NEW BLOOMFIELD, PENN'A. Tuesday, March 14, 1871.

A telegram from Mayence conveys the intelligence of the arrival of the Prussian Premiere in that city, en route to Frankfort. A grand demonstration was made by the citizens in honor of the distinguished visitor.

SENATOR SUMNER has been and still is strongly opposed to the acquisition of San Domingo. For his opposition to this pet scheme of the administration he has been threatened with a removal from his position as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, but yet no one supposed that any such step would be taken. It was therefore with general astonishment that the news was received, that in the fermation of the Senate Committees for the Forty Second Congress, that Senator Sumner's name had been dropped from that Committee. Such a course is calculated to introduce discord into the ranks, and consequently will seriously weaken the party in power, and for that reason alone, we are surprised, that such a step should have been taken. With a mere party injury however, we have nothing to do, but we look upon this change as a loss to the nation, for we do not think there is another man in the U. S. Senate as well-fitted for that position. Besides this, the views of Mr. Sumner upon the San Domingo treaty are shared, we believe by a large majority of the voters of the nation, and consequently, his removal from that Committee for such a cause is an outrage not only on Mr. Sumner but upon all who are opposed to a further extension of territory and a consequent addition to the national debt.

At Meridian, on the 6th inst. during the trial of three negroes charged with riotous conduct, one of the prisoners, Finley, alias Tyler, shot and instantly killed Justice Bramlette, who was presiding. Indiscriminate firing ensued and two negroes were killed in the court-room. Tyler jumped from a second story window, was pursued by the sheriff and a posse, and shot to death. The citizens assembled in large numbers, armed, to assist the officers. The sheriff ordered them to disarm the negroes, and, in doing this, several were killed. As far as positively ascertained, six negroes and Judge Bramlette were killed.

On Friday night the deak of the store of Wm. F. Anderson, of Washington, in Rappahannock county, was robbed of $900 in currency and $4,000 in indi-vidual bonds. The thief obtained entrance by boring through the window shutter and hoisting the sash. His operations were so quietly performed as not took bonds in $100 from the parents of to disturb the slumbers of the young each of the culprits, and suspended the clerk who slept above the counting room. sentence.

A Terriffic Hurricane. Despatches from St. Louis, of the Sth

"A terrific hurricanc passed over a portion of East St. Louis between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. The wind first struck the elevator on the bank of the river and took part of its roof off, and passing in a due northeast direction it totally demolished the freight depot of the St. Louis and Vandalia railroad, 800 feet long by 100 feet high, the freight and passenger depots of the North Eastern Railroad, two freight and passenger depot and ticket office, and the large round house of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, the carbouse scale office, freight office, and part of one of the freight depots of the Ohio and Mississippi road, the freight and passenger depots of the Toledo and Wabash road, and a number of dwelling houses in the vicinity. A portion of the roof of the Terre Haute Indianapolis depot was blown off, and nearly all the derricks and other appliances used in the construction of the bridge were torn from their places and blown into the river. Everything in fact within a space of from 200 to 300 yards wide was actually torn to pieces.

A train of cars, including a thirty-ton locomotive, was blown off the track, and hurled about forty feet into a ditch. Another train of fourteen cars, laden with grain, was overturned and smashed, and one car was blown into the river.

A train coming in on the Terre Haute road, when at Brooklyn three miles north of East St. Louis, were blown from the track, and about forty cars standing on a side track on the Toledo and Wabash and Chicago and Alton road, about nine miles out, were overthrown.

The round house of the Chicago and Alton road, after being blown down, caught fire from an engine inside and was burned. The engineer of the locomotive was burned to death. The number of killed and wounded cannot be stated to-night, but seven are known to be killed, and between thirty and forty severely wounded, some dangerously, and a good many more slightly injured. It is believed a number of persons are buried beneath the ruins.

The scene is frightful. Houses are torn to fragments, others are unroofed, and still others are carried bodily from their foundations. Scarcely a building or tree or anything else within the track of the storm is standing. The wreck and ruin is complete.

A case of considerable importance as relating to secret societies was disposed of by Justice Arnold, of Chicago, the other day. The particulars are as follows: A respectable German of that city,named Simon Hildenbuter, determined, if possible, to join one or more secret associations. He accordingly made application to the Hermann Soehne, also the Cherusker Lodge, No. 92, in both of which he was admitted to full fellowship.

Mr. Hidenbutter was induced principally by the wish to provide friends for his wife and little children, if he should suddenly be called away. He understood that in case of his death that the lodge members would have to aid and as-

by his wife, and not by the lodges to which he belonged. Then some of the widow's friends advised her to sue the societies, which she did by commencing suit before Arnold. In their defence the trustees of the lodges pleaded a want of time. observance of the constitution and bylaws on the part of the deceased brother.

In answer to an inquiry whether the deceased had ever been under sentence of suspension, the trustees replied in the negative whereupon the justice decided that the lodges were bound to extend to the widow and children all the privliges usually given on such occasions, for, al-though the man might not have been an exemplary brother, he was nevertheless a member in full standing in the order, and that no lodge had a right to impugn his character after death. He would order a verdiet for $90 in favor of Mrs. Hildenbutter.

