.

Van Etten was brought to this city last night by Detective Sampson, and is now lodged in a cell at the Police Central Office.—N. Y. Sun, of the 24th inst.

Married for Fun.

The quiet community round about Ben Bow, a small town in Marrion county. Mo., about twenty miles from St. Louis, was thrown out of its customary even channel two or three days since, and set in social agitation, by the extraordinary matrimonial freak of a highly esteemed young couple, in which pluck had more to do than mutual attraction. The sensation consisted in that the parties did not want to marry, and had no idea of what they were doing until the wedding was a

The bride was engaged to a young man in that vicinity, and was to have been. and expected to be married to him in May. The bridegroom was, as stated, betrothed to another lady, and the nuptials were to have been celebrated in few weeks. The banter which led to the unexpected wedding was made at a party at which were the bride that should have been of the bridegroom, and the bridegroom that should have been of the bride thinking at the the time it was a good joke. Consternation prevails among the four most interested, who do not at present see their way out of a disagreeable embarrassment. The married couple have not as yet treated the marriage as a reality, and are waiting at their respective homes until some way shall be found to release them from their difficulty .-The marriage was regular and legal, and so far there appears to be no help for the parties, who are sorely distressed.

Shameful Cruelties in the Navy.

Charges of cruelty have been preferred against Commander A. A. Semmes, of the United States ship Portsmouth (now on the Brazil station), in the North Atlantic Squadron, about nine months ago. The records of courts murtial, in the cases of several of the men on board the ship, for refusing to do duty, came to the Navy Department, and as these men. claimed in defence, that they had been ernelly treated, a court of inquiry was ordered

The records of the court, embracing 600 or 700 pages of manuscript, came to the Department in September, and from these it appears that nearly every man action, that Mr. Goddard was thrown abourd the ship had been subjected to punishment, These punishments consisted of nailing men up in boxes for days. tying them up by the thumbs, &c. One of the ship's writers was cognizant of all these cruelties, and had entered returns Bank, which, it purported to bear, was of the punishment in the log-book. The officers, thinking that he knew too much of the way in which things were munaged, reduced him. He afterward refused to do duty, and was court-martialled and sentenced to the penitoutlary for several years. Though there has been much dalay, it is reported that the Com-mander and his executive officers are now

nen. A Hartford man was recently awakened from his slumbers, by a distinct rapping on his bedroom window. He sized his repeater, and cautiously advanced to the window, and discovered, instead of a robber, a pet cat, which had been locked out, and took this method to attract attention, rather than remain all night in the cold. The gentleman kept awake the remainder of the night, vainly endeavoring to solve the problem of how pusa managed to do that knocking. have a little black and tan dog, who do siring to be let in the house, goes to the low window, and raps with her paw on the glass as naturally as any human. If that fails to attract attention, after two of $50,000, receiving checks on the Park or three definite knocks, she adds a white. and is let in. If the outside window-blinds are closed, she inserts one of her paws between the slats, and if a gentle rattle of them does not effect the object. she will increase the violence of the shake until somebody is glad to open the door.

> The Ebensburg Alleghanian says. it is a well-known fact that wild geese on a dark night sometimes loose their reckoning. On such occasions they have been known to descend to the ground near any bright light burning - probably to see where they are and take a fresh start. Last Friday night was a very dark A man who lives in the suburbs started home about ten o'clock. He stopped by the way to light a cigar. His burning match must have seemed a lighthouse to a flock of passing geese, probably 20 in number, for they came to the ground and "swarmed" on and around the man. He was considerably astonished--in fact so much astonished that he failed to capture a single goose.

see A pack of cards lies conveniently around in the jury room out in Wyoming territory, and when the jury retires to consult, the members always take a hand. The fascinating game of euchre is found greatly to relieve the tedium of waiting nate members to come and at length traced him to New Orleans. The following scene is usual: "Well, where he was arrested by the Chief of gentleman, guilty or not guilty?" "I pass "You two refuse to vote guilty do you? Very well; my deal; right bower, by jove! There, euchred again!" And so the tedious hours are beguiled until it is time to go in and report a unanimous verdict of "guilty."

Although every member of the Delaware Legislature is a Democrat, a Democratic caucus was held, and strange to say, the three candidates before it were all Saulsburys, and brothers. All the members of the Legislature were present. The following table shows the result of the four ballotings, the fourth and final one electing Eli over Gove by a voth of 16 to 14.
