CARSON'S STELLAR OIL. This is not the lowest priced, but being much the best is in the end by far the cheapest. Do not fail to give it a trial, and you will use no other.

THE alarming increase in the number of frightful accidents, resulting in terrible deaths and the destruction of valuable property, caused by the indiscriminate use of oils, known under the name of petroleum, prompts us to call your special attention to an article which will, wherever USED, remove the CAUSE of such accidents.—We allude to

Carson's Stellar Oil FOR ILLUMINATING PURPOSES.

The proprietor of this Oil has for several years felt the necessity of providing for, and presenting to the public, as a substitute for the dangerous compounds which are sent broadcast over the country, an oil that is SAFE and BRILLIANT and entirely reliable. After a long series of laborious and costly experiments, he has succeeded in providing, and now offers to the public, such a substitute in "CARSON'S STELLAR OIL." It should be used by every family.—

1ST, Because it is safe beyond a question. The primary purpose in the preparation of STELLAR OIL has been to make it PERFECTLY SAFE, thus insuring the lives and property of those who use it.

2D, Because it is the most BRILLIANT liquid illuminator now known.

3D, Because it is more economical in the long run, than any of the dangerous oils and fluids now in too common use.

4TH, Because it is intensely BRILLIANT, and therefore economical, giving the greatest possible light at the least expenditure to the consumer. Its present standard of SAFETY AND BRILLIANCY will always be maintained,—for upon this the proprietor depends for sustaining the high reputation the STELLAR OIL now enjoys.

HUMOROUS.

Nash's Experiment. My wife was a woman, and I noticed that she nourished all the follies of the sex.

She was as extravagant in dress as any of her friends, and I took her to task for it. I showered over her much wisdom. She was an obedient wife, and bowing her head submissively, retired to her room, from which she emerged in a few minutes. She had carried out my wishes to the letter.

Her dress hung limp about her person. Her chignon, which was her crowning glory, was gone, and her natural hair was twisted into a small and insignificant knot at the back of her head. She had no collar, no cuffs, no rings, no pins; in short she was divested of all those helps to figure and form which the sex know so well how to employ.

Ordinarily she was counted a handsome woman—as she stood before me in that shape, I confess I was astounded at her superlative ugliness. "Come," said she, meekly. "It is time we were on our way to the concert."

I did not go to the concert with my wife in that guise. On the contrary, with much hemming and hawing,—for no man likes to go back on himself,—I meekly asked her to resume her natural garb. My experiment at reform with the female part of my household had the appearance of a failure.

Josh Billings says: "All you have to do to raise oats is to plow deep, then manure it well, then sprinkle the oats all over the ground, one in a place then set up nights to keep the chickens and woodcocks out of them then kradle them together with a kradle, then rake them together with a stack, then thrash them out with a flail then clean them up with a mill, then sharpen both ends of them with a knife then stow them away in the granary, then spend wet days and Sundays trapping for rats and mice. It ain't nothing but plun to raise oats—try it."

A gentleman at Washington who has a pretty daughter was recently approached by a youth who requested a few minutes conversation in private, and began: "I was requested to see you, sir, by your lovely daughter. Our attachment—"

"Young man," interrupted the parent, briskly, "I don't know what that girl of mine is about. You are the fourth gentleman who has approached me this morning on that subject. I have given my consent to the others, and I give it to you.—God bless you."

George W. Maley, a famous Methodist preacher, once, in addressing himself especially to the colored people of his congregation, cried out: "You, my dear, black brethren, God bless your black, greasy hides, when you get to Heaven you will be jappaned all over with glory."

When you see an old gentleman of sixty, on a clear bright day, carrying a blue cotton umbrella, tied tightly about the waist with a shoe-string—the umbrella tied, not the old gentleman—you may look out for rain before night, but the probabilities are that you will not see it.

An old Scotch preacher is reported to have said in one of his sermons at Aberdeen: "Ye good people of Aberdeen get your fashions from Glasgow, and Glasgow from Edinburgh, and Edinburgh from London, and London from Paris, and Paris from the Devil."

A Superintendent of police made once an entry in his register, from which the following is an extract: "The prisoners set upon me and called me an ass, a precious dolt, a scare-crow, ragamuffin and idiot—all of which I certify to be true."

Will you take a pinch of snuff Mr. Spriggins?" "No, I thank you; if my nose had been intended for a dust hole, it would have been turned the other side up."

An Irish jockey elated with his success at winning a race exclaimed: "By my soul, I'm first at last, I've always been behind before!"

When I put my foot down I'll have you to understand," says Mrs. Nojoker, "that there is something there!" On investigation it was found to be a No. 11 shoe.

The man who got wise by eating sage cheese has a brother who proposes to become skillful in the fashionable dances by dieting on hops.

Our "Devil" says if the young lady would sack him without hurting his feelings let her give me the sack she has on—contents included.

It is said that a watch-dog is not so large in the morning as at night, because he is let out at night, and taken in in the morning.

The first day a little boy went to school, the teacher asked him if he could spell. "Yes, sir." "Well, how do you spell boy?" "Oh, just as other folks do."

A correspondent says that he was lately presented with a sample of tea from Fiji. He thinks it made him Fiji-tea.
