The Harvest in Europe.

The Belgian Moniteur gives some details of the prospect of the approaching harvest in the corn-growing countries of Europe. In Prussia the provisions are unfavorable : much of the autumn sowings perished ; and those of the spring are suffering from want of warm sun ; in Saxony the appearance is better, as the crops are thick and healthy ; in Russia the yield is expected to be a good average, and a very large quantity of last years crop still remains unexported at Odessa; in Roumania, Bulgaria and Bessarabia, the aspect is most favorable, and in Hungary an abundant harvest is expected; in France a large proportion of winter grain is lost and the fields had to be resown." England is generally compelled to import for her own use, and will be certainly obliged to do so this year, while in Asia the crop is a total failure, and gaunt and famine invade the land of the Medes and Persians. In Eastern Europe the crop prospects are some better. In addition to our ability to aid the suffering, the receipts of our farmers will be swelled by good prices and an active market.

Evils of Curiosity.

Curiosity, laudible in its object, has done a grievous injury to a Missouri countryman, who went down to St. Louis, the other day, to g et a divorce from his wife. While walking to the court-room he espied a large sea-turtle reposing upon its back in front of a restaurant, and allured by the sight, stopped to examine it thoroughly. Meanwhile his wife was at work for herself, and when finally he hurried on to the court-room, he learned to his dismay, that the case had been decided against him, and his wife had obtained a divorce. He did not care so much about the loss of his wife, as he engaged another in anticipation of getting a divorce himself; but as the wife had obtained a decree against him, he was by the law precluded from taking unto himself another rib until the lapse of five years. He was almost frantic, as he had his wedding clothes ready, and was to have been married the next day. His lawyer made a motion for a rehearing, and it was set for argument in two days. But the woman was again too smart for him, for she, too, had a husband in waiting, and as soon as the decree was announced she went out aud married her man, without stopping to examine the anatomy of a turtle or any other fish.

A Riot in New York. On the 12th of July the Orangmen, who are Protestant Irishmen, are accustomed to celebrate the battle of the Boyne*. This is usually done by a parade of the different lodges. The Hibernian association of New York, which is composed of Catholics, said that if the Orangemen attempted to parade they would attack their procession and make them wade through blood. The threats were so boldy and persistently made that the Mayor of New York on Monday issued an order forbidding the parade, thereby showing that he was fearful of offending the Catholic mob.

To the credit of the Governor, this order was countermanded and a proclamation was issued by him, guaranteeing the Protestants, protection if it took the whole of the State Militia. The parade of a portion of the lodges accordingly took place. The procession was formed with one regiment in the advance, and another in the rear as an escort, a large body of policemen being distributed on either flank. The procession had not marched but a short distance, before a pistol shot was fired by some rowdies, and a few stones were thrown, and several men in the ranks were injured.

The soldiers returned the fire and for a time there was a terrible scene. The rioters were chased for several blocks, and men women and children, were left lying on the side walk dead, or wounded. In a short time this party was dispersed but several other collisions took place and the number of casualties reported during the day reached over forty killed and one hundred and fifty wounded.

The cowardice of the city officials in trying to stop the parade at the dictation of a mob, raised a feeling of general indignation

For many years the city of New York has not passed such a day of excitement, and had not Governor Hoffman come forward with his proclamation, and assurance of protection, the citizens would probably have taken the matter in hand, as many in no manner connected with the Orangemen had promised to join their parade. Such a had promised to join their parade. Cut a feeling was raised against this foreign Catholic intollerance, that an attempt was made to revive the Know Nothing organiza-tion, and it is said that over one thousand men had their names enrolled as members of such an association.

We also take from the N. Y., Sun the following short report of the sad affair :

The procession moved about half past 2 o, clock. Before the command to march had been given, paving stones had been hurled among the troops, and it is said one or two pistol shots were fired by the mob. The police were continually driving back the crowding rioters, their services being almost uncessingly required for the the crowding rioters, their services being almost unceasingly required for that purpose. When the column moved, stones were hurled upon the procession from the housetops along the Eighth avenue, and chimneys were torn down to the roof that their bricks might serve the assailants for missiles. The day was very hot. The National Guard steadily moved forward, paying but little attention to the shower of stones and bricks which was rained upon them. Finally pistol shots were heard. At them. Finally pistol shots were heard. At first it was difficult to tell where they come from. Apparently emboldened by the for-bearance of the military, the Ribbonmen Hibernian, then made their appearance in third term military or the difference in third story windows and on the housetops. They gathered in the alleys and on the housetops. They gathered in the alleys and fired upon the soldiers. They shot a little girl wearing an orange dress through the brain. At length Sergeant Page, the favorite of the Ninth Regiment, was killed. As he fell to the pavement, his comrades, incensed beyond further endurance, and without immediate orders but in memory of the start

Lynch Law in Illinois.

