HUMOROUS ITEMS.

It only requires a "he" to convert an artless maiden into a heartless one.

A Western editor reports money "close, but not close enough to be reached."

An Irish editor congratulates himself that "half the lies told about him ain't true."

"Where are you going?" asked a gentleman of an acquaintance. "To see a friend." "Then I should like to go with you, for I never saw one yet."

A gentleman who had a scolding wife, in answer to an inquiry after her health, said she was pretty well, only subject at times to a "breaking out in the mouth."

A Western man being recently invited to a seat on the floor of the house at Washington indignantly refused, saying that he was accustomed to sit on chairs at home.

The editor of newspaper out towards Lake Champlain has discovered a way of keeping eggs from spoiling. His method is to eat them while they are fresh! Bravo!

An Evansville youth, after being fined 5$ for howling under the window of two girls, got a licence, and married one of them right off, quick. He says she can't get him fined for singing any more.

An Indiana editor says that he now believes in total depravity, as some wretch lately stole his only pair of boots, which will confine him to the house till the opening of the barefoot season.

Doesticks thinks it conclusive evidence of drunkenness when he sees a man "sticking a postage stamp behind his left ear and attempting to get into a letter-box to go by the mail train."

"What are you doing there?" inquired Jack of Tom, as he caught him peering through the keyhole. "What's that to you?" said Tom, "I don't like to see a person prying into other people's business."

An Eastern paper, in a fit of Revolutionary enthusiasm, says: "Hurrah for the girls of '76!" "Thunder!" cried a New Jersey paper, "that's too darned old! No, no! Hurrah for the girls of '17!"

The wit deservedly won his bet who in company, when every one was bragging of his tall relations, wagered that he himself had a brother twelve feet high. He said he had two half brothers, each measuring six feet.

A dairyman was awakened by a wag the other night with the announcement that his best cow was choking. He immediately jumped up to save the life of his treasure, only to discover a turnip sticking in the mouth of the pump.

"Tom, where's that counterfeited ten dollar bill you had a while ago?" "Well, I never was quite in my mind about dat dare bill. Some days ago I thought it was a good bill; and one o' dem days, when I thought it was a good bill I jes' passed it away."

A gentleman whose nose had become distinctly colored with the red wine he was wont to imbibe, said one day to his little son at the table: "You must eat bread, my son; bread makes your cheeks red." The little boy replied:—"Father, what lot's of bread you must have snuffed up!"

A candidate for fame proposed to fly from the North Church steeple, and had already mounted, and was clapping his wings, to the great delight of the mob, Dr. Byles, mingling with the crowd, inquired what was the object of the gathering. "We have come, sir, to see a man fly," said one. "Poh, poh, I have seen a horse fly," replied the doctor.

Fueseli, the painter, had a great dislike to this species of conversation known as "tattle." Once, when sitting in his room among some trifling visitors who were discussing the weather and such like interesting subjects, he burst forth with a—"We had pork for dinner, today." "Dear, Mr. Fueseli, what an odd remark," exclaimed one. "Why," replied he, "it's as good as anything you have been saying for the last hour."

Two travelers having been assigned to the same bedroom in a crowded hotel, one of them, before retiring, knelt down to pray, and confessed a long catalogue of sins. On rising from his knees he saw his fellow-traveler, valise in hand, going out of the door, and exclaimed: "What's the matter? What's up?"—"Oh, nothing," was the reply, "only I'm not going to risk myself with such a scamp as you confess yourself to be!"

The following is a noteworthy specimen of medical prescriptions sometimes written by ignorant pretenders.— It is genuine: R. Fir Kramps. Tinct. Kamfir, won ounce. Tinct. Lodenum, a little. Tinct. Hot Drops, a few drops. Tinct. Kyan Pepper, 5 cents' worth. Kloreform, a little, but not much, as it is dangerous medicine. Dose, half a teaspoonful when the Kramps come on.
