NEW BLOOMFIELD, PENN'A. Tuesday, May 30, 1871.

The committee of the memorial fund for the Presbyterian Church of the United States, report that the amount raised up to noon, on the 24th inst., was $7,607.40, 91.

The United States Senate has ratified the treaty agreed upon by the "Joint Commission." If it meets with the approbation of the British Parliament, there is a chance for all the troubles between this country and England to be amicably settled.

The editor of the Times, in this week's paper, thinks he has made an able defense for the Pennsylvania railroad company, by replying to the article in last week's News in regard to the late change of schedule.

Good Gracious! how mistaken we have been, for we always supposed that citizens from this place and many other parts of the county had an interest, in the railroad accommodations from Newport, and consequently we had a right to say something upon the subject.

Independent Papers.

Within a few years past, there has been a large number of "Independent Newspapers" established throughout the county, and the most of them have rapidly increasing subscription lists.

A large majority of the reading community have become dissatisfied with the partizan press, and prefer papers which will record events as they transpire without giving them the coloring of party prejudice.

There is a story going the rounds of the press, that a few Sabbaths ago a certain minister of a church in Danville, Kentucky was so confused by a distinguished member of his church repeatedly blowing his nose so furiously, that he forgot entirely that portion of his sermon undelivered, also the text.

REPORTS from Paris say that the Government troops have been successful in obtaining possession of the city. The loss of life was terrible, as all the gates and barricades were stoutly defended.

Shall we have a Railroad?

To those who are interested in getting railroad communication into hilly and thinly settled portions of the country, we wish to state a few facts which have been demonstrated by very narrow gauge roads already in use.

Since the above was in type we have been favored with a very full report on the subject of narrow gauge roads, by E. N. Robinson Esq. We return our thanks to the friend sending the article for his kindness.

Democratic State Convention.

The Democratic convention met in Harrisburg on Wednesday last for the purpose of nominating candidates for Auditor General and Surveyor General.

The following named gentlemen were placed in nomination for Auditor General: A. D. Markley, of Montgomery county; William M'Candless, of Philadelphia; D. H. Nieman, of Northampton county; F. M. Crane, of Wayne county; George W. Skinner, of Franklin county.

On the fourth ballot Gen. M'Candless received a majority of votes in the convention, and was declared elected as the candidate of the party for Auditor General of the State.

Quite a large number of gentlemen were nominated as the candidate for Surveyor General, but on the fourth ballot Capt. J. H. Cooper of Lawrence was declared the nominee. After the adoption of a long string of resolutions and the election of Hon. William Wallace as chairman of the state executive committee the convention adjourned sine die.

Jury Culture.

The trial of Foster in New York for the murder of Mr. Putman, commenced last week, and five days were occupied in getting a jury. The great difficulty of obtaining a jury who knew nothing about the case, in these days of cheap newspapers, makes the New York Tribune suggest the following:

It proposes to establish a House of Detention, where a given number, say a hundred thousand, respectable and intelligent citizens could be constantly on hand, to be drawn as jurors! They must be allowed no access to newspapers or other current literature and in order to keep their minds free and unbiassed, and make the place self-sustaining, they might be assigned to some useful and entertaining labor, such as polishing marble or fashioning pegs and leather into boots and shoes.

The Legislature adjourned on Saturday noon, after a very long, and, to the taxpayers, rather an unsatisfactory session.

A Terrible Pestilence.

The City of Buenos Ayres has for a few months past been scourged with a terrible pestilence, some idea of which may be gathered from the following extract:—

"In some instances husbands have abandoned their dying wives, mothers have left their children to die alone, and in many cases whole families have been swept away. As many as five or six corpses have been discovered in a single house. A new cemetery has been opened in the campo south of the city and a tram railroad laid to it.

The population of the city, which ten weeks ago numbered at least 200,000 souls, is now reduced to 40,000. About 150,000 thousand have fled their homes, some taking refuge in Montevideo and the towns up the Parana river, but the larger portion are in the campo, within a distance of from ten to fifty miles of Buenos Ayres.

Those who remain in the city are mostly of the poor classes, who have not means to leave, and the Public Commission, a philanthropic association organized for the emergency, is now proposing to send away on the railroad such as are not yet affected by the fever.

There is much division of opinion as to the origin of the fever, but it is pretty well settled that it was brought in an Italian emigrant ship which arrived from Genoa and Barcelona in January last. As to the cause of the spread and ravages of the disease, any one who has ever been in Buenos Ayres can readily see. The city is built on the flat shore of the river, is without any system of drainage whatever, and for nearly 200 years the inhabitants have buried all filth, garbage and refuse matter of every description beneath their houses.

A singular case is now occupying the attention of the Circuit Court in Ulster county, N. Y. More than a year ago a nigger named Levi Bodine killed his employer, Daniel Hashbrouk, a rich farmer, and was duly arrested and lodged in jail.

The Counterfeiters.

The United States court for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania is now in session in Philadelphia. Our citizens are greatly interested in the trial of a number of counterfeiters from this vicinity, against whom true bills have been found by the grand jury.

tion of Jerome Whitman and Wm. McKeever, and their sentence to the penitentiary on a charge of larceny. John Teahl, a miller from this city, and Zerker, alias "The Flying Dutchman," well known throughout this and neighboring counties who united the avocation of a pedler with that of circulating counterfeit money, and was remarkably shrewd, bold and successful, will also be arraigned for trial before the court this week, together with the other parties.

A distinguished American artist was once visited in his studio by a little party of ladies, all strangers to him. At last they went away, but one of the women soon returned alone. Getting the attention of the artist, she began in the most confidential and winning manner: "Mr.—, don't you think that in some future group you may introduce the figure of a widow?"