The following terrible story comes from Illinois: A man of the name of Martin Mera, about three weeks ago, beat his son, aged ten years, in a terrible manner, so badly that it was impossible for the little fellow to get out of bed when called by his father the next morning. This seemed to exasperate the brutal fellow, and, taking a red-hot poker, he thrust it into the boy's side, and, not satisfied with this, took the boy up from bed, and, putting him on the red hot stove, held him there until the little fellow was burned horribly. He then took him into a room where the mother lay, having just been confined, and beat him over the head with the butt end of a whip, until death came to the relief of the little sufferer. The brutal wretch threw the lifeless body under the bed on which his wife was lying, and told her if she breathed a word of the affair he would kill her. That night he wrapped the body of the boy in a sheet, and buried it near a hedge in his garden. The next day he went to Gilman and advertised the boy as a runaway, offering a reward for information of his whereabout's.

On Saturday a week suspicion having been aroused by some words let fall by the boy's sister, the mother and two daughters were taken in charge, and the man arrested. After the mother found her brute of a husband was under arrest, she told the whole dreadful story of the murder. The body of the boy was found, and the terrible reality and atrocity of the murder fully demonstrated. The next day a crowd of two hundred men and woman gathered and marched to the jail. They then took the wretch out and after giving him twenty minutes in which to say his prayers, hung

A story comes from Delaware of an eccentric philosopher who has paid the penalty of his criminal attempt to enlighten mankind. To some extent he did enlighten the abstraction, but not as he intended to do. He had some theory or other in regard to the use of parachutes, which he absurdly connected with pyrotechnics, and so, on the Fourth of July, shortly after dusk, he clandestinely erected in his yard a huge sky rocket, to the head of which was attached his parachute in such a way that while the rocket was seeking the moon it would remain closed, but when its upward motion ceased it would theoretically open like an umbrella, and thus waft him safely to the ground. He attached himself to the lower end of the stick with the fuse turned away from him in such a way that the fire from the rocket would not injure him. Then he blazed away and went whizzing through the air, dangling and hopping as he sped, with fire fastening itself upon him-somewhat "like the pale martyr in his shirt of fire." If his parachute ever opened he did not know it, for presently those who beheld the wondrous engine saw it turn sharply in mid-air, and it fell. The poor fool was found burnt and mangled not far from his own philosophy-shop,

An Odd Predicament.

The Hartford "Times" says : A very queer case has come to the attention of the lawyers there. A man died, leaving a handsome property, and also a handsome widow, the latter childless but expecting to become a mother. He also left uly executed, which it was provided that if the expected child should prove to be a boy, two-thirds of the property should go to him and one-third to the widowed mother. If, however, the child proved to be a girl only one-third of the estate was to go to her and the two-thirds to the mother. The result of the expected interesting event has astounded everybody and puzzled all hands. The widow has become the mother of twins !--- and, what greatly heightens the perplexity of the case, the twins are a boy and a girl.

A Singular Accident to a Horse.

A young man named Robert Giffien, of Fulton county, whilst in attendance upon the dedication of the new Methodist Protestant Church, near Rainsburg (on Sabbath a week, hitched his horse near by and entered the church. Returning at the close of the services he found his beast battling with a swarm of bees which had settled upon him. Every effort was made to relieve the animal, but to such an extent had been stung, that he died in a few hours afterward, apparently in the greatest agony of suffering.

The Central Falls Visitor says that, as two young men Tuesday afternoon were walking on the railroad track, near Central Falls station, one of them picked up what he thought was a marble, and as he was picking it up with his fingers it exploded with a report as loud as a gun. He said he thought he was killed ; the concussion was so great that it benumbed and blinded him for the moment. The torpedo split his thumb and forefinger of his left hand, and the fingers of the right hand looked as though they had been pounded with a hammer.

137" At a Sunday school pic-nic held at Berlin Canada, a terrible accident occurred. A sudden shower drove a large number of children into a tannery when the floor of the room gave way precipitating the whole party into the vats below. Fortunately only one death resulted, but for a time it seemed as though many would be drowned.

TOn Monday afternoon, while John Ballee, of Milton township Ashland county Ohio, was working among his bees, one of them stung him just behind the ear from the effects of which he died in a few minutes

13 In February of year before last, a Boston lady was knocked down and seriously injured by a snow-slide from the roof of a building. The Supreme judicial court has awarded her, after a tedious suit, $6,-500 damages.

