HUMOROUS ITEMS.

A young doctor being recently asked to dance the "Lancers," said he was more able to lance the dancers.

Jake Blifkins says, "My wife's the most poetical woman alive; leastways, she's always a verse to me, you bet!"

"Corn bread?" said an Irish waiter, "we haven't got it; an' isn't it corn bafe yo mane?"

Young chaps who carry canes, say they have bible authority for so doing, as even Adam is represented as having a Cain, when quite young.

An apt reply—"I'm a broken man!" exclaimed a poet. "So, I think," was the answer, "for I have seen your pieces."

"The easiest way to get a living," says a vagabond poet, "is to sit on a gate, and wait for good luck. In case good luck don't come along, you are no worse off than you were before."

A simple but ingenious enigma for the young people is the following: In my first, my second sat; My third and fourth I ate. The answer is, insatiate.

A Hibernian gentleman, when told by his nephew that he had just entered college with a view to the Church, said: "I hope that I may live to hear you preach my funeral sermon."

Little Howard R— came into the room where his mother had just hung up a clean curtain, and made the astute observation, "Oh ma, the window has got on a clean shirt."

"Martha," said James, "what letter in the alphabet do you like best?" Martha din't like to say, but the young man insisted. "Well," was her final answer, as she dropped her eyes, "I think I like U best."

"Is your father at home?" inquired a man of a little girl who admitted him. "Is your name Bill?"

"Some people call me so." "Then he is not at home; for I heard him tell John, if any bill came, to say he is not at home."

A married lady who was in the habit of spending most of her time in society of her neighbors, happened one day to be taken ill, and sent her husband in great haste for a physician. The husband ran a short distance, and then returned, exclaiming, "My dear, where shall I find you when I come back?"

Thomas Winchester, from Connecticut, a few days since, was riding a mule near Macon, Georgia. The mule balked and would not go. Thomas dismounted and kicked the object of his wrath a few times. The object kicked back. The next day the colored boys divided what property Thomas left; buried one of the kickers in a little shallow grave, and set the other to plowing corn ground.

A lady had been cautioning her son, a bright little boy, in the matter of taking cold.

"You know, my child," she said, "I cannot help being anxious and troubled about you when you are ill. Ah! Freddy, you have no idea of the feelings of a mother."

"No, mother," replied the dear little fellow, with genuine earnestness; "but I may know something of the feelings of a father!"

A young lady saw in a wicked paper that if two young ladies would each take a pole of a galvanic battery in one hand, and then complete the circuit by kissing, that the sensation upon the lips was exactly that of the pressure of the moustache. She immediately communicated the fact to a number of friends; a battery was secured, and the experiment tried, and found to work like a charm.—A large number of pocket batteries have been ordered, so that hereafter when the ladies meet and kiss, as is their custom, they each shut their eyes and fully enjoy the satisfaction of feeling a gentleman's lips pressed to theirs.
