HUMOROUS ITEMS.

An Irishman was asked if he would keep a secret, if it were entrusted to him. He answered, "And faith if I can't I will tell it to some one that can."

A paper says that a child was run over in the streets by a wagon three years old and cross-eyed, with pantalots on, which never spoke afterwards.

A Kansas paper advertises "omnibusses for funerals and other parties, at reasonable rates," which is taking a cheerful view of things.

Circumstances alter cases. Red paint, which is an improvement on the looks of old houses, is but an injury to the cheeks of young ladies.

Well, Pat, why don't you put up your umbrella? "Because, yer honor, the rain would spile it, an' so I kept it under me arum an' devil a drop it has got."

A client once burst into a flood of tears after he had heard the statement of his counsel, exclaiming, "I did not think I suffered half so much till I heard it this day."

I say, friend, your horse is a little contrary, is he not? "No sir." "What makes him stop then?" "Oh, he's afraid somebody will say 'Whom,' and he shan't hear it."

A sailor looking serious in a chapel in Boston, was asked by a clergyman if he felt any change? Whereupon the tar put his hand in his pocket, and replied that he had not got a cent.

Mrs. Partington says the only way to prevent steamboat explosions is to make the engineers "bile their water" ashore. In her opinion all the bustin is caused by "cooking the steam" on board.

"Hello there," said a farmer to an Irishman, busily engaged at one of his cherry trees, "by what right do you take these cherries?" "In faith, my friend," said he, "by my right hand, sure."

An old lady was telling her grand children about some troubles in Scotland, in the course of which the chief of her clan was beheaded. "It was nae great thing of a head, to be sure," said the old lady, "but it was a sad loss to him."

A young woman in Sacramento, California, is threatening to get a divorce on the novel ground of protracted festivities. She says her husband celebrated his marriage by getting drunk, and has kept it up ever since.

Would you be willing to undertake the management of my property for your victuals and clothes?" said Girard, to a gentleman who was congratulating him on his vast possessions. "No," was the reply. "Well, that's all I get," said the millionaire.

A little girl, who had just laid aside her slate in order to adjust her stockings, was asked by her mother:—"What are you drawing on your slate, Emma?" "I ain't drawing on my slate," she answered, "I'm drawing on my stockings."

That was a grave joke on the Hon. L. C. Kilham, of Madison, N. Y., who sending a telegram for a horse to meet him at the Oneida depot, was overwhelmed upon his arrival by the presence of weeping friends and a funeral train, the operator having transformed a horse into a hearse.

Is it true, mamma?" inquired a little girl, "that a Quaker never takes off his hat?" "It is true, my dear," answered the fond mother. "It is a mark of respect which he thinks he should pay to no man." "But then tell me, mamma," answered the clever child, "how does a Quaker manage when he goes to have his hair cut?"

An old agricultural laborer in England tried a muscular method of evangelizing his family. Being remonstrated with by the pastor, for not 'bringing up' his boys as he should, he replied, "I donno 'ow 'tis, sir; I order 'em down to pray night and mornin', and when they won't go I knocks 'em down—and yet they ain't good!"

A famous judge has the habit of begging pardon on every occasion. At the close of the assize, as he was about to leave the bench, the officer of the court reminded him that he had not passed sentence of death on one of the criminals, as he had intended. "Dear me," said his lordship, "I really beg his pardon. Bring him in."

One night, a short time ago, in one of our small Western cities, a traveling company was playing Romeo and Juliet to a large and appreciative audience. Soon after Juliet had taken her opiate, and just as Romeo was saying, "Here's to my love!" preparatory to taking his poison, a much-excited countryman, who was attending the theater for the first time, cried out: "Oh, hold on! For heaven's sake don't take that! Miss Julia is only shamming. She's only playing off the old ones. And even if she wasn't, if I was half as good looking as you are, I wouldn't kill myself for any one gal! That's so." It brought down the house.
