

Care of Horses at Night.

The North British Review, in relation to this matter, says : Few men who handle horses, give proper attention to the feet and legs. Especially is this the case on farms. Much time is spent of a morning in rubbing, brushing and smoothing the hair on the sides of the hips, but at no time are the feet examined and properly cared for. Now, be it known, that the feet of a horse require more care than the body. They need ten times as much, for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything if the horse is forced to stand where his feet will be filthy. In this case the feet will become disordered, and then the legs will get badly out of fix ; and with bad feet and bad legs, there is not much else of the horse fit for anything. Stable prisons generally are terribly severe on the feet and legs of horses ; and unless these buildings can afford a dry-room, where a horse can walk around, lie down, or roll over, they are not half so healthy and comfortable to the horse as the pasture, and should be avoided by all good hostlers in the country.

Rust in Wheat.

A Va., farmer in a communication to the Southern Farm and Home, thinks he has found the means of preventing the rust iu wheat, by top-dressing in March with wood ashes, putting about 12 bushels to the acre. He says that in a season of drought in nearly all the wheat growing sections of the South, whilst all his neighbors' crops were ruined by rust, his escaped by the use of ashes. He considers it an infallible cure for rust, and that he has found it the means of preventing rust in four out of five of his crops. No doubt the ashes will be found a most valuable manure for this and almost all other crops, and if in addition thereunto, they will prevent the rust also, it will be more than ever desirable to save and secure all that is posstble to reach.
