FARM AND HOUSEHOLD ITEMS

We invite communications from all persons who are interested in matters properly belonging to this department.

Fruit-Grafting.

As the time will soon be here when grafting is in order, we repeat our former advice that every one should do his own grafting. It is an easy operation when once understood, and this is readily done by seeing it done. A sharp pen-knife and a good fine saw are indispensable. Splitting the stalk so that the bark shall not be bruised, and shaping the scion wedge-fashion both ways, preserving also the bark uninjured, and placing the rim of the wood of both stock and scion exactly together, so that the sap can intermingle-there is no danger of failure if properly waxed. We make a shoulder to the graft and think it adds to the certainty of success, though probably it weakens it. We prefer also two eyes or buds to a graft, and would rather have only one than more than two. One year's wood should always be used when it can be obtained, as it is more certain to take and grows more vigorously, and the graft should be cut from bearing branches.

We wish to remind those preparing grafting wax, that we have found four parts of rosin, one part of beef tallow, to be the best proportions. Melt them together in a skillet, (which is the best,) or a tin-cup, and mix well. It should remain in the vessel and be used as needed. Twenty or thirty scions can be waxed with one heating up. When much grafting is to be done, a little fire for heating the wax should be made on the spot, between two bricks

We have seen various preparations for -making grafting wax and we believe we have tried them all, but prefer our own .--Applying it warm or hot does no injury to the graft. The object to attain in the proportion is that the wax will not crack in cool, dry weather. If, however, upon trial, different proportions be required, the foregoing can be altered, though after using them in several ways we have come back to these .- Germantown Telegraph.

IT It is a fact not as generally known as it should be, that the onion is remarkable for its nutritions qualities. According to analysis, the dried onion root contains from 25 to 30 per cent. of gluten. In this respect it ranks with the nutritious pea.-The onion is to the Spaniard and Portuguese what cheese is to the English laborer; it helps to sustain his strength, and adds largely to the nourishment which his simple meal suggests. If enions were more targely used in this country, there is little doubt that the general health of our rural population would be greatly promoted .-The only reason why they are not more extensively employed as an article of general consumption in large cities, and amongst what are known as the better classes, is because of the strong odor emitted by them while cooking. This objection does not apply with so much force in the country where the facilities for ventilation are so much better than in cities.

Stains on Linen.

All cloths subject to be stained, such as table-linens, napkins, children's clothes, towels, etc., ought to be examined before being put into any wash mixture or soap suds, as these render the stains permanent. Many stains will yield to good washing in pure, soft, warm water. Alcohol will remove almost any discoloration. Almost any stain, or iron mold, or mildew, may be removed by dipping in moderately strong citric acid, then covering with salt and placing in the sun. This may require to be repeated many times, but with us has never failed.

Fire and Water-Proof Cement.

Water-proof Cements for mending broken crockery are usually not fire-proof, and fire-proof cements are seldom water-proof. The following, however, is claimed to be both: Mix a tea cup of milk with two ounces of vinegar. It will curdle. Separate the curd from the whey, and mix the latter thoroughly with the white of an egg. Finally add quick-lime passed through a sieve until it is as thick as a paste. The cement is then ready for use.

To Color Brown.

Make a dye of common alder bark .-First dip the articles in this, then wring them out and dip them into weak lye. This will make the color light or dark, according to the strength of the alder dye. A fast color.

To Make Stale Bread Fresh.

Put the loaf into a clean tin, and cover closely to exclude all water, and set into a steamer, or a kettle of boiling water, for half an hour; then remove from the tin, and it will look like fresh bread, and be really almost equal to a new loaf.