On the 4th inst., the Marshal of Whitestone, L. I., on complaint of a number of the citizens of the place, ar-rested seventeen of the boys of the village. The complaints were for various offences. It seems that on Friday a wine peddler who was showing some samples in a store, had his wagon robbed of about a dozen bottles. These the boys took to a neighboring grove and had a debauch. Not being satisfied with the wine, and getting reckless, they started for the ba-ker, and while some boys engaged his attention, the others made off with cakes, the effects of the repast they commenced to turn the village inside out. The boys, ranging in age from 10 to 16, were then brought before Justice Provost, and a makes heroes! The stage was full of pasmost exciting scene was the consequence. Fathers, mothers, and sisters pleaded for them, and most of the youngsters them-selves were in tears. The Judge finally took bonds in $100 from the parents of York and Brooklyn, who were engaged

In the Dead-letter Office there are neatly placed on eards, for general exhibition, several thousand photographs of officers and soldiers who belonged to the Union armies during the rebellion. These interesting mementoes having failed to reach the parties for whom they were intended, are now filed subject to the order of any friend who may there recognize the face of an old acquaintance.

Mr. A. C. Dake, together with his wife, who resides at the north end of the village at Callstown, New York, left home on Monday for the purpose of being absent a few days, leaving their house in charge of a hired girl, named Josie Fitz-gerald. During the day the girl invited a young lady named Mary Manogue to stay with her that night, which she consented to do.

Just before retiring to bed the girl regulated the draft of the stove, as she supposed all right for the night. When they awoke in the morning and attempted to arise they found themselves unable to do so. They lay in a state of stupefaction, and remained so until about six o'clock on Tuesday evening last, when Miss Manogue, who was still unable to stand, succeeded in creeping to the outside door and calling for assistance.

The neighbors went in, when they found the room filled with gas from the sist his family, and that his body would stove, and the girls in a critical condition. A few weeks ago Mr. Hildenbutter thing in his power to relieve them. They died, and was buried from his own house are at present recovering as rapidly as can be expected. Had it not been for the strong presence of mind of Miss Manogue in creeping to the door and calling for assistance, they would, with-out doubt, have both died in a short

In the month mentioned he went from home for several days on business. On his return his wife and child were gone, and inquiry showed that Mrs. Mierely had been accompanied in her flight by Mr. John M. Hummel, aged 35, a wealthy grocer of the village, and an intimate friend of Mr. Mierely. Six months later Mr. Mierely ascertained that Mrs. Mierely and Mr. Hummel were living in New York as man and wife. Mr. Mierely went to the city and found the information correct. A Horse Trade.

A Conn. paper gives the following acvicinity:
Milo Waterman has endured the thraldom of a married life for some years but lately the fetters have become galling, and consequently very unpleasant, and he resolved to throw off the yoke and proclaim himself free. But it is not an easy matter to shake off such a responsibility as a wife, and our friend Waterman was in a quandary. He didn't know exactly what to do, and the more he pondered, the more difficult seemed to be bis situation. Finally, one day last week, Milo ran across a neighbor named John Mulford, who is ever ripe for a bargain, and after some conversation, in which they descanted on the respective merits of wife and horse, a bargain was "struck up." Mulford was to take Waterman's wife and Waterman Mulford's horse.

Waterman took his horse home, put him in the stable, and retired. But he could not sleep. He tossed nervously upon his pillow, and began to think of his wife. True, they had their "ups and downs," but, after all, hadn't she sometimes been good to him? then he thought of the many happy moments they had spent together, of their love and courtship, of their marriage, and their honeymoon, and Milo began to regret the trade. At last he could endure it no longer. He got up, stole out to the barn in the dead of the night, took out the old horse and proceeding to Mulford's woke him up, and wanted to trade back. But Mulford couldn't see it. Waterman begged, but Mulford was inexorable. After considerable bickering, however, the latter agreed to let Waterman have back his spouse, in consideration of a forfeit of two birch Liquor dealers in Ohio complain that under the new law women who have shiftless husbands are suing them for support on the ground that the men are prevented from providing for their families in consequence of their indulgence in liquor; and the women get verdicts in their favor, sometimes even when it is proved that the improvident husbands will not work when they are perfectly so ber. The consequence is that in some parts of the State a married man cannot get a drink of liquor without a written permission from his wife-and a very good consequence it is.

Mar A thirsty Vermonter hitched his horse to a freight car standing on a side track, while he proceeded leisurely toward a neighboring saloon in quest of "tanglefoot." Meantime the freight train moved on, and when the Vermonter returned his team was missing. Proceeding up the track he came to a wrecked wagon, a wheel here, a spoke there, and soon after stumbled upon the poor horse, quite dead, the animal having been choked to death ere the halter parted.

An impromptu baby show the other day came to an ignominious end. There were five of the " pretty itty darlins" present, accompanied by mamas. It was suggested that a vote should be taken as to which was the prettiest, and, on the plan being carried into effect each cherub had a single vote. Every mother deemed herself insulted, and there was a little unpleasantness in the winding up of the tea party.

CARSON'S Stellar Oil!

THE alarming increase in the number of fright ful accidents, resulting in terrible deaths and the destruction of valuable property, caused by the indiscriminate use of oils, known under the name of petroleum, prompts us to call your special attention to an article which will, wherever USED, remove the CAUSE of such accidents.—We allude to

Carson's Stellar Oil FOR

ILLUMINATING PURPOSES. The proprietor of this Oil has for several years feit the necessity of providing for, and presenting to the public, as a substitute for the dangerons compounds which are sent broadcast over the country, an oil that is SAFE and BRILLIANT, and entirely reliable. After a long series of laborious and costly experiments, he has succeeded in providing, and now offers to the public, such a substitute in "CARSON'S STELLAR OIL." It should be used by every family,—