13" A young man in Freemont Ohio, paid off sixty dollars of the National debt by hanging his vest, which contained sixty dollars in greenbacks, near a brush heap, which he afterwards set fire to forgetfully.

Topper and nickel coins are now forwarded to the Philadelphia mint for redemtion at the rate of $3,000 per day with an average daily increase, and up to Saturday last over $250,000 had been redeemed.

ROBINSON HOUSE,

made in this country we find in a recent copy of the London Times : "At this moment, Birmingham is losing its old market. A few years ago it used to supply the United States largely with edged tools, farm implements, and various smaller wares. It does so no longer, nor is the cause to be sought merely in the American tariff. It is found that the manufacturers of America supersede us, not only in their own, but in foreign markets and in our own colonies, and the Birmingham Chamber has the sagacity to discover, and the courage to declare, that this is owing to the superiority of American goods. High as are the wages of an English artisan, those of an American artisan are higher still, and yet the manufacturers of the United States can import iron and steel from this country at a heavy duty, work up the metal by highly-paid labor, and beat us out of the market after all with the manufactured articles. How is that to be explained? The Americans succeed in supplanting us by novelty of construction and excellence of make. They do not attempt to undersell us in the mater of price. Our goods may still be the cheapest, but they are no longer the best, and in the country where an axe, for instance, is an indispensable implement, the best article is the cheapest, whatever it may cost. Settlers and emigrants soon find this out, and they have found it out to the prejudice of Birmingham trade."

137 The Wytheville, Va., "Dispatch" relates the following : Not far from us a young lady attempted to leave the parent mansion at dead of night, by lowering herself from her chamber by means of a pully and rope fastened to the window. She had just seached the ground, where her lover awaited her, when her enraged sire appeared, seized the young man, fastened the hook to his pants, and raised him skywards, leaving him dangling in the air until morning. The elopement is postponed indefinitely.

immediate orders but in pursuance of a general order, opened fire upon the mob. Other regiments also opened fire. Volleys of musketry were heard, preceded and fol-lowed by a rattling, scattering fire. The crowd broke wildly, and sought shelter in the houses and fied down the side streets. The procession moved on to the site streets. "The Star Spangled Banner," and the street in their rear was covered with dead bodies. Two other attacks were made on the procession which were repulsed by the

There was apparently no organization on the part of the mob. It seemed to have no leaders, but every Ribbonman went into the business of assasination on his own hook. There was only such union and concert of action among them as resulted from their common bloody purpose.

The procession, after traversing only a part of the rout intended, made a short cut to their place of destination in Fourth avenue near Cooper Institute, and there halted. The military masked the little band of Orangemen, who concealed their regalia, filed into No. 4 Fourth avenue, regalar, need into No. 4 Fourth avenue, made their way through the alley to another street where there was no crowd, and dis-appeared from observation. Such is the plain story of the Hibernian riot of July 12, 1871

In connection with this, the following clause taken from the obligations which the Orangemen are obliged to take when joining the organization will be interesting.

"And I further declare that I will to the atmost of my power support the laws of the United States as long as they maintain civil and religious freedom and that I will to the utmost of my power assist the Chief Magistrate and other civil authorities in the lawful execution of thefr duties when called upon to do so.'

The Hibernians are actuated by entirely different motives, as will be seen by the annexed clause which is a part of the obligation taken by every member of that order.

"You swear that you will endeavor to destroy and overthrow all established Protes-tant and other Governments not acknowledging the temporal supremacy of our Ghostly Father, all being illegal without his sacred seal and conformation."

"This battle was fought on the banks of the riv er Boyne, on the 1st of July, 1660, between the Protestant forces under William III. (ca lied the Prince of Orange) and the Catholic forces under James II., the latter being badly defeated.

The perplexity of the mother, her friends and the lawyers, is said to be extreme. It is claimed that there is a clear solution of the case, but we haven't seen it. The case, certainly involves some very knotty points.

Wonderful Sagacity of a Dog.

Mr. John S. Trowbridge, of New Canaan, Conn., has had a strange dog come round his place for several days past. The dog was fond of following his wagon to and from the depot. The other evening Mr. Trowbridge lost his pocket-book containing over $50.

Remembering that he had it at the depot and coming direct to his residence, he knew he had lost it either at the depot or on the road between it and his house. In the morning early he dispatched his man to look for the missing money, and he found the faithful dog lying on it on the depot platform. It is almost unnecessary to say that the homeless dog has found friends.

13" During the riot between the Catholicand Protestant Irishmen the soap factory of Colgate & Co., on York st. Jersey city, was threatened with destruction. During the night a force of thirty men were on guard, and 200 feet of hose were stretched in the building attached to a vat of hot lye. This was preparing a very het inception for the rioters.
