CONSUMPTION. ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D. Many a human being has passed away for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputable means of cure.

DR. SCHENCK'S MILD AND SWEET TONIC, and called themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicine, they would have fallen.

THE MANDRAKE PILLS are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllum Tettatum. They possess all the blood-purifying, alternative properties of calomel, and are entirely free from its deleterious effects.

THE second thing is, the patient must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent relapses in such a case.

DR. SCHENCK'S MILD AND SWEET TONIC, and called themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicine, they would have fallen.

HUMOROUS ITEMS.

If I were in the sun and you out of it, what would the sun become? Sin.

What does a grocer do with most of his things before he sells them? Gives them a weigh.

An Oregon toast over a glass of the ardent, "Here's what makes us wear old clothes."

"Salt" is the subject of a school-boy's latest composition: "The salt is a spice which spoils the potatoes if you forget to put it on."

A cynical lady, rather inclined to flirt, says most men are like a cold—very easily caught, but very very difficult to get rid of.

Why is it unlawful for a man to fell his own pine timber? Because no one is allowed to cut where it is his own deal.

What is the difference between a fisherman and a lazy schoolboy? One baits his hook, and the other hates his book.

An Irishman who was standing on London bridge said to a youth, "Faith and I think I know yees; what's yer name?" "Jones," said the boy. "Jones, Jones," said the Irishman, "and I knew seventeen odd maids by that name in Dublin; was aither of them yer mither?"

Recently at the oratorio of "Elijah," at the Mechanic Hall in Salem, which is poorly ventilated, when they came to the scene of the widow's dead son, a lady remarked "Elijah will never bring that boy to life in this atmosphere."

The following lines are on the sign of a roadside inn between Swindon and Marlboro—The Plough:

In hopes we plow, in hopes we sow, In hopes we are all led; And I live here and sell good beer, In hopes to get my bread.

I suppose," said a quack, while feeling the pulse of a patient who had reluctantly submitted to solicit his advice, "I suppose you think me a humbug?" "Sir," gravely replied the sick man, "I was not aware until now that you could so readily discover a man's thoughts by feeling his pulse."

"Ephraim Johnson" sends the following notice of "dissolution" to the Louisville Sun: "Do coparships heretofore resisting twixt me and Mose Jones, am heretofore resolved. Does what owes de firm will please call on de scribe.—Does what de firm owes will please call on Jones as de firm am irrisolved."

A lady was once declaring that she could not understand how gentlemen could smoke. It certainly shortens their lives," she said. "I don't know that," replied a gentleman, "there is my father, who smokes every blessed day, and he is now seventy years old." "Well," was the reply, "if he had never smoked he might have been eighty."

"Clara, I love but thee alone," thus sighed the tender youth. "Oh, hear me, then, my passion own with trembling lips and earnest tones. Indeed I speak the truth." He paused, the blush o'erspread her cheek; she let him draw her near; scarce for emotion could she speak, yet did she ask, in accents meek, "What is your income now each week?"

A darkey was boasting to a grocer of the cheapness of ten pounds of sugar he had bought at a rival shop. "Let me weigh the package," said the grocer.—The darkey assented, and it was two pounds short. The colored gentleman looked perplexed for a moment, and then said, "Guess he didn't cheat dis chile much, for while he was gettin' the sugar I stole two pair ob shoes."

Young mistress (gravely) she had seen an affectionate parting at the garden gate—"I see you've got a young man, Jane!"

Jane (apologetically)—"Only walked out with him on ce, m'm."

Mistress—"O, but I thought I saw—didn't you—didn't he—take a kiss, Jane?"

Jane—"O, m'm only as a friend, m'm!"

A farmer with the view of locating on some of the broad acres of Texas, visited San Antonio on his way farther West. There he was seized with one of those malignant typhoids which too often lie in wait for new comers. During the crisis of his fever he was painfully led to understand the general view that was entertained of his recovery by observing the doctor trying on his coat and hat and the waiter his boots.

A clergyman wishing to know whether the children of his parishioners understood the Bible, he ask a lad whom he found reading the Old Testament, who was the wickedest man.

"Moses, to be sure," said the boy. "Moses!" exclaimed the parson, "how can that be?"

"Why," said the lad, "he broke all the commandments at once."
